FRANCE AND ITALY RUSHING TO HELP DEFEND WATERWAY

As Turks Threaten Holy War in Drive Against Constantinople, Allies Rapidly Bar Way.

NEW ZEALAND TO SEND ANZAC CONTINGENT

Shadow of Another Great War Fast Gathers in the East as Kemalist Forces Advance.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

London, September 17.—Kemalist forces massed on a quay at Smyrna prevented an attempt by detachments of allied marines to land Saturday morning, according to a dispatch to the Sunday Express from Smyrna by way of Malta.

BRITISH TROOPS GUARD STRAITS.

London, September 16.—(By The Associated Press.)—British troops are entrenching at strategic points on the Dardanelles, French and Italian battalions are rushing to join them, and from far New Zealand word has come that an Anzac contingent will be dispatched to the scenes of their heroic sacrifices in the late war to assist in dealing with the Turkish nationalists. Thus has there been a swift carrying into effect of the allied pronouncements regarding a firm determination to preserve the freedom of the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus.

The British troops are supported by heavy artillery and backed by the fleet and officials here are confident that the combined allied land and sea forces, which are declared to be ready prepared for any eventuality, can hold Constantinople against all odds.

The Turks, having bombarded the last departing Greek transports from the Chesme peninsular, despite the British appeal for mercy on the grounds that the Greeks were helpless and no longer combatants, Mustapha Kemal Pasha now is supreme over all Anatolia, but has yet made no direst move toward Constantinople or the straits, and the warnings which the allies have voiced throughout Europe and the Near East may have served their purpose.

Smyrna Is Shambles.

Smyrna, which last month was the center of Greek rule, is a shambles, with fire raging for three days and continuing, but diminished in violence, Only the Moslem quarter has escaped.

Thousands have suffered death and outrage at the hands of the Turks and thousands helpless in the hospitals were burned to death. The half-crazed population and refugees are suffering indescribable misery. Six American

IN Atlanta, the father of Frank B. DuPre, the Peachtree bandit, still lingers. I saw him yesterday. He was alone, unrecognized, just one of the scores of nondescript men who find some sort of a strange peace from the worries and troubles of nonemployment in the hustle and bustle of city hall corner.

Apparently none of these knows his fellows, but they have some sort of aloof companionship in their community of trouble. They smoke, when they have anything to smoke. They read newspapers when newspapers are discarded by busier men, and occasionally one of them ventures conversation with the army recruiting sergeant, who stands on fixed post in that neighborhood.

Their interest seemingly centers in the help wanted columns of the daily papers, and in protecting the cleanliness of collars, which is looked on as the barometer of efficiency and respectability.

ELDER DuPRE SEEMS OUT OF PLACE.

THE elder DuPre seems entirely out of place in this company.

In the first place he appears efficient, whether his collar is clean or not—and it always is. Again, he shows not the slightest interest in the help wanted columns.

And still, I saw him standing in that strange companionship, his eyes on something, myraids of miles away, and a half smile on his lips that is pitifully reminiscent of the boy whose memory binds him to Atlanta with tenter hooks of horror.

Atlanta has never meant anything to him but disappointment and despair. It was in Atlanta that he first saw the boy, who was made in his image, handcuffed and shackled, pale of face and frightened of heart, brought through a morbid mob that wanted to look on a man that had preyed and killed, while in this same boy the father could see nothing but the child he had dandled on his knee and for whom he had all the hopes and aspirations that good men have for their every offspring.

From that time on Atlanta was Golgotha to this man. Half dazed from the terror of the whole thing, he had passed through the trial, the sentence, the interminable wait for the ruling of the supreme court, those eons and eons that piled up as he waited for the last word from the governor, that infinity of time that passed between the time he kissed his son goodbye in the cell of the doomed and the moment when he was called on to claim the clay that was left by the law of what had, just brief minutes before, been the flesh of his flesh.

HELD HERE BY HORROR.

TO the normal man, sitting serene in his life of usuality, it would seem that the minute that the elder DuPre could have departed from the city, he would have fled, screaming his joy as his back turned forever on the place accursed.

But who can know the mind of a man who has gone through the things that DuPre has suffered in the last eight months? Who can tell the fatal fascination that the place holds for him? The bird sits spellbound in the radius of the glance of the serpent that has charmed it.

The elder DuPre stands at city hall with his eyes looking on something myriads of miles away. What his thoughts are, what his hope can be, are questions that other men's minds were not made to solve.

"Grandma" Gordon, 98, Casts First Statehouse Vote Without Glasses

Commerce, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—"Grandma" Gordon, of Banks county, nearly 98 years of age, cast her first vote for governor and statehouse offices Wednesday of this week.

She hitched her family horse to her buggy, drove two miles to David's militia district, and made out her own ticket without the use of glasses.

It is not known for whom she cast her vote for governor as she kept her secrets and voted her convictions. She celebrates her 98th anniversary Saturday a week from today, when her children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren will gather These celebrations have been interesting events for a number of years.

PEACHTREE PAVING OBSTACLE FOUND IN GREATER COST

Public Works Committee of County Board Says Work Will Cost $36,000 More Than Expected.

CAR COMPANY WILL BE ASKED TO BEAR COST

Committee Will Hold Conference on Plan for Concrete Paving With Arkwright Monday.

Plans for laying concrete paving along the street car tracks on Peachtree road from Brookwood to Buckhead will have to be abandoned unless the Georgia Railway and Power company will bear the expense of building a new rigid concrete foundation for its tracks, it was disclosed at a meeting of the committee of public works of the Fulton county board of commissioners at a meeting Saturday afternoon.

A conference between members of the county commission and Preston Arkwright, president of the Georgia Railway and Power company, has been arranged for Monday morning. The commissioners will ask the power company to furnish the materials for building the foundation and, it was stated Saturday, will agree for the county to do the work.

Needs New Foundation.

The committee at its meeting Saturday announced to a delegation of citizens representing the property owners and residents of the Peachtree section that their request for concrete paving could not be granted unless the new foundation for the car tracks could be built. The track work will cost at least $36,000 more than the total estimated cost of the paving.

County Can't Afford It.

Commissioner Oscar Mills told the citizens that it was an impossibility for the county to proceed with the work at such a cost. It had been estimated that the improvement would involve an outlay of approximately $87,000, and it would have strained the county to expend a sum even half as great as that, he said.

According to a decision of the committee two weeks ago, a seven-inch concrete slab pavement was to have been laid. Subsequently it has been learned that in order to prevent vibration of the car rails, which would cause quick deterioration of a rigid paving, it will be necessary to either embed the crossties of the track in concrete or underpin the crossties with concrete foundations.

The county offered to furnish the labor necessary for placing the crossties on a rigid foundation if the Georgia Railway and Power company would furnish the material F. L. Butler, representing the street railway company, who attended the meeting of the public works committee, announced that he would arrange for a conference Monday morning between the committee and President Preston Arkwright.

Will Cost $50,000.

Mr. Butler stated that his company already expects to pay out approximately $50,000 in preparing the tracks to receive the paving and that the company cannot pay the cost of laying the foundation.

J. K. Ottley, John S. Cohen, Clark Howell and J. J. Haverty, representing citizens of the north side, urged on the committee the importance of placing a permanent pavement on Peachtree road. They stressed the fact that the thoroughfare is the most widely used in the city and is deserving of the highest grade surface.

The county recently halted the laying of an asphalt pavement along the car tracks after it was shown that it was not of a permanent nature. It was then decided to lay a seven-inch penetration asphalt pavement, but before the contract was drawn the committee was induced to pave the portion in question with concrete.

The paving involved includes only the width of about 20 feet between the car tracks and a narrow shoulder on either side of the tracks. The rest of the width of the road is well paved and in good condition.

REPORT ON TARIFF IS BEFORE SENATE

But, After Hour of Argument on Point of Order by Simmons, the Senate Recesses.

Washington, September 16.—The conference report on the tariff bill was called up today in the senate and immediately was subjected to a point of order by Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, democratic leader in the tariff fight. After more than an hour's discussion, Senator Cummins, republican, Iowa, president pro tempore, announced that he wished to take the question under advisement and the senate recessed until Monday.

Senator Simmons' contention was that the conferees had exceeded their authority by proposing authority for the president to declare American valuation as the basis for assessing ad valorem duties on any item in the bill, when the senate, by direct action, had limited such authorities to the specific items in the two paragraphs dealing with duties on coal tar, dyes and other products.

Should the point of order be sustained, the tariff again would be thrown into conference. Should it not be sustained it was expected that final legislative action on the measure would come Monday or Tuesday.

Senator Simmons argued that the senate had specifically refused to grant the broad authority to the president which the conference proposed to give the president and that since the propostion has been inserted by the senate as a new amendment to the house bill, the conference, in reaching a comprimise on the section could not go beyond the limitation fixed by the senate.

A silimar postion was taken by Senator Underwood of Alabama, the democratic leader, who declared the conferees had brought in an amendment in a form they would not have "dared" bring in in any other way. Mr. Underwood declared the conferees had gone beyond the scope of what either the house or senate had proposed and that through the authority proposed for the president it would be possible to "enormously increase" the taxes of the American people.

Senators McCumber, North Dakota, in charge of the bill, and Lenroot, of Wisconsin, both republicans argued that the subject in disagreement between the two houses was American valuation and that the conferees had a perfect right to compromise their dispute on that question in the manner in which they did. Senator Lenroot contended that even had the senate not written into the bill the amendment proposing authority for the president to declare American valuation under certain conditions, the conferees would have been within their rights if, in compromising their differences as between American and foreign valuations they had written in such a provision.

Alleged Bigamist Seeks to Divorce Her First Hubby

Claims Her Husband Wanted to Use Her as "Blind" on Liquor Trips.

Because she did not accompany her husband on whisky-hauling trips as a "blind" to aid him in escaping detection she was beaten and choked and otherwise tortued, it was charged Saturday in a divorce suit filed in Fulton superior court by pretty 18-year-old Ida May Taylor Miller, defendant in a bigamy case which resulted in a mistrial Thursday, against W. R. Taylor, her first husband.

Sensational charges were made by the young woman against her first husband. She is represented by Attorney Len B. Guillebeau. In the bigamy case trial she testified that she married W. R. Miller after she had been informed by telegram and letter of her first husband's death.

Her marriage to Taylor occurred in Butler, Ga., on July 6, 1919, she sets forth. She was deserted in October, 1921, she asserts.

She charged that in October, 1921, she was confined to her bed with illness and that her husband became angry because she was not earning any money and burned her toilet articles.

"He took all of plaintiff's clothing, not leaving her sufficient clothing in which to leave the room. He even stripped the plaintiff of the hose which she had on, and in the hose he found $20 which she had saved, and which he stole and carried with him," the petition further read.

SIX FIREMEN INJURED IN DALLAS BLAZE

Dallas, Texas, September 16.—Five firemen were overcome by smoke and heat and another seriously burned by blazing creosote in a fire which practically destroyed the six-story warehouse of the Interstate Forwarding company here early today. After three hours fighting of the fire, which started among furniture stored on the second floor, firemen announced the blaze was under control. Early estimates placed the loss at from $150,000 to $200,000.

MYSTERY SHROUDS DOUBLE MURDER

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Brunswick, N. J., September 16.—The Reverend Edward W. Hall, rector of the Protestant Episcopal church of St. John the Evangelist and Mrs. James Mills, wife of the sexton of the church were found dead from bullet wounds today under an apple tree in a secluded lane in Somerville township. The two had been missing from their homes since Thursday night.

Coroner H. M. Long, of Somerset county declared it a case of double murder. He said the two had been dead at least 36 hours, before the bodies were discovered and was emphatic in stating he believed that the shooting did not occur in the rustic lane. Ne weapon was found near the bodies which were lying about a foot apart. Near the woman's side however, the exploded shell of a 32-calibre bullet was found.

The woman had been shot once between the eyes. Marks of clinched fingers bruised the left arm. The body of the rector bore three bullet wounds. One was over the left eye and two in the neck. Scattered in the greatest profusion about the man's body were cards and letters taken from his pockets.

Husband Not Held.

Mills was questioned by the authorities and gave an account of his wife's movements up to the time she left her home on Thursday night. He is not being held. Police tonight were stationed about the Hall home permitting no one except officers of the law to enter or leave the house. Officials said the guard was maintained. "to see that no one molested Mrs. Hall" who, they added was prostrated.

Mills said that Thursday night shortly after 7 o'clock, his wife received a telephone call, which she told him came from "Henry's," the neighborhood grocery store. Turning from the phone, Mrs. Mills, he said, went upstairs, where he heard her moving about in her room for nearly half an hour. When she appeared again she was wearing one of her newest street dresses and her newest hat.

"Naturally I asked her where she was going," Mills is reported to have said. "and she told me that if I really wanted to know I could 'follow her and find out.'"

Visited Church.

Playing on the front steps as she went out was Mrs. Mills' 16-year-old daughter, Charlotte. In answer to a question from the girl, the mother is said to have replied she was "going out for a little while."

Mills told the authorities he did follow his wife. He said as the evening wore on he was too nervous to go to bed. He said that at 2 o'clock in the morning he went out for a

DR. INGRAM DEMANDS RETRACTION BY SIMS

Declares Statement That Woodward's Entrance Fee Was Paid by Bootlegger Is False.

Election of James G. Woodward as mayor would be taken by the banished bunco gang as the cue to return to Atlanta, Councilman Walter A. Sims, opposed by Woodward in the run-over primary, declared in two public speeches Saturday night.

"The bunco gang is watching the outcome of this campaign," he said. "They know that if I am elected mayor the police department will be reorganized on such a basis that they cannot land here again. Two of the men who put my opponent into the race were members of the police board when Atlanta was the haven of crooks and confidence men.

"Would Atlanta take a step backward and elect a man backed by bootleggers and confidence men?"

Demands Retraction.

Another development of the political situation Saturday was the demand in a letter written by Dr. R. F. Ingram to Mr. Sims that he retract his charge made in a speech at the Lee street school Friday night that Woodward's entrance fee was paid by a bootlegger.

"In your speech before a meeting of the West End End civic club Friday night," wrote Dr. Ingram, "you are reported in the public press to have said that 'the entrance fee of Mr. Woodward was paid by a convicted bootlegger.' Those who heard your speech have stated to me that you mentioned my name in connection with this charge and that you further stated that 'sixty gallons of whiskey were found in his office.'

"Both of these statements are absolutely false and I hereby demand of you a public retraction of this base and uncalled for slander."

Makes Two Speeches.

Mr. Sims' first speech was delivered from the steps at city hall to a crowd of several hundred who had paraded the downtown streets with banners and a brass band and then made the city hall plaza their objective. Afterwards he spoke at a meeting of approximately 500 second and third ward voters at Capitol avenue and

FORD SHUTS DOWN INDUSTRIAL PLANT

Thousands Out of Work as Result of Manufacturer's Protest Against High Prices.

Detroit, September 16.—Henry Ford's industrial strike against what he charges are excessive coal prices was in effect tonight and approximately 73,000 of his workmen in Detroit were out of jobs for an indefinite period. Thousands of others in assembling plants throughout the country also were ordered to lay down their tools. In addition, a score or more of small concerns here dependent on the Ford Motor company for orders were preparing to close. These employ upwards of 30,000 men.

The majority of the Ford workers who left the Highland Park plant today, expressed concern over the shut down. Their foremen had handed down to them advice from Mr. Ford to cut their living expenses to a minimum.

No official word came from Mr. Ford or his executives today. The latter said the manufacturer alone knew how long his plants would be closed.

The Detroit board of commerce today offered its assistance to the motor manufacturer in solving its coal problems.

Mr. Ford today refused an offer of 31 cars of coal on the grounds it was not suitable for blast furnace work.

ASA CANDLER, SR. PLANS TO SEVER BANK CONNECTION

Merger Results in Giving Citizens and Southern Bank Total Atlanta Deposits of $30,000,000.

ATLANTA WILL PROFIT, DECLARE OFFICIALS

Citizens and Southern Will Operate Old Central and Branches at the Present Locations.

Involving what is no doubt one of the greatest transactions ever consummated in southern financial circles, the Central Bank and Trust corporation and its two subsidiary banks have been merged with the Citizens' & Southern bank. The merger followed announcement of Asa G. Candler, Sr., that he would retire from active connection with the bank.

Negotiations by which the Central Bank and Trust corporation was absorbed by the Citizens and Southern bank were begun one week ago and concluded at noon Saturday at a meeting of the board of the latter institution.

Announcement of the consolidation comes as a complete surprise not only to the general public, but to the city's financial and commercial interests.

Banks and Candler Confer.

Negotiations were conducted by W. W. Banks, executive manager for the Citizens and Southern, and Asa Candler, Jr., representing the Central. The arrangements follow the decision by Asa G. Candler, president and founder of the Central, to retire from active connection with the banking

Mills B. Lane, president of the Citizens and Southern system of Georgia, came up from Savannah yesterday to sign the papers incident to the transaction.

"The merger will give the Citizens and Southern more than $50,000,000 in deposits, and in the Atlanta office alone, we will have over $30,000,000," said Frank Hawkins, chairman of the board, in discussing the merger.

Legal matters incident to the deal were handled for the Central bank by Candler, Thompson & Hirsch, attorneys, ond for the Citizens and Southern by Attorneys Alston, Alston, Foster & Moise.

Retain Old Location.

"Business will be carried on at the same location, and the force that has served the patrons of the Central Bank and Trust corporation will continue there to take care of and meet their needs and interests in the future."

Union of the two systems marks another of the several forward and upward developments of a great Georgia financial enterprise which in a comparatively few years has reached a magnitude in the financial and banking world that makes it an outstanding figure in the commercial, agricultural and industrial development of the south.

The Citizens and Southern bank has banking establishments in Savannah, Augusta and Macon. It entered the banking and financial field in Atlata in September, 1919, when it absorbed the Th... ...ince that time the g... ...anta office has been steady ...stantial

In addition to its e...mous banking strength the merger will have another attractive feature in the arrangement to afford patrons of the old Candler bank to continue their banking business in the same location as heretofore.

It has been arranged by the Citizens and Southern bank to occupy the present quarters of the Central Bank and Trust corporation, as a North Side branch. The central office of the system will be in the newly-equipped building banking house at present occupied on the corner of Marietta and Broad streets. The name of the old enterprise will cease to exist, and the entire business will be conducted under the style of the "Citizens and Southern bank."

Will Continue Branches.

The banking offices of the Central bank at Mitchell and Forsyth streets and at Peachtree and Tenth streets will operate as subsidiaries of the central office.

Mills B. Lane is president of the entire Citizens and Southern organization. In Atlanta Frank Hawkins is chairman of the board, Carl H Lewis, cashier of the old Candler bank has been named vice president in charge of the central office.

Commenting on the policy of the enlarged Citizens and Southern bank, Mr. Hawkins said:

"I have been in Atlanta in the banking business nearly 30 years, and it has been our constant endeavor to build a fiancial institution that would keep pace with the growing business of our community, and be able to render the greatest amount of service to our people. To that end, we have had a full measure of co-operation from the people we have served, and we hope and expect to continue to merit it."

In a communication addressed to patrons of the Central Bank and Trust corporation announcing the merger and his retirement from active banking connections, Asa G. Candler says:

Candler's Farewell.

"Having reached the conclusion in my own mind to retire from active duties with your bank, I feel a desire to do so in such a manner as not only to insure you a continuation of the present facilities at the location to which you have become accustomed, but also to enlarge for your benefit those facilities and give you the very best opportunity to secure even larger and better service.

"To that end I have made arrangements with the Citizens and Southern bank, by which the large resources and splendid facilities of that bank will be combined with those of the Central Bank and Trust corporation.

"Hereafter, in continuing your business at the old stand, but with the Citizens and Southern bank, you will meet the same men that have made your banking connections so pleasant and satisfactory in the past. Because of the fact that the Citizens and Southern bank is the largest banking institution in the southeast, they will be able to render you even better service than heretofore.

"I desire to thank you most sincerely for the confidence which you have shown in me, and in the institution over which I have presided during the past 16 years, and I bespeak for the Citizens and Southern bank, not only at the offices which it will hereafter maintain in the old offices of the Central Bank and Trust corporation, but at all of its offices, a continuation from each and every one of you of this same confidence and support.

Will Retain Stock.

"Though I will not assume any active duties with our new bank, I will own stock therein, and will always be keenly interested in its progress.

"I am sure that your confidence is merited in the largest degree, and that all of us will be happy in our relations as depositors in our new bank, the Citizens and Southern, the largest and strongest bank in the southeast."

The officials of the Citizens and Southern Bank and its Atlanta offices were announced Saturday as follows:

walk. His walk led him up the hill to the little church of St. John the Evangelist, an edifice which crowns a rising knoll—the church which he served as sexton, where his wife sang as one of the leaders of the choir, where a small but rich congregation worshipped and where Rev. Mr. Hall had been rector for ten years.

Mills said he entered the church and sat down in one of the pews. Near dawn, he said, he got up and returned to his home, to find that his wife had not returned. Again, at 9 o'clock that morning, he said, he wandered back to the church. On the front stoop he met Mrs. Hall, the rector's wife.

She asked him, he said, had he seen her husband. He declared that he countered by telling her his wife was missing. Mrs. Hall then went to the police station.

It was not until nearly 24 hours later today that Raymond Schneider and Pearl Bahmer went to stroll in Russey's Lane, a quaint rustic way known by young swains of the countryside as lovers' lane. The apple tree midway down the lane was the objective of their stroll. And there they found the bodies of the rector and the sexton's wife.

Police differed as to whether footprints found in the dust at the tree roots were made in a struggle. County Detectives also disagreed with Coroner Long that the shooting did not occur under the tree.

Light winds had carried several of the notes and cards some distance from the two bodies. Mills in his statement to the authorities asserted that he had seen several of these letters and declared that they were written by his wife to their children whie she was visiting in the southern part of the state this summer. The detectives declare they were written to the rector.

Letters Found.

"You are a true priest. You see in me merely your physical inspiration. You are the preist. Was Pan religious? God makes his people to enjoy themselves deeply."

Another in the same handwriting read: "Please do not laugh at this, I know I am a crazy cat but I can't be different. Charlotte talks, then Dan asks questions, then he annoys, so how can I write?"

Dan and Charlotte referred to in the note are Mrs. Mills' two children.

Detectives checking up on the movement of Mrs. Mills after she left her home Thursday night learned she was a passenger on an interurban trolley car, which connects New Brunswick and several nearby towns. She rode to the end of the line, which was reached about 8:20 o'clock. The line's end is a short distance from a farm known as the Phillips place which borders Russey's Lane.

Promise Arrest.

County authorities promised that an arrest would be made in a few hours, but declined to say whether the person would be man or woman.

Coroner Long in a statement said: "There is no doubt this was a double-murder. The shots entered the body in such a way that any theory that one of the pair shot the other and then committed suicide is absurd. I am of the opinion that the murder was not committed where the bodies were found but that the bodies were transferred to the spot in an automobile."

"I have not the slightest idea who committed the crime," said County Detective George Totten, after he had questioned Mills.

BRITISH TROOPS GUARD DARDANELLES

relief workers are attempting unaided the super-human task of ministering to the dead and dying.

Up to tonight, the British foreign office had received no news of loss of life among British subjects.

Bands of Turks are heartlessly killing the helpless Christians who still exist among the blackened masonry of what once was Smyrna. The city itself no longer exist, only a small vestige of the Turkish quarters remaining. The whole city of 200,000 persons is in the throes of terror. Rescue work being carried on alone by six Americans, is preceeding slowly, the Kemalists leaving the victims to their fate.

For three days fire has raged trough the city and now is eating its way in the suburbs.

Hospital Patients Dead.

All the patients crowded in hospitals at the time numbering not less than a thousand, have been burned to death.

All relief supplies sent from Constantinople by the American relief organizations were destroyed by the fire. Major Laffin Davis, of the American Red Cross, and H. C. Jacquith, of the Far East Relief, are bending all their efforts to evacuate the Christians as the only means of saving them, but are handicapped by lack of vessels.

The catastrophe is so vast that only the collective efforts of the allied nations can cope with it. When the fire was at its worst the American destrowers Lawrence and Litchfield were almost swamped by thousands of maddened survivors, who plunged into the water in the darkenss of night and swam out to the vessels, imploring piteously to be saved. The American bluejackets rescued hundreds from drowning.

U. S. Flag Only Hope.

The American sailors ashore were obliged to hold off great crowds at the point of bayonets in order to keep them from the frail destroyers. The flag was hoisted on the quay and the bluejackets went among the panic-stricken people, picking out those with American citizenship papers.

The American flag was like a beacon of hope, hundreds that could speak a few words of English claimed to have been in the United States, but could show no satisfactory proof. Others said they had relatives in America. The Americans, however, were forced to turn a deaf ear to these appeals. The big-hearted bluejackets were overcome with emotion at the distressing scenes and did their best to comfort the terrorized women and children, even giving up their own bed rolls, clothing and rations.

Commander Merrill, aide to Rear Admiral Bristol, is hailed as a hero, men and women and children falling on their knees and kissing his garments as he passes through the refugee concentration areas.

BRITAIN CALLS COLONIES TO AID.

BY LLOYD ALLEN.

London, September 16.—Great Britain will throw all the forces of the empire into defense of the Dardanelles.

Threat of a holy war was met by the government tonight with a call to all British colonies to join in keeping the armies of Mustapha Kemal beyond the frontier of the neutral zone.

The straits of the Dardanelles are to be kept open and free at all cost.

France and Italy have agreed to join the defense and Britain is authoritatively reported to have invited Rumania, Serbia and Greece to participate.

Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, whose overseas forces came to the empire's aid in the war against Germany, will be asked to once more throw their support into battle, if necessary, against a common foe.

An army of a million men may be raised by the allies to meet Mustapha Kemal's threatened drive against Constantinople and the straits.

Against this gathering allied force, the Ottoman commander, having crushed the Greeks, is reported to be lining up Moslems and to be negotiating with soviet Russia and Bulgaria.

Arabs to Rise.

At the same time word was received here that all the Arab-speaking countries of the Near East will take the first clash of Moslem arms with those of Britain as a signal to rise and strike for independence.

Syria, Palestine, Egypt, Mesopotamia and Arabia will revolt and proclaim complete independence and possibly aid the Turks in their war with Britain, if one comes.

A move by Mustapha Kemal across the neutral border towards the straits will be the signal for war, it is agreed here.

Lloyd George this afternoon met informally with various members of the cabinet outlining a proposed line of action which will throw against Kemal the entire resources of the empire.

Call For Anzacs.

The dominions have been invited, it was stated, because of their enormous sacrifices at the Dardanelles during the world war. At that time, it was Mustapha Kemal who led the Turkish forces which defeated the British.

The Anzacs will be called upon to wipe out that defeat and insure forever the freedom of the straits for which they fought in 1915, when Winston Churchill's disastrous expedition was sent against overwhelming odds.

Great Britain has called for a definite show-down and has thrown all her cards on the table in her action. More reinforcements were ordered to the neutral zone east of Constantinople.

Another Crusade.

The British action, it was stated, authoritatively, is more than a defense against Mustapha Kemal. It is her utmost effort to insure effective and permanent freedom of the straits. Lloyd George has virtually called for another crusade against the Moslems.

Bulgaria has declared she will remain neutral in the struggle, but Greece, Serbia and Rumania are apprehensive of a Turkish-Bulgarian alliance. Agents of Mustapha Kemal are reported to be in Sofia, conferring with Bulgarian cabinet heads.

Russia's attitude is uncertain and causing grave apprehension. The soviet armies in the Caucasus were reported in unconfirmed dispatches to be concentrating for a move to aid the Ottoman forces. Russian officials here declare her attitude is that of a neutral power interested only in seeing that the Turks get Constantinople, to which they are entitled in the bolshevik mind, and that the straits are kept open to to shipping but closed to warships.

British warships have landed troops and an airplane squadron at Constantinople, while the Mediterranean fleet maneuvers near the entrance to the Dardanelles.

CANADA TO RUSH REPLY.

Ottawa, Can., September 16.—Canada will be the first among the dominions of the British empire to answer the mother country's call for counsel and support in the crisis in the near east.

A special meeting of the dominion cabinet council will be held Monday ... which time Canada's answer to Premier Lloyd Geoge's invitation to participate in possible military movements about Constantinople will be drawn up. The cabinet council will be presided over by Premier McKenzie.

Every effort is being made tonight to secure a full meeting of the cabinet, many of the members now being out of the city.

Sir George Graham, minister of militia, is not in Ottawa today, but will return to the capital tomorrow. The formal invitation from Premier Lloyd George has not yet reached Ottawa, but private cables have been received here by members of the government outlining its contents.

WILL AMERICA BE DRAWN IN?

BY LAWRENCE MARTIN.

Washington, September 16.—Will America be drawn into the near east crisis with its menace of a new world war?

Will this government, if such a war appears inevitable, intervene in European affairs in an effort to preserve peace?

These questions were agitating official Washington today, as word came of the British decision to throw every resource as a barrier against a Turkish invasion of Europe.

In the highest official quarters, the queries evoked this answer:

"The United States government is at this time considering only the problem of relieving the plight of American citizens and other refugees in the war zone, in concert with other governments, and is, as at all times, prepared to safeguard the lives and interests of American nationals."

In other words, the government, as such, is not even thinking of the possibility of involvement, either against its will or as a mediator.

Official Reticent.

Because of the comparative suddenness with which the present crisis around Constantinople developed, and also because President Harding and his official family have not formally discussed it, officials were extremely reticent even with their personal views.

Even in congress there was an unusual but marked unwillingness to discuss possibilities, although on every hand the statement was made that the United States would keep out, because the American people would never sanction participation in a purely European quarrel.

One high official who has an intimate knowledge of both Near Eastern and European politics, declared that the situation was so full of possibilities that anyone who attempted at this time to predict what would come out of it would probably guess wrong.

The same official said that the thing for the United States to do is to keep its feet on the ground and be careful.

American officials have their own opinions concerning the responsibility for the present trouble, but these they are keeping to themselves. Even Senator Borah, usually outspoken on international matters, declined to be quoted.

All officials were eagerly reading every scrap of news from the trouble area. United Press dispatches were sent to President Harding at the white house.

Terrific Menace.

With the victorious Mustapha Kemal dominating Asia Minor, soviet Russia and nationalist Turks stand as a menace to the whole of Europe and a great part of Asia, in the opinion of competent diplomatic and military observers here tonight.

Russia and Turkey are in a close-knit alliance—how close is not generally recognized—and the trimumphant victory of the Turks is doubly significant when it is realized that the armies of these two countries are joined together in a potential union constituting one of the strongest, if not the strongest, military organization in all Europe, observers here pointed out.

By the treaty of Moscow of March 16, 1921, between Soviet Russia and Natilanist Turkey, both countries pledge almost blanket support to the other in their various plans and in opposing Greek and allied encroachments in Turkey. It also provided for joint action to prevent the execution of the treaty of Sevres in Turkey.

Russia Aids Turks.

Files of this government are full of official reports of aid extended by Bolshevist Russia to Turkey in the latter's war with Greece.

Mustapha Kemal got money, munitions, cannon, ships and every character of war supplies from the soviets.

According to official advices here, Article VIII. of a separate military agreement, the text of which has never been published, provided that Russia was to put at the disposal of Kemal units of the eleventh bolshevist army in the Caucasus, and military experts were to draw up plans for a "simultaneous attack against Constantinople and Mesopotamia."

Another Great War?

1. A drive by the soviet armies on Constantinople through Rumania, with the Turks moving on the Porte city from the Asiatic side. This would undoubtedly be the most serious possible consequence. The Russians would come into collision with the strong military organizations of the "Little Entente," the principal allied powers would throw themselves into the breach to stop the Russians and Turks, and another general European-Asiatic war probably would be started.

2. A general Turko-Russian movement in the east, with its principal purpose to foment rebellion and revolution among discontented Moslem populations, under the rule or protection of the big powers.

YOUNG BOY HURT BY AUTOMOBILE

Verner Thompson, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Thompson, who lives on an R. F. D. route of Morrisville, is at Grady hospital suffering from a broken leg, and several bruises about the head and body as a result of being struck by an automobile driven by M. B. Thomas, 396 Rawson street, Saturday afternoon on Gilmer street.

According to witnesses the litttle boy was attempting to cross Gilmer street after his father, who had just stepped from his automobile and crossed to the north side of the street to his produce stand beside the City Auditorium. Mr. Thompson is a truck farmer and had brought his family to town to aid in selling his produce at the trade market. Charges of reckless driving have been preferred against Mr. Thomas. Witnesses stated further that he was driving at a moderate rate of speed.

MARKET BUILDING URGED BY FARMERS

Approximately 100 members of the Curb Market Farmers' association, headed by Mrs. Irving Thomas, former president of the Atlanta Women's club, called on Mayor Key at city hall Saturday. The farmers expressed their gratitude to the mayor for his efforts in behalf of a municapal market and requested him to urge before the expiration of his term of office acceptance of architect's plans for a market building and a method of financing its erection.

"We also desire that this market be named and known as the Key market, as a slight token of the fearless and splendid fight that you have made in the interest of this market for the benefit of Atlanta's people," the farmers told him.

Mayor Key expressed his appreciation and replied that he expected to do everything within his power to bring about a plan for erection of the proposed market building.

In the meantime stens are afoot to build a large temporary shed on the market property, which is a block bounded by Edgewood avenue, Bell, Butler and Boaz streets, in order that the farmers may sell their products under a roof.

Odd Fellows Suspend Meetings While Hall Is Being Refurnished

Extensive alterations are being made to the interior of the Odd Fellows lodge room at the southeast corner of Alabama and Broad streets.

The entire hall is being remodeled, refurnished and painted and brought up to date in every way. New stairways are being built and the building otherwise being improved.

During these alterations and improvements there will not be any meetings held in the hall, but as soon as the work is completed the various lodges meeting there will resume their meetings with renewed activity.

The men are not wanted for offenses in Atlanta but for alleged misues of the mails in other southern cities, particularly in Florida.

Grotto Carnival Will Continue Another Week

The Miller Brothers' carnival, showing under the auspices of the Ararat Grotto patrol will continue its engagement on the seven-acre lot on Stewart avenue another week, it was announced Saturday.

The same program schedules will be maintained during the remainder of the engagement, and the same stellar attractions that have been featured since the premier showing a week ago will be continued.

During the last week crowds of patrons numbering well up into the thousands visited the concessions. The management, after plans had been made to move Saturday night, decided to play another week when the crowds showed no signs of diminishing the later part of the week.

Members of the patrol are on the grounds every night, and supervise most of the detail incident to the concessions, which include variety shows, minstrel and game concessions of every description.

New $400,000 Apartment Building Will Go Up Immediately on Peachtree

Announcement that a new $400,000 apartment building will be erected immediately on the southwest corner of Peachtree and Sixth streets, by the Real Estate Investment corporation, was made Saturday by Forrest Adair, of the Adair Realty and Trust corporation.

The structure will occupy almost the entire lot which fronts 100 feet on Peachtree street, with a frontage of approximately 200 feet on Sixth street. When completed it will be one of the finest apartment houses in the south, and will compare favorably with the higher type buildings in the east. Of Georgian style architecture, the building will have 50 suites, ranging from one to four rooms each.

"The erection of this newer type apartment building is an index of the demand in Atlanta for better living accommodations afforded by an apartment of this character. We anticipate completion of the building by April 15. Adair Realty and Trust company will have complete charge of the renting of the building.

Artistic Structure.

"The handsome building will be constructed of reinforced concrete and steel, which will render it as substantial and fireproof as any office building. Located in one of the most exceilent residential sections of the city, the building itself, with its lawn and artistic setting of shrubbery will lend an imposing aspect to this already picturesque section of Peachtree.

"Hentz, Reid & Adler, architects for the Howard theater, the George Muse building, and for the M. Rich & Bros. new building now under course of construction, have designed and planned the new apartment.

"The Georgian style of architecture is carried out by the use of colonial red brick for the exterior finish of the building. The beauty of the building is further enhanced by the magnificent entrance of stone with limestone base.

Will Be Sound Proof.

"The construction of the floors and walls will render the building absolutely sound proof. The most unusual feature of the building is the fact that practically all the apartments occupy corner locations, made possible by careful planning of wide, spacious courts which provide an abundance of air and light.

"Embodying the best features of the exclusive apartment houses in the larger eastern cities, this building will be equipped with switchboard connection to each apartment and will maintain at all hours an operator. A beautifully appointed cafe with seating capacity for eighty will be provided on the dining floor with entrance on Sixth street.

"Because of the ever increasing demand for small apartments with hotel service, the units involved embrace from one to four rooms only, including living room, bedroom, bath, kitchenette and sun parlor, which is convertible into a breakfast room.

"The construction of the building has been awarded to Adair & Senter, one of the largest engineers and builders in the south, whose excellent record in construction work of this character insures the successful outcome of this immense project."

PASCO TOOL CO. IS ENJOYING NOW INCREASING TRADE

"If it's a tool we've got it," is the very timely slogan of the Pasco Tool company, at 10 North Broad street, for veritably it appears that not a tool of any description fails to be stocked on their shelves. Just now the company is remodeling its store, installing new fixtures, and re-arranging its stock, and within a few days will have everything in spick and span order.

"The great building program which is already on for Atlanta, to say nothing of the great amount of work that has been going on in the past," said John G. Pasco, head of the tool house that hears his name, "is telling in the trade it has brought us. Of course, while we sell all manner of tools for carpenters and other workers of like character, we carry in stock practically every tool made, regardless of its purpose. We are looking for a large trade during the fall months."

Mr. Pasco is one of the city's well-known business men. He has been engaged in the tool business in Atlanta for six years, and has been intimately identified with the tool business for 23 years. He is perhaps the best authority on tools in the south. Mr. Pasco has many friends who will be glad to know of his splendidly increasing business. He is an active worker in many civic clubs, a member of the Civitans and Yaarab temple, and is always ready to do his full share of work when the welfare of the city is at stake.

FOUR BOYS AND GIRLS SOUGHT BY POLICE

The girls are Myrtle Goodman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Goodman, and Mary Eich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. N. Eich, both families reside at 70 Woodward avenue, according to the report at police station.

The girls, according to police information, are supposed to havze disappeared in company with a boy named Johnson and one named Bruce. The police have not ascertained the given name nor initials of either of the boys, nor their addresses.

Home Comfort with Economy

LOTH'S HOT-BLAST

The entire outside surface is of metal and radiates heat in all directions. The down-draft burns all the gases that escape as smoke in under-draft heaters, as well as the coal, so that none of the fuel is wasted.

That is why Loth's Hot Blast gives more heat on soft coal than ordinary heaters give on anthracite and saves one-third on your fuel bill.

3 MEMBERS BOLT TWIGGS ELECTION

Consolidated Votes Filed by Seven Committeemen After Three Withdraw. Expect Minority Report.

Jeffersonville, Ga., September 16. (Special.)—What is designated as "the official consolidation" of the vote of Twiggs county was announced this afternoon by W. C. Stokes, clerk of superior court, and is attested by the chairman of the county democratic executive committee. However, a minority consolidation report has been prepared by three members of the committee, who are said to have withdrawn from the meeting Thursday, taking some of the ballot boxes with them.

The minority committee consists of S. E. Jones, A. J. Land and W. G. Mercer. The full committee, consisting of ten, met Thursday in accordance with custom to count the vote. Agreement as to methods could not be reached, it is learned, and the trio withdrew, taking some of the boxes along.

After they had gone the remaining seven declared themselves the majority committee, elected a chairman and counted the vote in those boxes which were left, reckoning them officially as the full vote. Their count was attested by their chairman, and filed as the official consolidation.

Messrs. Jones, Land and Mercer are to file their minority report, it is understood.

Following is the report which the court clerk declared official: For governor, Baylor 3, Hardwick 171, Walker 113; commissioner of agriculture, A. O. Blalock 88, J. J. Brown 153, O. M. Houser 34; state school superintendent, N. H. Ballard 111, M. L. Duggan 105, Nicholas M. Sowder 10; prison commissioner, W. C. Bryant 131, R. E. Davison 146; railroad commissioner, M. L. Johnson 63, Walter R. McDonald 144, J. E. Palmer 32; railroad commissioner, Bankston 65, Bush 38, Perry 160; chief justice supreme court, William H. Fish 43, Richard B. Russell 234; judge court of appeals R. C. Bell 243, Harper Hamilton 52; representatives, F. J. Ray 151, F. C. Wimberly 136. The minority report could not be produced.

Burglars Take Ladies' Clothes And Diamonds

Enter Three Homes Saturday Night and List Jeweler Among Victims.

Sixteen lavallierres set with diamonds, a dozen gold watches, 36 secret order buttons and ladies wearing apparel, were listed among the items missing in three burglaries reported to the city detectives bureau Saturday night.

The home of C. J. Hampton, 23 Washington street, was entered and a guest of Mr. Hamilton's who was contemplating going into the jewelry business in Atlanta, according to the police report, discovered his trunk had been looted and most of his sample stock carried away.

Mrs. T. Cline, who said burglars entered her home through the back door by means of a skeleton pass key Saturday night while she was away, reported the loss of three dresses, a coat suit and a pistol.

B. Fields, 310 S. Jackson street, said that when he opened the front door of his house and entered he found the place turned topsy-turvy, and a kodak, two men's suits, a lady's suit and dress, and other articles of wearing apparel missing.

Detectives were sent to investigate the premises of all three victims. No arrests were made.

POLICE CLEAN-UP PLEDGED BY SIMS

Haygood street. W. A. Hansell and C. S. Robert, opposing candidates for chief of construction, also spoke.

The speaker accused Woodward of having insulted and "double crossed" union labor while he was in office in 1916. He reminded his hearers that "Woodward invited a labor delegation to his office and then insulted them. Not satisfied at insulting them he tried to assault them with an ink bottle."

"I reiterate with all the emphasis of my soul," continued the speaker, "that the police ring put Woodward in this race. They used one of their gang—a bootlegger—to pay Woodward's entrance fee—one of the gang I have been trying to rid the city of for two years.

"The only time Woodward ever tried to clean up was when he was locked up for having a pistol and being drunk and he had Ball fired as chief of police."

Denies Compromise.

Mr. Sims said he had heard of reports originating in the enemy camp that he had entered a compromise with the police heads. "That's false," he declared. "I have made no deal with these officers. I would be a fool to do so when I've got them beat to a frazzle. If I am elected mayor I propose to reorganize the police and detective departments so that Atlanta may live in a city free from the taint of corruption."

He also replied to the charge by his opponent that Walter Taylor would be the mayor in fact if Sims won.

"Walter Taylor won't have any more influence with me than the humblest citizen in the city," he asserted. "Woodward is probably living over in his mind the time when Walter Taylor, as his secretary, carried on the business of the office when he would become incapacitated.'

To the citizens at both rallies Mr. Sims expressed his conviction that the people of Atlanta are with him as he fights for principle against ring domination of the city's affairs.

At the city hall rally Mr. Sims was introduced by Rev. Caleb A. Ridley.

Have you seen a team, a driver, a foreman, a guard, and two prisoners repairing sidewalks when one man could do the work equally as well? That work is being done by the street department of which my opponent is the head.

REFUSES EVIDENCE AGAINST DAUGHERTY

Washington, September 16.—Declination of Representative Keller, republican, Minnesota, to present evidence today in support of his impeachment charges against Attorney-General Daugherty, as the result of the rail strike injunction, brought about an adjournment of the house judiciary committee after an hour's session at which it heard Mr. Keller present a general preliminary statement.

The Minnesota representative, after presenting his statement in which he declared he desired only "to preserve the dignity and integrity of the institutions of the United States" in bringing his charges, was questioned at length by republican members of the committee, who demanded that he present evidence to sustain what Chairman Volstead described as general charges. This brought on a wrangle which ended with adjournment of the committee until Tuesday, when Mr. Keller was instructed to appear with any witnesses he desired to have testify.

CHARGES GRAFT IN RESERVE BANK BUILDING COSTS

Washington, September 16.—Attacking Governor Harding of the federal reserve board and "Wall street" again today in the senate, Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, expressed belief that there was millions of graft in the new buildings erected by four of the federal reserve banks.

He also charged that a secret canvass of the senators was being made to ascertain whether Mr. Harding could be confirmed if reappointed to the reserve board.

The Alabama senator declared former Governor Harding while head of the federal banking system "permitted four bank officials to set aside $49,000,000 for four bank buildings," and added that $30,000,000 of this amount if not spent for new buildings would have gone into the treasury.

"I think there's graft in that amount by millions," Senator Heflin added, declaring also that Mr. Harding had "taught" reserve bank officers how "to beat the government" out of franchise taxes amounting to $183,000,000.

Should Mr. Harding be reappointed, Senator Heflin said he would present information which would "shock the confidence of senators in his integrity."

The senator called attention to a statement in a Washington newspaper today that correspondents in the senate press gallery left when he started to speak, and referred to the correspondents as "quill drivers" and suggested regulation of the press gallery.

Gump's Race for Congress

PRESS GALLERY DIVIDED ON CANDIDACY

Stirs Political Washington

Andrew Gump's candidacy for congress has not only shaken the political structure from Rabun Gap to Tybee Light, but it has accomplished the impossible. It has made Washington, D. C. sit up and take notice of things political.

Normally Washington cares no more for a congressional race than a Decatur street darky cares about the snowfall in Iceland. A congressman in Washington attracts about as much attention as a mule team in Buckhead. A congressman's ups and downs mean the same thing to Washington as the goings and coming of a scrub woman in a downtown office building.

But now we are face to face with these facts. Political forecasters in Washington, who ordinarily pay no attention to anyone of lower order than the chairman of the house committee on ways and means or the chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, have become all het up over the Gump candidacy.

Everybody "Het Up."

Rife speculation is being indulged in by all the famous commentators. Here, for instance, is how the Gump announcement has affected some of those who sit in the seats of the mighty in the press galleries:

"So they shake Andy down for five hundred fish—and he ain't scratched the surface yet," moans Francis P. Daily, representing the Baltimore American. "When they finish with Mr. Andrew Gump they'll have Truman H. Newberry looking like a piker in the poorhouse. Why, five hundred bucks won't pay for six political letters—in Maryland, or Michigan, either, for that matter. Wait'll they put the rollers under this cartoon baby. They'll have all the gold out of his false teeth and second trust on Uncle Bim's bankroll. Now if Andy will come out—flat-footed, like a duck with no beels—for light wines and beer, and o'course ultimately some red likker, he ought to clean up in any election."

Fraser Edwards, Philadelphia Public Ledger: "Although the cartoonist fails to reveal the identity of the other candidate under consideration by the non-partisan committee, I am for him or her against Andy Gump. He always has his mouth open. There are already too many suffering from such an affliction in congress. But that's the way they seem to get there, so I suppose he will romp in. What the country needs is more men in congress like Senator Newberry—with throat trouble."

"Should Give It Away."

Isaac Gregg, New York Sun: "In the opinion of those who claim to have felt the pulse of the voter, Gump should not overlook the question which is agitating the country and the Literary Digest at this moment, viz—light wines and beer. Personally, I think it would be a great mistake for Mr. Gump to align himself with the liquor forces which are trying to wreck the country. I think it would be disastrous beyond words for him to come out in favor of the modification of the Volstead act and permit the sale of light wines and beer. It would be a mistake to allow their sale. They should be given away."

J. S. Barry, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, holds the mournful view that success at the polls would mean the passing of Mr. Gump from public interest, but believes he should be

Peter Knorr, of the Central News, cynically suggests that Andy's ambitions probably are based on the "apparent ease with which other members of congress have been elected." From J. Benentt Gordon, publicity manager of the Republican national committee, comes the ambiguous statement that anyone running on an independent ticket would be A. Gump, while former Congressman Cordell Hull, chairman of the democratic committee, runs true to form by prophesying that unless Gump seeks election as a democrat, he will certainly go down to defeat.

NEGRO ARRESTED AS FIRE SUSPECT

Sparta, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—As a result of investigations of fires of alleged incendiary origin made this week by J. Albert Sharp, state tire inspector, and H. C. Hutchens, attorney, Will Flagg, colored, has been arrested under a warrant issued by the fire inspector in connection with the burning of a store a few months ago.

It is believed arrests in connection with other fires will follow in a few days. Messrs. Sharp and Hutchens left Sparta Saturday afternoon for Sandersville to investigate the origin of fires in Washington county alleged to be the work of firebugs.

BOY BADLY HURT BY LICK ON HEAD IN BICYCLE FUSS

Waycross, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—Peter George, Jr., age 14, is in a local hospital suffering from a fractured skull and Jack Jolley, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Jolley, is in the city jail pending an investigation of the difficulty between the two boys, alleged to have been the result of a quarrel over a bicycle.

An operation was performed at a local hospital and parts of the broken skull were removed. At a late hour today young George was reported resting easy. According to Mrs. Stirakis, sister of the injured boy, the Jolley boy picked up a stick lying in the street and hit her brother over the temple. Mrs. Stirakis states that her brother must have remained unconscious for 30 or 40 minutes when regaining cosciousness he came in the house and looked in the glass discovering for the first time that his temple was covered with blood.

ALLEN FOUND GUILTY ON TREASON CHARGE

Charlestown, W. Va., September 16.—Walter Allen, who was indicted in connection with the march of armed miners from Kanawha to Logan county, in the southern West Virginia coal fields last summer, was found guilty of treason by a jury today. The verdict carried a recommended sentence of ten years in the penitentiary.

The first discovery of a disease producing bacteria was made by the French pathologist, Davaine, in 1854, in a study of sheep anthrax.

TWO DEAD, THREE MISSING, IN FIRE

New Orleans Blaze Causes Property Loss Estimated at Over Seven and Half Million.

New Orleans, September 16.—The casualty list, as a result of the fire which last night swept the Mississippi front at the United States army base supply warehouse, causing an estimated loss in excess of $7,500,000, tonight stood at two dead and three missing.

Although a continuous search has been made for the bodies of two sailors of the German freight steamship Elsa Hugo Stinnes, who were declared by members of the crew of that vessel to have lost their lives during the fire, no trace of them had been found tonight. Three other members of the crew were reported missing.

Army officers estimated today that the loss to the government through the destruction of the commodity wharves, steel sheds and ordnance supplies stored on the wharves would reach $5,571,441. Other losses were placed approximately at $2,000,000.

The steamship Elsa Hugo Stinnes, which was moored at the army base wharf when the fire started, was damaged about $50,000, officers of the ship estimated. The steamship Florence Luckenbach suffered to the extent of $30,000.

Members of the state dock board visited the scene of the fire today and found that the wharf and the two-story steel and metal shed were a total loss. It was stated that not even the piling upon which the structure was built could be salvaged.

As a result of the fire other quarters will have to be found for 7,000 of the visitors to the American Legion convention next month. It had been planned to house that number of men in the wharf shed.

COMMANDANT NAMED FOR ATHENS SCHOOL

Athens, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—Although for a while there was considerable opposition at Washington to the recognition of the military work done at the Athens high school, the war department has at last placed it upon the accredited list and Major Hunter Harris, brother of Senator William J. Harris, Georgia senior senator at Washington, will be in command there.

Major Harris also is a brother of General Peter Harris, and is at present a recruiting officer in Atlanta. He is now on the retired list, but as soon as he reaches Athens he will again become a full-fledged officer.

The Athens high school opened here this week with an enrollment of 541 students, or an increase of 148 students over the number in attendance there last year.

Lewis Russell Had Large Part In Justice Race

LEWIS C. RUSSELL.

The important part of campaign manager is often overlooked in the success and personality of the winning candidate; but it may be said, while Judge Russell is widely and well-known over Georgia, the splendid work of Lewis Russell contributed in no small degree to his brother's overwhelming election.

Lewis Russell is a graduate of the University of Georgia, class of 1891, and he has many friends all over the state, who were prompt in responding to his requests for assistance in the campaign. He has been engaged in the practice of law for 25 years, so is well-known to the lawyers of Georgia, many of whom strongly supported his brother. He is an active, energetic and enthusiastic worker, untiring in his effort, and he never let up for a minute during the entire campaign. He was the first in headquarters in the morning and the last to leave at night. He had entire charge of the correspondence and wrote several thousand letters in connection with his brother's campaign.

Two things of which Mr. Russell is especially proud in connection with the campaign, he states, are that this is the first time in a quarter of a century that a supreme court justice ever got on that bench without first being appointed by the governor; and, in the second place that in the entire correspondence from headquarters, or with which he had anything to do, never once was it mentioned that Judge Russell had an opponent in the race. There was never one word said in the entire campaign correspondence about Judge Fish. Mr. Russell states, nor was his name even mentioned in any letter written in connection with the contest.

Mr. Russell has been widely complimented upon the fine work he did in his brother's behalf, and he is naturally very proud of the successful termination of the campaign.

NO VOTES TOSSED OUT SAYS HAUNSON

Chairman of City Democratic Committee Issues Sweeping Denial of Chapman's Charges.

John P. Haunson, chairman of the city democratic executive committee, came forward Saturday with an emphatic denial that any ballots were thrown out in the city election of September 6, as charged by H. K. Chapman.

"The charge is absolutely untrue," he stated. "No vote was tossed out at the election. Every vote was counted and then sealed in the ballot boxes which were deposited with the clerk of Fulton county superior court to remain 30 days from September 6.

"I have tried to avoid a controversy with Mr. Chapman. I went so far as to mail him a copy of the rules of the executive committee so that he might read and see for himself that the election was conducted in accordance with the instructions they prescribe.

"I have never seen the registration list of oaths from Registrar Richardson's office. No one has any right to take it away. Mr. Chapman's charges which he persists in making are positively false."

Irregularities in the counting of ballots were charged by Mr. Chapman last Sunday at the Wesley Memorial church. Saturday he preferred additional accusations.

He now claims that he was told by a member of the subcommittee of the city executive committee, S. A. Hollingsworth, that 119 citizens who were permitted to cast their ballots late in the afternoon on the presentation of certificates, did not succeed in getting their votes counted because the subcommittee threw them out.

He declares further that he is convinced there was a "well-laid" plot between certain candidates for election and certain members of the executive committee, and that plot consisted in securing first the original registration list of oaths from Mr. Richardson's office, which was done successfully—then having destroyed enough votes of the opponents of their candidates—call into existence an old rule, said by City Attorney Mayson to have passed in 1912."

WALKER DELEGATES APPOINTED IN WARE

Waycross, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—The following supporters of Governor-Elect Walker have been selected by his friends and the county executive committee as delegates to the state convention to be held in Macon October 4.

W. D. Youmans, chairman; J. L. Walker, Dr. J. M. Taylor, L. J. Smith, W. E. Sirmans, O. L. McQuaig, C. H. Sweat, R. F. Milligan, John L. Youmans, Jules James, H. J. Herrin, Calvin W. Parker, C. H. Lowther, Banks Bennett, M. D. L. Ray, W. B. Stovall, R. L. Falligant, H. D. Reed and Jerome Crawley.

Mr. Reed and Mr. Crawley were supporters of Mr. Hardwick, but, in view of the fact that the contest over the judgeship between Summerall and Quincey will be taken to the convention, and as they are acting as attorneys for Judge Summerall in this contest, the Walker supporters very gracefully agreed to allow them to go on the Ware delegation.

C. P. Jacobsen of A. & P., Back From Long Auto Trip

Traveled 12,000 Miles in Four Months' Time—He Visited His Son in San Francisco.

C. P. Jacobsen, general superintendent of the south and the southeast for the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, has just returned to Atlanta after a four-months' motor tour of the west and northwest, visiting enroute his son, Otto Jacobsen, at San Francisco, one of the outstanding figures among the young business men of the west.

Mr. Jacobsen has made Atlanta his headquarters for 16 years. With his return he will again take up actively the directing of work development contemplated by the A. & P. company all over the south. For forty years Mr. Jacobsen has been connected with the A. & P. company. Ten or 12 years ago he became superintendent of the big division now under his direction, and has met with signal success in the management of the affairs of this big chain of stores.

To Push Business.

The company, under Mr. Jacobsen's direction, expects to commence immediately the development of their business in the south and southeast just as it has been highly developed in other sections of the country. At present the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company is operating around 7,000 stores all over the United States. It is the purpose of the company, so its officials state, to establish a large number of stores in the south. Many more will be added to Atlanta, where 21 are now conducted—in fact, company officials declare they expect to have no less than 75 in this city before there will be any let-up in their work.

Every large city, and many of the smaller ones, are to feel the work of their general development, which will cover all the territory under Mr. Jacobsen's direction. New stores are to be established just as fast as it is practicable to do so.

In order to facilitate the work of the big chain of stores in and around this city, the company has recently secured the big building formerly used by the Hanson Motor Car company in turning out the bodies for its cars. It is a large storehouse, amply suited for warerooms for Atlanta territory for the big tea company.

Jacobsen's Assistants.

Assisting Mr. Jacobsen in his work are B. F. Vinson, superintendent, O. I. Black and W. A. Terry, assistant superintendents. Mr. Vinson has been with the chain of stores for many years. Last year he successfully opened up the territory in Savannah, and has shown his executive ability in many outstanding ways. As superintendent he is one of Mr. Jacobsen's most able assistants.

Mr. Black, assistant superintendent, has charge of all territory in north Atlanta and the outlying towns in that direction. He has been with the company about five years, was formerly manager of the Whitehall street store, and has proven his ability in many ways.

Mr. Terry, also an assistant superintendent, has charge of the south Atlanta territory and outlying districts. He comes from Louisville, Ky., and has for a number of years been connected with the company, being manager in other cities in former years of the old-line stores formerly conducted by the company.

Visited Their Son.

Mr. Jacobsen was accompanied on his trip by Mrs. Jacobsen. In the four months' trip they traveled about 12,000 miles, and encountered some rather thrilling experiences.

C. P. JACOBSEN,

Superintendent of South and Southeast for the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea company.

One of the chief purposes, however, of the trip was to visit their son, Otto Jacobsen, at San Francisco. The son is well known in Atlanta, where he spent several years in school and college. He is now only 24 years of age, but holds a large and responsible position, being the superintendent and district manager of the entire west and Honolulu for the Westinghouse Electric company.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacobsen are justly proud of the wonderful rise in the business world made by their son, and he has a host of Atlanta friends who will be interested in knowing of the splendid success he has attained in the west.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacobsen left Atlanta early in May. Every part of the west which holds anything of interest was visited by them. They enjoyed trips through Yellowstone park and other national parks. They motored entirely through the state of California. Then they visited North and South Dakota, returning via Canada and Chicago. A most remarkable thing in connection with the long trip was its freedom from automobile worries. The only trouble reported in the 12,000-mile trip was four punctures. Not a penny was spent for any repairs of any kind on his Hupmobile touring car, says Mr. Jacobsen, and the entire trip was made on the same set of tires they started with. They drove into Atlanta a few days ago with their tires showing life enough yet for a good long while.

Shot at by Bandits.

One of the thrills of the trip, according to Mr. Jacobsen, came when they crossed the great American desert. The sun was baking like an oven. It was so warm, he says, that the water boiled continually over the radiator, and it was impossible to hold one's hand on any part of the metal of the car. However, as the occupants glided along protected by the top from the rays of the sun, they suffered no ill effects, they say.

A rifle bullet through the rear glass of the automobile evidences the close call Mr. Jacobsen received as he motored through South Dakota. It was while driving near Bandits' Cave, in a section where six vigilantes had just been lynched before the Atlantans passed through. Without any provocation whatever, two young men stepped from the bushes as Mr. Jacobsen's car passed along and fired at him. Evidently they had mistaken him for some enemy. They disappeared immediately, and Mr. Jacobsen and his wife could only drive about twenty miles into the nearest town and report it.

However, a hole through the rear glass of the car, only about two inches to the right of the driver's head, is mute testimony of the very close call Mr. Jacobsen had.

SMYRNA IS TURNED INTO CITY OF DEATH

Smyrna, September 16.—A city of death and embers and ghouls housed the victorious Turks tonight while terror-stricken refugees crowded on the seawall in miserable panic. Allied vessels still were taking off survivors of the fire and massacre which Ottoman forces visited upon the hapless city after its capture.

Probably five thousand Christians fell under the Turkish sword or perished in the flames that have laid waste to two-thirds of the entire port city.

The next move of Mustapha Kemal, whose forces are resting on their swords with eyes turned towards Constantinople, was awaited anxiously. Turkish cavalry scouts were reported to be within a few miles of the neutral zone, entrance to which will mean war with Britain and may involve the whole Moslem world.

AMERICAN RELIEF ALREADY ETENDED.

Washington, September 16.—American relief is already being extended to the destitute and panic-stricken victims of the Smyrna district.

Even before the Turkish hordes rushed into the city to set it in flames and massacre its inhabitants, the American Red Cross was on the ground with a medical unit, equipped with all available supplies. This unit, commanded by Major Davis, former director of the American Red Cross unit in Constantinople, arrived in the doomed city after a record run from the Turk capital aboard an American destroyer.

Rear Admiral Bristol, American commissioner in Constantinople, has at his disposal $25,000 Red Cross funds. As soon as officials here received word of the impending fall of Smyrna, Acting Director A. R. Hill, of the Red Cross, cabled Bristol authority to draw on the organization's funds for emergency relief.

"Special provision has just been made," the Red Cross announced here today, "for relief of naturalized American citizens who have been transferred from Smyrna to Athens and vicinity by Consul General Horton, and if is expected that the American government can arrange to bring to the United States promptly those who wish to return.

Red Cross officials conferred today with Acting Secretary of State Phillips on comprehensive relief measures which this government is working out in concert with other powers. Any plan of relief will command Red Cross support, Chairman Hill said.

Meager reports to the state department today told how 200 to 250 naturalized Americans are destitute in Athens following their hurried flight from Smyrna.

American Consul Morris, at Salonika, said 600 refugees had arrived there aboard the destroyer Edsall. All the refugees had to abandon everything as they fled before the Turkish advance. The Greek government, whose resources are already strained beyond capacity, cannot care for the refugees, it was stated.

Morris said he was using supplies of the Near East relief to alleviate the woes of the refugees.

WOMAN MISSIONARY STILL IN SMYRNA.

Boston, September 16.—All women missionaries in Smyrna with the exception of Mrs. Alexander Maclachlan, wife of the president of the International college, are safe at Athens, the American board of commissioners for foreign missions was informed in a cablegram received here today from the Greek city.

The missionary men were still in Smyrna, the message said. Mrs. Maclachlan is believed to have remained with her husband.

Amateur Traffic Officer Suffers Loss of 4 Teeth

Partaking of the flowing bowl, it is said, to the extent that he was seized with a desire to play traffic policeman near the carnival grounds Saturday night, a man who refused to reveal his identity, was knocked down in the traffic jam he had created. He suffered the loss of several teeth and was forthwith taken to the Grady hospital.

On his way he lisped violent objections to being taken anywhere, but back to the carnival lot, and in spite of his cut lip, and breath which suggested something other than a mere one-half of 1 per cent beverage, he avowed, by the great god Bacchus, that he was all right, and that his personal liberty was being interferred with.

Friends who had his welfare at heart insisted that he be given medical attention and, arriving at the hospital, he was placed on the operating table. While waiting for the surgeon to minister to him, he dozed off to sleep, but awoke when the medical man, garbed in spotless white, bent over him to ascertain the extent of his injuries.

Opening one eye and then the other, he spoke, saying, "S-s-s-h-hay you," to the M. D., "I've been in one—jam t'night, an' I ain't getting' in any more—l'emme out 'o here."

Everyone protested, but their efforts to convince him that he needed sundry stitches in his lip, and dressings on the other injuries, proved futile.

He rose from the table and addressing the doctor, and others who fell in the path of his unsteady gaze, said in a lisp caused by the violent removal of four front teeth, "I don't like your lookths.—thith plath smells funny." And at that he slid from the table, and locating the door, hiccoughed a scornful goodnight over his shoulder.

To Probe Charges Made by Britain Against Consuls

Washington, September 16.—Announcement was made by the state department tonight that Consul General Nelson Johnson, who has been on duty at the state department, sailed today for England on the steamship President Harding to make a more detailed investigation of charges against the former consul and vice-consul of the United States at Newcastle.

COAL PRODUCTION SHOWS INCREASE

Washington, September 16.—Production of coal from the country's mines during the week ending today was estimated by the geological survey at between 10,200,000 and 10,500,000 tons, made up of approximately 9,500,000 tons of bituminous and 900,00 to 950,000 tons of anthracite.

The totals announced by the survey compares with production of 8,756,000 tons of bituminous and an almost negligible quantity of anthracite last week.

"Transportation is the dominant and limiting factor in soft coal supply," the survey said. "Restricted by transportation difficulties, the rate of soft coal production seemingly is fixed temporarily at 1,600,000 tons a day, or 9,600,000 tons a week—this in spite of a strong market and prices sustained at high levels.'

The culminative output of anthracite since the beginning of the calendar year was estimated at 22,225,000 tons against 64,285,000 tons in 1921.

Stocks of anthracite are very low, the survey said.

WEST IS AROUSED ON RECLAMATION

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, September 16.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Reclamation, a subject very dear to the hearts of the western people, threatens to become one of the chief issues in the forthcoming national election. Recent developments in the senate, including the elimination of the McNary reclamation amendment to the bonus bill by the house and senate conferees, have acted to raise the ire of western statesmen, who are charging that the reactionary republican leaders have broken another promise made in their 1920 platform and by republican speakers throughout the west in the last campaign.

They have been openly charged with killing their announced reclamation policy by Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, reflecting the feeling of a substantial element of the west. Borah said:

"There is no mistaking the import of the speech of the senator from Kansas (Mr. Curtis), the republican whip. I have known for a some time that the leaders upon this side of the chamber (republican side) proposed to kill the reclamation policy. There has not been an effort here or a move made that has not been checkmated by these gentlemen. The senator from Kansas (Mr. Curtis), has been perfectly frank in announcing to the country that the policy is at an end, so far as the leaders of the republican party in this chamber are concerned."

Harrison Reminder.

In a virile and ringing speech, Senator Pat Harrison (democrat, Mississippi), who has always championed western interests, reminded the republican senators who had proved false to their pledge of a reclamation policy for the west to this plank in the republican platform of 1920, which reads:

"We favor a fixed and comprehensive policy of reclamation to increase national wealth and production."

"We recognize in the development of reclamation through federal action, with its increase of production and taxable wealth, a safeguard for the nation.

"We commend to congress a policy to reclaim land and the establishment of a fixed national policy of development of natural resources in relation to reclamation through the now designated government agencies."

Bill Introduced.

In pursuance of this policy a reclamation bill known as the Smith-McNary bill, was introduced and made the "land settlement clause" of the soldier bonus bill, appropriating $350,000,000 for reclamation projects.

After the soldier bonus had passed, the reclamation feature of the bill was killed by the republicans in conference. Whereupon Senator Borah introduced an amendment to the Liberian loan bill appropriating $20,000,000 "to expedite the completion of government reclamation projects and to extend them and take up new projects under the national irrigation law."

The Borah amendment met with the immediate opposition of the republican leaders, for whom Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the republican whip, was the spokesman, and an attempt was made by them to show that reclamation projects had not repaid the government in the sums expected.

Manner of Death.

The manner in which the Smith-McNary reclamation bill was killed was further explained by Senator Borah, who said:

"The reclamation program or policy no longer received favor at the hands of those who are directing the affairs here in the senate upon the part of the republican party.

"All I need to do is to refer to the record. The steering committee determines what bills are to be passed at this session and instead of taking up any measure which has to do with the carrying out of a solemn pledge made by the party in the last campaign it puts upon the program a bill proposing to loan $5,000,000 to Liberia.

"When the senator from Oregon (Mr. McNary) offered his amendment to the bonus bill and it passed into conference it was immediately throttled; it was not given an opportunity to die a respectable death in case the bill itself dies. It receives the disapproval, the condemnation of the leaders of the (republican) party itself and by itself rather than permit it to have a chance with the bill on which the senate passed."

Manson Concedes DeFoor Election In Clayton Race

Former Senator Is Entitled to Runover, But He Withdraws.

James B. DeFoor, of Morrow, Clayton county, will represent that county in the next Georgia general assembly. The prospect of a run-over primary being eliminated by the announcement of Hon. Frank Manson, who ran second, that he will accept the result as represented in Mr. DeFoor's lead and will not ask for a second primary.

JAMES B. DEFOOR, Clayton Representative.

DeFoor received 335, Manson 261 and Fred Cox 162 votes, giving DeFoor a clear plurality, but not a majority.

Had ex-Senator Manson asked for a second primary, he would have been entitled to it, but yielding to the plurality vote in favor of the present representative of the county, Mr. DeFoor, the contest is settled and the latter becomes the nominee.

Mr. DeFoor was a member of the house from Clayton county for the sesions 1911-12. He is also a member of the preent house for the years 1921-22. He is a farmer and a school teacher and for a number of years has taught in the rural schools of Clayton county. He is 40 years old and is well known as a prominent and active member of the present house.

50-Year Service In Church Brings Fitting Tribute

An oil portrait of Colonel Robert A. Hemphill will be presented to the Sunday school of the First Methodist church at the Sunday school hour, Sunday, September 24. The occasion will be the celebration of Colonel Hemphill's golden anniversary as a member of the First Methodist church, and the portrait is given as a token of the affection of the congregation.

Church records show that Colonel Hemphill became a member of the First Methodist church on September 18, 1872, and for the past forty-nine years he has been a faithful and honored officer of his church, having for several years past served as chairman of the official board. He is still in the prime of his vigor and continues, as in years past, to be a leader in the progressive movements of the church.

His portrait will hang on the wall of the Sunday school with the portraits of others who have labored in this church.

Even Careful Calomel Users are Salivated

Very Next Dose of Treacherous Drug may Start Trouble

Calomel is dangerous. It may salivate you and make you suffer fearfully from soreness of gums, tenderness of jaws and teeth, swollen tongue, and excessive saliva dribbling from the mouth. Don't trust calomel. It is mercury; quicksilver.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and cannot salivate.—(adv.)

BEAL EXPECTS MANY FACTORY BRANCHES

"More Big Industries Will Locate South," Declares Former Nashville Man.

R. B. Beal, who has been assistant secretary of the Nashville Chamber of Commerce for the past nine years, was in Atlanta for a few hours Saturday en route to Spartanburg, S. C., where he will be secretary of the chamber of commerce. Mr. Beal is interested in gaining new industries for the south and expressed the opinion that the south is the coming field for expansion for the big industrial concerns, particularly of New England.

"The labor conditions, the climate and the accessibility of power and raw products make the south very attractive for the eastern manufacturing concerns. I am confident that the next few years will see the establishment of many factory branches of the New England cotton manufacturing firms. There is untold hydro-electric power right at hand and the cotton fields will be at their backdoor. This means a saving of transportation which will no longer be overlooked."

Mr. Beal, who is accompanied by his family, was entertained by B. S. Barker, secretary of the local chamber of commerce, during his stay in Atlanta. He and Mr. Barker are friends of long standing.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

VOL. LV., No. 97. ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 17, 1922.

ONE MAN IS INJURED WHEN RIFLE BLOWS UP

Day Is Replete With Automobile Racing, Horse Racing, Trick Riding and Boxing Matches.

BY WILLIE WIGGINS.

With much more fanfare and glory-be than those who saw it happen knew existed at the time it happened, the wiping out of the St. Mihiel salient was fittingly and completely celebrated at Lakewood Saturday under the auspices of the local American Legion posts.

The capacious grandstand was loaded, and hundreds of people lined the paddock rail and the track fence while the sporting events were carrying forward and the mimic St. Mihiel offensive was being staged during the hours from 2 Saturday afternoon until late Saturday night. The proceeds of the day will go toward sending a special train of American Legionnaires of Atlanta to the convention in New Orleans in October.

Corporal Is Injured.

During the sham battle a soldier, thought to be Corporal Mathis Less, of the Twenty-second infantry, was injured when the rifle he was operating blew up, the bolt tearing into the infantryman's face. The injured man was rushed to a hospital, where his wounds were dressed. Two national guardsmen, whose names could not be learned, suffered twisted ankles while engaged in the mimic advance over ravines in the woods at the park.

Just about this time four years ago, Willie Wiggins and several thousand other American soldiers were mighty glad something was over. They didn't know exactly what was over or what had happened, and perhaps cared a little less—but, anyway, they were glad it was, was over so they could wipe the mud off their chins and think about the billets behind them and nearer to the available vin blanc mean where an occasional game of dice could be rolled in comparative peace.

There had been a whole lot of excitement and moving about in the dark; there had been some advancing, and Willie Wiggins got his first inalienable right to swear forever after that he had been scared to death in more different ways than any other person who had preceded him in the world.

Had Wiped Out Salient.

In a day or so, then, after perusal of Paris editions of The New York Herald and The London Daily Mail, purchased with cumbersome centimes from a Y. M. C. A. secretary—those Americans discovered they had wiped out a salient. Maps on the front page answered the question, "Wott'in-ell is a salient?" by depicting a great bent place stretching north from Pont-a-Mousson "Wiping out" was explained by the fact that a bent place had been straightened out—toward Germany.

Then came the news that something great had been done and it wasn't long before the army understood that with the help of the people back home and through the directing genius of the American and allied commanders, it was at last fighting on its own and showing the world that it hadn't traveled all the way from France to test cognac and flirt with the mad-emoiselles.

That's the way Willie Wiggins and thousands of others that never rose higher than a corporal's two priceless stripes viewed it at the time. But since that time their indifference has waned a bit and they realize that they probably were doing a little bit toward something worth while.

Stage Reproduction.

Saturday was the anniversary of the disappearance of that salient. And to prove that they were not willing to forget it, the American Legion staged a replica, as near as possible, of the St. Mihiel offensive.

In the half light of dusk Saturday afternoon the well-remembered barrage that the American artillery dropped on surprised Heinie began. For a time the Heinie territory was quiet save for an occasional inquisitive flare or Verey light. Meanwhile, "our side" was continuing to pepper the opposition with the guns. Finally, the advance being imminent and understood to be of portent, the German machine guns, nested in the woods beyond the lake began their answering bark—and the advance was on.

Crouching as they advanced, their bodies thrown into high relief by the flare of the enemy lights, the advancing Americans carried the actuality of the thing even to the point of frequently hitting the dirt, just as it "used to was."

The whole thing was carried off with just as much success as could be injected into an imitation. It was real enough to bring back memories to those who saw it and vivid enough

HARDING TO VETO BONUS TUESDAY

Such Is the Report Given Out in Washington by Close Advisers of President.

Washington, September 16.—Information that President Harding had made up his mind definitely to veto the soldiers' bonus bill reached senate leaders today from some of his close advisers. They said his message of disapproval would be sent to the house next Tuesday.

After receiving this word, the majority leaders made an informal preliminary canvass of the senate, which was said to have shown 34 votes against over-riding a veto, or two more than the number necessary to prevent final enactment of the bonus legislation.

This margin was understood, however, to be regarded by some friends of the president as too narrow and they expected Mr. Harding to call several senators to the white house before Tuesday for a discussion of the situation. With many senators absent from Washington, it was asserted by some that it was difficult to assess senate sentiment at this time.

Many Absentees.

Many of the absentees, it was stated, could not possibly get back to Washington in time to vote. Five senators are in Europe while four others are in the far east. Several others would be detained by their own illness, or that of members of their families. Every effort will be made to pair absentees, but it was explained that it might not be possible to pair all of them and it was conceded that the absence of pairs in even a few cases might have a material effect on the outcome.

Mr. Harding's advisers expect him to set forth in vigorous manner his reasons for a veto. From the first he has insisted that bonus legislation should carry a method of financing it and he also has voiced disapproval of "piece-meal" payment to the world war veterans, declaring that it would be better to postpone payment than to make it in such a manner.

Should the bonus be returned to the house, managers of it there planned to move promptly to pass it over the veto. The general belief at the capitol was that far more than the necessary two-thirds majority woud be obtained there to over-ride the veto.

Taken to White House.

The bonus bill, bearing the signatures of Speaker Gillett and President Pro-Tempore Cummins, of the senate, was taken to the white house late today by Chairman Ricketts, of the house committee on enrolled bills and Representative Thompson, another republican member from Ohio. Generally bills are transmitted to the executive offices by house messengers.

As the treasury had closed for the day at that time, the bill remained at the white house. It is expected, however, that it will be sent Monday to Secretary Mellon for his examination and an opinion. This is the usual course of procedure. From the treasury it would be returned to the president for his action.

Just before the bonus reached the white house, there was presented at the executive offices a "request" to the president from the chamber of commerce of the United States to veto the bill. The request, in the form of a brief, was accompanied by a letter from President Julius H. Barnes, who asked Mr. Harding's consideration of the chamber's brief as constituting an argument for a veto.

NEILL CONFIDENT OF SPEAKERSHIP

Able Speaker of the Last House, Re-elected From Muscogee, Receives Lots of Pledges of Support.

Columbus, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—After leading the legislative ticket in Muscogee county by a substantial number of votes in his race for re-election, Speaker W. Cecil Neill, of the house of representatives, expressed confidence today that he would again be elected speaker when the new house convenes next June.

Mr. Neill's friends here today pledged him their full co-operation and assistance in bringing about his re-election as speaker. Although reports have been heard that other members of the legislature were considering making the race for speaker Mr. Neill's friends expressed the view today that when the time comes to choose a new leader that Mr. Neill will have no opposition.

Speaker Neill has received scores of telegrams and telephone calls from members of the legislature who were re-elected and from new members who will serve their first terms in which they voluntarily pledged their support to Mr. Neill for the speakership.

It was pointed out by friends of the speaker that he served two years as speaker and ended his active term pos-

EPISCOPALS RAP ORDERS FOSTERING ALL INTOLERANCE

GEORGIANS SPONSORED TWO RESOLUTIONS

Adopted Resolution Scores the Organizations Which Capitalize Bigotry, Hatred and Intolerance.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Portland, Ore., September 16.—Sweeping denunciations of mob violence and of secret organizations which foster race and religious prejudice is made in a resolution unanimously adopted today by the house of deputies of the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States in general convention.

The resolution, approved by a committee headed by the Rev. Dr. James R. Freeman, of Washington, D. C., called on the ministry of the church and school authorities to teach the sanction of law and government and appealed to officers of the law to uphold the law and suppress all forms of mob violence.

The resolutions as adopted were a combination of resolutions proposed by the Rev. C. B. Wilmer, of Atlanta, Ga., and the Rev. Dr. J. D. Wing, of Savannah, Ga

Traces Connection

After reciting that there has been an increase in violence through mob action, the resolutions continue: "There appears to be a very close and intimate connection between these acts of mob violence and the recent rapid growth of religious prejudices and racial apathy favored by certain elements in our country which, sometimes in name of patriotic Americanism, have capitalized bigotry, hatred and intolerance."

A resolution asking passage of laws regulating the marriage of diseased and defective persons was adopted by the house of deputies.

Hope that relation between the Eastern Orthodox church and the Protestant Episcopal church in the United States may be the foundation on which the unity of all churches of Christendom may be built was expressed by Meleties, patriarch of Constantinople, according to a report to the house of bishops today by Rev. Dr. William Chauncey Emhart, field director of the National foreign born American division of the Episcopal church. Dr. Emhart has just returned from the near east.

Letter From East.

Dr. Emhart brought with him a letter from Meleties, addressed to the Protestant Episcopal church through the Archbishop of Canterbury, in which the Eastern Orthodox church head formally accepted the validity of Anglican orders and recognized the apostolic succession of the Protestant Episcopal church.

Doctor Emhart, who recently visited Chrysostomes, metropolitan of Smyrna, who was reported killed in Smyrna a few days ago, said in an interview that the Mohammaden revival "which is sweeping the near east and threatening Europe again as it did a thousand years ago, seems to be the result and not the cause of the onset of the Turks, who are making a drive to regain the political and territorial position lost during the last great war."

The house of bishops refused to accept the resignation of Bishop Logan H. Root, of Hankow, who had asked to be relieved of his jurisdiction in order to become head of the newly-organized national Christian Council of China.

Adopt Amendment.

The house of bishops, by a bare constitutional majority of 63 affirmative votes, adopted an amendment to the constitution of the church offered by Bishop C. P. Anderson, of Chocago, in effect, making it possible for Episcopal bishops to ordain clergymen of other denominations, the amendment requiring the promise of conformity to the doctrine and discipline of the Protestant Episcopal church only from those who are to officiate in that church. This amendment first was adopted at the general convention three years ago. Effectiveness of the amendment, however, will depend on changes in the canons relating to the concordat.

Bishop W. F. Nichols, of San Francisco, prevented the killing of an amendment to the constitution which would give women the right to sit in the house of deputies. The matter was left open for further discussion.

SUFFERS OVERDOSE VERINOL TABLETS

Suffering from an overdose of verinol tablets, Ben Lipes, aged 34, was taken to the Grady hospital Saturday night by Officers Paul Williams and B. J. Covington.

Lipes said he had been stopping at the Northern hotel. Hospital authorities have ordered him confined for further observation.

"Stay at Home" Dollar Finishes Day Well Spent

Figures in Business Transactions Totaling More Than One Hundred Dollars.

Atlanta's "Stay-at-Home-Dollar" which is being circulated by The Constitution, began its adventurous journey at noon Saturday and within a few hours had figured as part of business transactions totalling more than $100. The first day's journey of the dollar was necessarily slow because those who received it did not know exactly what to do with it. The dollar turned up at 6 o'clock at the Charles A. Smith Drug company. It will be kept by this company until Monday morning when it will be started on its second day trip.

In circulating this dollar The Constitution is endeavoring to get a check on just how much good a dollar can do in one week if kept at home. A dollar spent for articles manufactured in other cities amounts to only one dollar's worth of good for the town but when spent for an Atlanta manufactured product there is no limit to how long it will stay in the city. This experiment is being made during the Atlanta Manufacturers' exhibition which is given free at the auditorium all the week beginning Monday. The travels of the dollar will be checked and its history told from day to day in The Constitution.

Dollar Gets Start.

Saturday the dollar was paid at noon to L. F. Jones, an employee of The Constitution. Shortly afternoon Mr. Jones spent the dollar at the George Muse Clothing company, putting seven more dollars with it for an $8 purchase. The George Muse company gave the dollar in change to J. C. Henson, 400 N. Boulevard, who spent it at the Metropolitan theater. Loftis T. Jones, of Roxboro road, received the dollar in change from the Metropolitan theater. Later in the afternoon he spent it at the Blackstock, Hale and Morgan company, the dollar figuring in a $60 purchase. The next man to get the dollar was L. M. Garrett, a traveling salesman. At 6 o'clock, the hour the holder of the dollar is supposed to call The Constitution, it was found at the Charles A. Smith Drug company. It was spent for two Atlanta made drinks, a coca-cola and a nugrape, the purchaser receiving ninety cents in change.

The "Stay-At-Home-Dollar" is encased in a little book in which the receivers can write their names and the purpose for which the dollar is used.

It is urged that everyone accept the dollar and to pass it on to the next man as quickly as possible. The dollar is perfectly good and no one need be afraid to get it. Merchants are urged to have their cashier's and clerks receive the dollar and pass it along in change at the first opportunity.

How Much Dollar Can Buy.

The experiment is being conducted to show just how much a dollar can buy when kept at home and how important it is for the people to purchase home made products whenever they have the opportunity.

The dollar will be started early Monday morning by the Charles A. Smith Drug Co. The big Manufacturers' Free Exposition also will begin Monday at the auditorium. The story of the "Stay-At-Home-Dollar" will be told each day by The Constitution and Saturday night the final holder of the dollar will appear at the exhibition.

The Constitution asks that whoever holds the dollar at 6 o'clock each evening immediately telephone the city editor at Main 5000. It is important that the holder telephone promptly at 6 o'clock as this will place the day's story of the dollar in all editions.

Three Young Boys Believed Victims Of Corn Whisky

Doctors Are of Opinion They Are Suffering From Alcoholic Poisoning.

Three young boys, William, Albert and Woodrow Plunkett, are in Grady hospital suffering from what physicians fear is alcoholic poisoning. The boys, who are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Plunkett, of Carey Park, it is believed, drank some whiskey made at a moonshine still which was raided near their home Thursday night.

Mrs. Plunkett stated that the mash and whisky found at the still which was raided in the neighborhood last Thursday was destroyed by the officers. It is her opinion, however, that her boys found some of the stuff and drank it, or that they found some whisky hidden by boot-leggers in the woods nearby.

Albert, who is 10 years old, was found in the cellar of a Mr. Rogers who lives nearby and was in an unconscious condition. His condition is the worst of the three. The other boys, William, 13 years old, and Woodrow, who is 7, were found in slightly better condition than their brother.

All three were taken to Grady hospital where their stomachs were pumped out. They were held under observation for several hours and then returned to their homes.

BALLARD, PERRY, BROWN, RUSSELL, DAVISON, WINNERS

Consolidated Returns From Statewide Primary Wednesday Largely Confirm Earlier Reports.

WALKER'S VICTORY GROWING IN SIZE

BY WALTER CHAMBERS.

Official returns from practically all of the 160 counties in Georgia Saturday night showed that the winners were N. L. Ballard, of Brunswick, in the race for state superintendent of schools to succeed M. L. Brittain, resigned; James A. Perry, to succeed himself as railroad commissioner; W. W. Brown, to succeed himself as commissioner of agriculture; Judge Richard B. Russell, of Winder, to succeed Judge Fish as chief justice of the Georgia supreme court, and R. E. Davison, to succeed himself as prison commissioner.

All had swept through the entire state with majorities totaling in some instances two to one over their opponents or pluralities more than equaling the combined votes of those opposing them.

In the governor's race, Clifford M. Walker, of Monroe, defeated Governor Thomas W. Hardwick by more than 35,000 votes, gaining a majority in three-fourths of the counties in the state.

Changes in House.

In the house of representatives there will be many new faces. One of the most unique of the races for the house was that in Lee county, where E. L. Simpson was elected over J. D. Clifton, the present incumbent, by one vote.

In many counties the nominees were in doubt until the returns had been consolidated officially, many changing from original forecasts by a margin of from two to five votes.

Walter H. McDonald, blind attorney of Augusta, and James A. Perry were elected to the Georgia public service commissioner.

ALL PLANS MADE FOR BIG WELCOME TO BRITISH PARTY

VISITORS TO ARRIVE LATE MONDAY NIGHT

Will Be Given Reception at Mayor's Office and Taken on Tour of the City.

BY GARLAND COOPER.

Plans are now complete for the entertainment of the delegation of distinguished Britons and Canadians representing the Sulgrave institution which will arrive in Atlanta Monday night at 11:20 o'clock at the Terminal station. The committee in charge of the reservations at the banquet Tuesday night at the Piedmont Driving club announced Saturday that more than 200 tickets have been sold, but that reservations are still open and it is hoped that more will send in their checks before it is too late.

The visit of the delegation to Atlanta means a great deal to the city in the way of being recognized as one of a dozen representative American cities, it has been said by the general committee. The delegation reached America September 10, docking at New York on the Adriatic that day. Two days were spent there before the trip down to Pittsburg, thence on to the various cities of the itinerary arranged to carry the delegation through the east, south and west. After completing the southern and western part of the tour, the delegation will visit Niagara Falls and Buffalo, N. Y., jointly, then go over into Canada.

Dedicate Statue.

One of the immediate objectives of the tour is the dedication of a statue of Edmund Burke to the city of Washington and a heroic-sized bust of William Pitt, Earl of Chatham, for whom Pittsburg was named, to the city of Pittsburg. These, together with two busts of the late Lord Bryce for Washington and Trinity churches, New York city, were given by Sir Charles Wakefield through the Sulgrave movement.

The Sulgrave institution was founded in 1914 when a group of public-spirited English men and women purchased the old Sulgrave manor in Northamptonshire, England, and gave it to the charge of a board of governors to be made into a mecca for Americans visiting the old country. The ultimate purpose of the institution is a far reaching one, aiming to foster friendship between the American and English poeple and spread the ideals, institutions and principles of the Anglo-Saxon-Celtic-British peoples of the world to the other peoples.

Besides the establishment of the home as a place of pilgrimage for Americans, the board has founded many historical fellowships in colleges in both this country and England.

Quaint Old Manor.

There are many things of interest connecting the old manor with the great republic founded by one of the sons of the house. The escutcheon of Washington's ancestors, bearing three stars and three stripes, is said to have inspired the creation of the American flag around the stars and stripes idea. The manor itself is a quaint old structure with ivy-covered walls, which suggest old times, romances of fair ladies and gallant squires.

With this background, the modern practical man and woman see the further knitting together of the causes of the peoples who sprung largely from the same stock. The committees in charge of the various arrangements for the reception of the delegation in Atlanta have made it their chief aim that when the distinguished visitors set foot on Georgia soil, the phenomenon of bringing together all parties concerned, mentioned by O. Henry on a similar occasion, will have taken place and that there will be "no north, not must east, very little south and no west to speak of."

One of the points of the reception which will be carefully arranged is the reception of the delegation by the mayor in his office. It is an old English custom that any visiting party, no matter how notable, must visit the mayor at his office. They will not hear of the mayor's leaving his office and receiving them at the train. After the party leaves the Georgian Terrace at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, it will go direct to the mayor's office, where it will be received by Mayor and Mrs. Key.

Reception at Mayor's Office.

With Mayor and Mrs. Key will be the heads of the various patriotic organizations of the city. The party will be presented to the mayor by Mrs. Joseph R. Lamar and W. O. Foote. From there the tour will include visits to Grant park, where the large cyclorama will be viewed. Then to the soldier's home and the cottage of the Bobby Burns club. This cottage is expected to create much interest as it is an exact replica of the home of Scotland's great peasant poet in Ayrshire, Scotland. The next general stop will be at Ingleside Country club, where light refreshments will be served. Thence on through Decatur, viewing the mammouth monolith, Stone Mountain, by Emory university and

Effort to Conclude Peace on Southern Railway Is Blocked

CHILD IS KILLED AS TRAIN UPSETS FAMILY IN AUTO

J. W. Christian, of Newnan, Wife and Three Children in Car Struck by Central Train.

WERE MOTORING TO COUNTRY FOR OUTING

Ross, 6-Year-Old Child, Instantly Killed, and His Parents, Brother and Sister Injured.

Newnan, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—Ross, the 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Christian, of Newnan, is dead and his brother and sister, Charles and Geneva, are in a serious condition, following the wrecking of the automobile in which the family were riding, by a Central of Georgia train today.

The parents also were injured, the mother more seriously. Mr. Christian, who was driving the car, escaped with bruises. Fear is felt for the brother, who suffered internal injuries. The sister sustained a fractured shoulder, but Newnan hospital physicians say she will recover.

Charles is 12 years old and Geneva is 9.

Mrs. Christian suffered a severe scalp wound. She was reported to be resting easy tonight.

The family were on their way to the country, where they planned to spend the week-end. They did not see the approaching train, said Mr. Christian, at the hospital, until it struck their automobile on a road crossing about a mile east of Newnan. The car was hurled more than 50 feet, witnesses say. The approach of the train was screened from the autoists by high embankments.

Onlookers, who ran to the aid of the helpless passengers after the crash, found Ross dead at the bottom of the wreckage. His mother, brother and sister were unconscious and Mr. Christian was dazed. They were rushed to the hospital.

Funeral arrangements for the dead child had not been made tonight.

TROOPS ORDERED OUT OF WAYCROSS

Governor Hardwick Issues Recall Order to Guardsmen Who Have Been Policing in Strike.

Upon the order of Governor Thomas W. Hardwick, state troops on duty to preserve order at Waycross during the strike of railway shopmen were instructed at 10 o'clock Saturday morning to return to their respective homes by Adjutant-General Van Holt Nash. The troops were commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel L. O. Pope. A machine gun company from Elberton and two companies from Dublin served on strike duty at Waycross, where they were sent by the governor at the request of Mayor Dan T. Cowart and Chief of Police J. J. Flanders.

The governor signed the order removing the troops after he had received letters from the mayor and chief of police stating there was no further need of the troops in that city. The soldiers were sent to Waycross shortly after the strike of the railway shopmen began. In their letters to the governor the Waycross officials thanked him for his co-operation and assistance in upholding the law.

The troops were in camp at Brunswick when they were sent to Waycross at the request of the officials of that city. Since the troops arrived at Waycross no disorder has been reported.

Plans for tendering receptions to the troops were announced in Dublin and Elberton. The Dublin troops will return to that city Sunday morning and an elaborate program of entertainment has been prepared for them by the citizens.

Presence of the state troops in Waycross caused much discussion in the legislature, some of the representatives contending that the governor should not have ordered troops to that city. The act of the governor in sending troops to the strike zone also was made an issue by speakers in the recent campaign for governor.

Troops Leave Waycross.

Waycross, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—The last detachment of troops were withdrawn from Waycross today when 106 men under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Pope boarded a northbound train.

MEETING BREAKS UP AFTER HOUR'S DEBATE

Road Officials Are Ready for Another Conference. Seaboard Strike Settled, Warfield Announces.

Washington, September 16.—(By The Associated Press.)—Officials of the Southern railway were awaiting tonight the next move on the part of union shopcraft leaders of that system following collapse today of negotiations between both parties looking toward termination of the shopmen's strike on the Southern's lines.

A. M. McGillivray, general chairman of the shop crafts of the Southern and spokesman for the group of six chairmen who met with representatives of the road in a brief conference, was unable to say when another conference would be held. He indicated, however, that the negotiations were not at a complete end, saying that certain conditions affecting the workers on short line roads controlled by the Southern and matters pertaining to the situation in two of the larger shops of the system must be given attention by the union leaders before efforts toward an agreement were resumed.

Road Still Willing.

Henry W. Miller, vice-president of the Southern in charge of operations, who headed the road's representation in the peace conference, was said at the offices of the road to be willing to meet the union leaders at any time in another effort toward settlement and was hopeful that further conferences would result in adjustment of all differences Until that time it was understood the Southern would pursue a policy with respect to operations that would disregard completely any negotiations for settlement.

The representatives of the road and of the unions on going into conference here today were optimistic as to the prospects of the basis of the Warfield-Willard-Jewell agreement. After scarcely an hour's discussion, however, the meeting broke up, union leaders announcing that the negotiations had been at least temporarily concluded and without agreement.

Points of Issue.

Later it was ascertained that two of the points on which the negotiations collapsed were a demand by union leaders that the road agree to dismiss all men hired during the strike coincident with the return of strikers to their old jobs and a request that details not covered by the Warfield-Willard-Jewell agreement be discussed and decided upon before the agreement was signed. This in each case the representatives of the road refused, holding that the demand for dismissal of new employees was in contravention with the spirit at least of the Chicago agreement and that discussion of details could properly follow signing of the agreement.

SEABOARD MAKES PEACE.

Baltimore, Md., September 16.—Announcement was made today at the office of S. Davies Warfield, president of the Seaboard Air Line, that he agreement has been signed by the railroad and the men for the settlement of the strike, as adopted in Baltimore and approved by the policy committee of the railway employees' department, American Federation of Labor.

Mr. Warfield stated that all shops would be opened in full Monday morning next, working two shifts of eight hours each. This, he said, will enable the railroad to rapidly catch up for time lost during the strike.

L. AND N. REJECTS OFFER.

Louisville, Ky., September 16.—Refusal of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company today, through its officials, to treat with the striking shopmen on the basis of the Warfield-Willard-Jewell agreement, was followed tonight by a statement from the railroad that many of the men who walked out July 1 are returning.

Announcement that the Louisville and Nashville would make no separate settlement with the strikers, and that they would be taken back only as new men followed a conference between road officials and representatives of the shop crafts.

S. E. Roper, general chairman of the Federated Shop Crafts, division No. 91, in a statement, said he did not look upon the road's refusal as final, but did not intimate what further steps were contemplated.

NO AGREEMENT BY N. Y. CENTRAL.

New York, September 16.—The final session of a series of conferences between representatives of the striking shop craft employees and officers of the New York Central lines terminated this evening without an agreement being reached, said a statement issued by the road immediately after the meeting ended.

The statement said the lines had been willing to fulfill the memorandum of agreement reached at Baltimore, but that representatives of the shop crafts "attempted to interject questions not mentioned in the text and clearly outside the agreement, insisting that these matters be included."

To this the railroad management could not agree, the statement said.

It was understood that seniority was the issue on which the conference broke up.

ALL PLANS MADE TO WELCOME BRITISH

to Druid Hills Golf club, where luncheon will be served.

The drive will be resumed, carrying the party through Piedmont park and to the chapter house, Joseph Habersham Memorial hall, of the D. A. R. Here there will be a short reception. The party will then proceed out Peachtree and out Pace's Ferry road, driving through the grounds of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kiser and on to the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Grant, "Craigellachie." From here the party will return to the Georgian Terrace. At 8 o'clock the chief function of the entertainment will be held, the banquet at the Piedmont Driving club.

Members of Delegation.

The delegation will include Sir Charles Wakefield, former lord mayor of London, and Lady Wakefield and daughter; Sir Arthur Haworth, president of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, M. P., junior lord of the treasurer, and Lady Haworth; Lieutenant-Governor and Madam William MacCullum Grant, of Novia Scotia; Harold Spender, editor and author; Sir William Letts, bart.; H. S. Perris, publicist and director British Sulgrave Institution, secretary of the Watson chair of American history foundation; John A. Stewart, chairman of the board of governors American Sulgrave; Alexander Humphreys, secretary of American branch; Miss Ethel Armes, chairman executive committee of woman's committee. American Sulgrave; James S. More. who will represent Canada, and Captain De Voto.

Several changes were reported in the committees Saturday, including the appointment of Mrs. William Hill and Mrs. Charles Selple, joint chairmen of the decorations committee; Mrs. B. M. Boykin, chairman of the hotel accommodations committee. Justice Price Gilbert, of the Georgia supreme court, will be toastmaster at the banquet Tuesday night.

The committee on decorations has asked that all officials of public buildings decorate the buildings with American flags on the right of the entrance and English flags on the left. It also asks that the automobile owners of the city have their cars decorated with these flags Tuesday. The flags may be obtained from Virgil Shepard, 22 Edgewood avenue. Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore, telephone Hemlock 0829, has requested that all invited guests who desire reservations at the banquet send their checks for $3 to her at once. Mrs. Joseph R. Lamar and Fred Houser are also working with this committee and will arrange reservations. Mrs. Lamar is a member of the American board of directors of the institution and is general chairman of the Atlanta reception.

Men and Women of Atlanta, Wake Up!

A crisis threatens your city. If you elect Walter Sims as mayor next Wednesday, you will deliver your public affairs into the hands of the darkest and most powerful political ring that ever operated in a southern municipality.

If Sims is elected, ring rule will prevail, the "12-20" club will dominate, and a designing gang of secret, under-handed political manipulators will wrest the reins of representative government from you.

An important period lies just ahead. The most far-reaching expansion and improvement program in half a century is about to start. Twenty millions will be expended during the next two years.

Will you stand by and see this thing happen, or will you actively support James G. Woodward and help to forever end this sorry situation?

Will you let a radical and undercover politician supervise these things for you, or will you place in charge a man whom you all know, whose honesty is unquestioned, and whose executive ability has been conclusively proven?

This is a crisis in which Atlanta's good citizens should join together and rise up in unison next Wednesday and regain control of their government.

"I don't think anybody ever suffered more pain than I have. Twice I was operated for gall stones and a third operation was advised. A friend in Iowa wrote me how he was cured by taking Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I took a bottle on his advice with good results and have also taken the full course. My pains are all gone and I feel I am permanently cured." It removes the catarrhal mucous from the intestinal tract, and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded at Jacobs' Pharmacy and druggists everywhere. —(adv.)

Recreational Development In North Georiga Is Rapid

Letter From Federal Bureau Official Suggests Methods by Which Georgia Commission May Effectively Aid.

That the United States bureau of forestry is progressing as rapidly as practicable toward the development of recreational areas in the north Georgia forest reserves is contained in a letter from the bureau to Miss Alice Baxter, a member of the Georgia forestry commission. The letter contains valuable suggestions about civic aid, etc., in the great work that is ahead. It follows in full, as furnished The Constitution by the bureau of forestry:

September 12, 1922.

Miss Alice Baxter,
81 East Fourth street,
Atlanta, Georgia.

My dear Miss Baxter: Your letter of August 31 and copy of resolutions by the State Forestry association are received. Both Colonel Greeley and Mr. Reed are out of the city and not expected to return before September 16. I am, therefore, unable to comply with your request that this matter be brought to their attention at this time.

The "Constitution Trip" in northern Georgia is sure to give impetus to the recreational development of the national forest lands in northern Georgia. However, much remains to be done before the maximum recreational benefits accrue. Briefly stated, necessary accomplishments are:

(1) Continued acquisition of lands under the Weeks law act.

(2) Development of protection and utilization of the forests.

(3) Construction and maintenance of roads, trails, camp grounds and camp ground sanitation.

(4) Popularize the region for health and pleasure-seekers.

(5) Protection and propagation of fish and game.

Big Field is Offered.

There is a field of wide opportunity offering a chance for public service and possibly recognition in connection with the development of the forests in northern Georgia along the lines just stated, and it is hoped that the federation may seriously consider the advisability of undertaking this work.

The national forest reservation commission has recommended an appropriation of $2,000,000 for the purchase of forest lands during the next fiscal year in the hope of restoring the appropriation to approximately the pre-war figure. The current appropriation is less than 25 per cent of this sum.

The national forest reservation commission is influenced in its determination to purchase lands by the price at which land is available. To date, the price per acre at which land has been purchased is higher in Georgia than in any other state and this fact may militate against purchases in Georgia. The commission will not consider recreational advantages of lands offered as a factor of value. Therefore, it will be distinctly disadvantageous to advertise the recreational values of lands prior to purchase as the untimely statements might retard, if not effectively stop, their acquisition.

The first objective should be the acquisition of lands and in this acquisition there should be no premature dedication of an incomplete unit to recreational use. First because it might adversely influence purchase of remaining lands (75 per cent of the area remains to be purchased), and second, because lands are, by their acquisition by the United States, automatically dedicated to the highest use for the greatest number of people, which distinctly includes recreation.

It is also believed that your association can be of real assistance in movements for the development of roads and trails through the region and it might desire to assist in the construction of camp ground facilities. On several of the western national forests, public-spirited organizations have constructed improvements designed for public use as it is realized that the federal funds for land purchases are distinctly limited. Recreational developments have been made by the cities of Los Angeles, Cal.; Portland, Ore.; Pueblo and Fort Collins, Colo., and several other cities.

Aesthetic Features.

In the development of the forests, special care will be taken to preserve aesthetic features. Under conservative management and with protection from fire, the forest as a unit will be made self-supporting and it will not be necessary to make charges or fees for public uses for recreational purposes.

I am very glad to know that the Georgia legislature passed a bill at its last session authorizing the federal government to take over the protection of game and fish on the acquired lands in northern Georgia. This authority will enable the forest service to plan for the protection, conservation and use of wild life on the forests and thus enhance the attractiveness of the region.

The foregoing may be somewhat of a disappointment to you in that it does not provide for immediate dedication of the area. It is believed, however, that the course suggested will be productive of the best results in the long run and any effort made by your federation will be amply rewarded with the knowledge that you have helped further a worthy cause. You are assured that your interest is helpful and that development of these inspiring playgrounds will progress as rapidly as circumstances permit.

Very sincerely yours,
F. W. REED,
District Forester.

JUDGE ELLIS THANKS FRIENDS FOR SUPPORT

Judge W. D. Ellis in a statement Saturday expressed his thanks and appreciation for the splendid endorsement and overwhelmning majority of votes he received in the recent primary in which he was re-elected judge of Fulton superior court. He said:

"The endorsement of almost the entire bar of the circuit, their active support, the whole-hearted co-operation of the press, the support of what he believes a very large majority of the splendid women voters, and of the generous support of the voters generally, have deeply touched me and I take this method of expressing my appreciation and thanks."

$5,000 DAMAGE SUIT FILED AGAINST CITY

For injuries alleged to have been received when she slipped on a sidewalk which had become slippery because of a broken water pipe, Mrs. J. F. Mitchell, of 340 Ormond street, Saturday filed suit in the city court of Atlanta against the city of Atlanta for $5,000 damages. She was represented by Attorneys T. J. Lewis and T. L. Slappey.

Hotel dinner plates' wearing ability depend upon the design of the rolled edge and the angle of inclination of the rim fully as much as on the material from which they are made, recent government tests show.

Armstrong's Linoleum

for Every Floor in the House

This Masonic Cathedral has a linoleum floor

Dignified, quiet, comfortable and permanent

IN the Scottish Rite Cathedral at Richmond, the floor of the auditorium is Armstrong's Linoleum.

Beauty and dignity are essential to the construction and furnishings of such an edifice as this. The choice of Armstrong's Linoleum for the floor is a striking evidence of the recognition of the manifold merits of the linoleum floor.

Linoleum is restful to the feet, and in the subdued plain colors and artistic designs in which Armstrong's Linoleum is made, it forms a pleasant field for vision.

The fact that linoleum deadens the sound of footsteps accounts for much of its favor in public and semi-public buildings such as libraries, court houses, hospitals, etc.

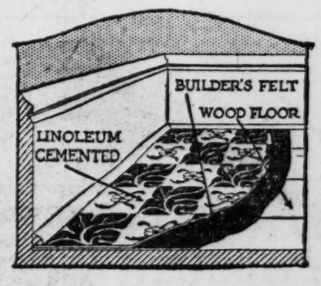

These qualities also recommend linoleum floors for shops, theatres, and offices.

Linoleum is perhaps the easiest of all floors to clean and when properly laid a linoleum floor needs no refinishing. An occasional waxing and polishing keeps it in fine condition.

Consult your architect, contractor, or any good linoleum merchant for a thorough understanding of the advantages of a floor of Armstrong's Linoleum. On request, we will send you, free, our 48-page booklet, "Business Floors." We gladly furnish data and specifications for laying Armstrong's Linoleum over concrete or wood.

How to Lay Linoleum on Wood Floors

IN summer the moisture in the air causes wood floors to expand. In winter they dry out and contract when the heat is turned on, with a tendency to open up the cracks between the boards. Your linoleum floor, therefore, should be cemented (not tacked) over a lining of builder's deadening felt which has been previously glued to the bare floor boards. The felt takes up expansion and contraction and gives you a permanent, waterproof, good-looking floor. The added service and wear this method gives are well worth the extra cost.

GEORGIA TO OPEN FOR 123D SESSION

Banner Year Is Expected for State College by Chancellor Barrow and Dr. Soule.

Athens, Ga., September 16.—The 123d annual session at the University of Georgia begins Wednesday, September 21, and according to statements made by Dr. David C. Barrow, chancellor of the university, and Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture, the approaching year will be one of the best in the history of the institution.

It is the belief of officials of the college that the enrollment will not be greatly increased, because already the college is caring for as many students as dormitory space permits. For the past several years all classrooms have been packed.

During the period since the closing of summer school and the opening of college proper all of the buildings on the university campus have been renovated for the beginning of the new session.

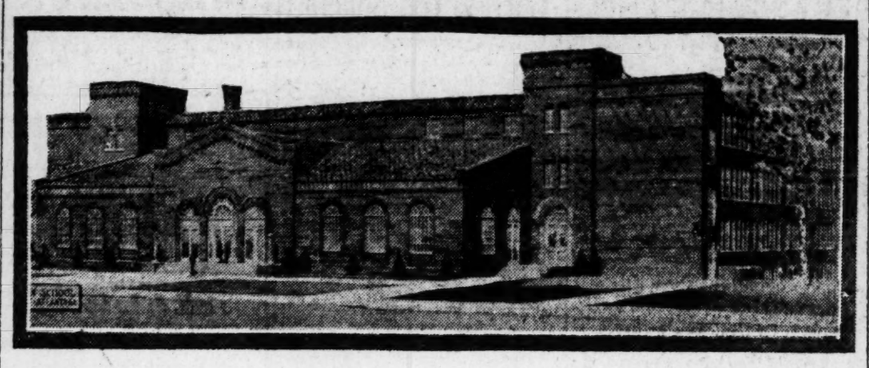

With the thousand dollars given the college last June by George Foster Peabody, of New York, philanthropist trustee of the institution, who attended the past commencement exercises, the library has been repainted on the interior and generally made to look better. All other buildings on the campus, including the historic chapel, dormitories and dining hall, have been retouched.

Several additions to the faculty of the university have been made this summer. J. G. Johnson has been made an associate professor in the school of commerce; Miss Hattie C. Rainwater, of Atlanta, has been made an instructor in botany; and the resignation of Dr. C. J. Heatwole, formerly connected with the school of education, has been accepted. He goes to Virginia to accept a place with a college there. A correspondence course has been established at the university. It is the first such course at a southern institution.

ATLANTANS MAY INVEST IN WARE, BANK AGENT SAYS

Waycross, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—The Atlanta Trust company is ready to invest money in Ware county, provided the local banks are willing to finance the crops, said R. O. Crocker, the farm development representative of the company, today.

This statement is the result of a personal survey of the land and of the business conditions in Ware county by Mr. Crocker following his address to the Lions' club, of Waycross, two weeks ago.

The company will invest its money in and divide the tracts of land approved by the local chamber of commerce into farm units, to advertise these tracts, and to bring the buyers to the units.

NEGRO IS KILLED AND TWO INJURED AS BOILER POPS

Louisville, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—Alonzo Gamble, negro, was killed when a 30-horse power boiler exploded about 8 o'clock this morning on the Bellmont plantation, six miles west of here.

J. T. Thompson, superintendent of the plantation, and Jim Gibbons, negro helper, were injured. The three were sewing a belt preparatory to ginning cotton when the explosion occurred. Several negroes standing near the scene were not injured.

The superintendent was buried beneath timbers and brick of the wrecked gin. The plantation is owned by J. J. B. Morrell, of Sylvania.

Do Not Attempt To Judge Phones By Resistance

Many Other Factors Involved in the Selection of a Receiver.

The phones, or receivers of a radio set, are one of the most delicate instruments, and care should be exercised in selecting before you make your purchase. There are many new manufacturers in the field, and some of the pieces of apparatus that they turn out are of questionable value. A few facts about the features of construction of a pair of phones might help the prospective buyer from being deceived and disappointed.

In the first place it is a mistake to rate phones entirely by their ohmage, as the sensitivity is only indirectly dependent upon this factor. A high ohmage could be obtained by winding the receiver magnets with resistance wire, but if this were done the phones would be very sensitive indeed. This system of valuation is about as good as a system that determined the worth of a man by his weight in pounds. You will agree that there are many other things to be considered besides this, including physical make-up and mentality. So it is with radio receivers—you can not judge them entirely by their ohmage, but you must also take into consideration the quality of the materials used and the constructional details.

For ordinary radio receiving work a resistance of from about 2,000 to 3,000 ohms is considered best. But this high resistance is not best because it is high, but because it must be high to fulfill a certain requirement. The effect of the magnetism of the receiver magnets is greatest when the greatest number of "ampere-turns are crowded into a given space. Now, in order to get a sufficient number of these ampere-turns in the small space afforded by a radio receiver, very fine wire must be used, and the many turns of this very fine wire is what causes the high resistance. The currents flowing in a receiving set are infinitesimal and, therefore, this fine wire suffices to carry them.

Look at the various makes of phones that you see in the store. Examine them and compare their mechanical, as well as electrical features. Then purchase the one that seems best to you. You may see a pair of 3,000 ohm phones for several dollars less than a pair having 2,000 ohms, but the constructional details of the latter phones may be so far superior to those of the former that the phones are really much more sensitive.

sessing the friendship and confidence of virtually every member of the lower branch of the assembly. His record for fairness even to those who originally opposed him for the speakership was such that it caused much favorable discussion in legislative circles during the recent session.

SPEAKER CECIL NEILL,
Of the Georgia house.

Mr. Neill expressed much gratification over the fact that several of the new members had voluntarily pledged him their support. He is confident that a great majority of his co-workers in the last legislature will support him in a body and with the support of most of the new members he feels that he will be returned to the speaker's chair by a decisive vote.

EXPECT GREATEST SHOW IN COUNTRY

Preparations are being made by the officials of the Southeastern fair to accommodate one of the greatest crowds of visitors and the greatest outlay of exhibits ever seen at the Atlanta exposition. Work is going steadily forward at the grounds on countless inmprovements, according to President J. Oscar Mills, who last night gave out the following statement regarding the activity of the fair association.

"An optimistic outlook for one of the best seasons in the history of the Southeastern fair is held by officials of the association for the coming exposition. Many new improvements will greet the fair visitors this year, all of them of a permanent nature that will add thousands of dollars to the present value of the local fair plant.

"Possibly the greatest single feature in the way of permanent improvement is the completion of the paving of South Pryor street. This offers to motorists a direct route from the city to the entrance to the grounds. A magnificent entrance gate, which will accommodate six automobiles abreast, is being erected at the entrance to the grounds, which will assure fair visitors that there will be no difficulty as far as heavy traffic is concerned, in getting into the grounds. This new gate is situated at the west end of the grounds and the old auto gate will be closed.

"Additions are being built to the swine exhibit building and the cattle pavilion, and a new sheep exhibition building is being erected between the cattle and swine buildings. An office building is being made for the superintendent of the swine show, in which will be provided a directors' room. This building will be equipped with all modern conveniences. We are going to have the finest judging ring for swine in the United States, large enough to accommodate the showing and judging of two breeds at the same time.

"The old judging ring in the swine pavillion will not be torn away, but will be used to judge the pig club entries and the carload show. A new addition is being provided at the swine building for the Georgia Swine Growers' association exhibit.

H. B. Ralls, president of the Georgia Swine Growers' association, will be in charge of the exhibit.

"The old grandstand in the judging ring at the cattle barn will be torn down and the ring itself will be considerably enlarged so that all of the exhibits this year may be well taken care of. All walkways in both the swine and the cattle barns have been paved and this year fair visitors will visit the live stock shows under the most satisfying conditions.

"The sheep pavilion will be situated between the swine and cattle barns, and will be equipped to accommodate 1,000 head of sheep. Last year, when prizes were offered for sheep, we were very agreeably surprised at the large amount of interest which was shown in this department. We expect to have the largest sheep show in this part of the country this year and this is a department which we expect to grow from year to year.

"Des Moines, Iowa, has always been our closest competitor as to the number of animals shown, and their show has already been held this year with an exhibition of 2,500 head. I believe we will far outdo that this year, and again have the greatest show in the country. The fair has, without a doubt, two of the best live stock experts that it is possible to obtain in Superintendent Arthur Brooks, Atlanta, in charge of the cattle exhibit, and Superintendent W. H. Peacock, Cochran, Ga., of the swine show.

Woman Is Taken By Masked Men, Husband Missing

Asheville, N. C., September 16.—A group of masked men intercepted an automobile in which a Mr. and Mrs. Webb, of Greensboro, N. C., were riding near Taylorsville, N. C., Thursday night, and the woman was taken from the car, blindfolded, gagged and threatened with her life, according to meager reports received here tonight.

Mr. Webb and the car are reported as still missing, with the officers of Alexander and Iredell counties in search for Mr. Webb and the machine in order to gain more details. The woman, told to leave on the first train or her life would be forfeited, according to the reports of the affair, left on a southbound train.

Efforts thus far to obtain any clue as to the identity of the masked men have been futile.

Ministry Candidates.

Thomasville, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—Two young men from the Thomasville Presbyterian church, were received as candidates for the ministry at a called meeting of the southwestern Presbytery here this week. Alexander McF. Mitchell and Samuel W. Doss, Jr., were received. Mr. Mitchell has gone to Union Theological Seminary at Richmond, Va., but Mr. Doss will finish his course at high school before going to college.

Members of the Presbytery from out of town were Dr. L. G. Henderson, of Albany; Rev. J. S. Jennings, of Cairo; Dr. E. P. Mickel, of Boston; Dr. D. W. Brannen, of Moultrie; Rev. M. W. Dorsett, Presbyterian evangelist; Messrs McPhaul and Stone, of Doerun, and Messrs Pelham and McPhaul, of Poulan.

CLAIM NEW FACTS IN BERRIEN CASE

Attorneys representing R. N. Berrien, Jr., Atlanta broker who was convicted of embezzlement in connection with the conversion of state school funds, filed a motion in the court of appeals Friday asking for a new trial for Berien. They asserted that new evidence has been found in the case and contend that Berrien is entitled to a new trial. Berrien was sentenced to three years imprisonment.

Berrien was charged with embezzlement of $42,000 of state school funds. He was acting as agent of the state in selling deferred school warrants to New York banking houses. A bill was passed by the legislature at its recent session providing an appropriation for the refunding of the money taken by Berrien to the counties who suffered the loss.

On the trial of this case it was contended by the state and the prosecution that the defendant Berrien was acting for the state, for the state school superintendent, and for the county school superintendent. R. N. Berrien, Jr., in his statement, contended that he was not acting for the state and that contention was made by his counsel.

By the statement made in the letter of Governor Dorsey it appears that the defendant was not an agent for the state, and the statement quoted supports the claim of the defendant made on the trial hereof. The defendant had no knowledge of the letter from Governor Dorsey at the time of the trial, nor was such fact known to any one of the counsel of defendant. Said statement is a material fact and contradicts the evidence on which the defendant was convicted.

Argument will be heard October 4.

S. C. HOUSE, CIVIL WAR VETERAN, DIES

Waycross, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—S. Clarke Houke, 77, veteran of the war between the states, died at his home on College Hill Friday afternoon.

Mr. Houke volunteered into the confederate army when only 16 years of age and served throughout the war, a part of which time he was a member of General Forrest's escort and surrendered at Cartersville, Ga., at the close of the war.

For 25 years Mr. Houke was a traveling salesman and was well known throughout the state. For the greater part of the time since coming to Waycross he has been engaged in the real estate business. He was reared in the Bartow, formerly Cass county, Georgia, but later lived near Calhoun, in Gordon county for a long time, from which point he moved to Waycross more than 15 years ago.

Beside his wife the deceased is survived by one daughter, Miss Sarah Houke, of this city, and one son, S. Clark Houke, who is in the army in the Phillipine islands. Funeral services will be held from the home on College Hill Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Rev. E. F. Morgan, pastor of the First Methodist church, assisted by Dr. J. S. Sibley, of the First Presbyterian church, officiating. Services at the grave will be in charge of the Waycross lodge of Masons, of which the deceased was a member.

Crap Shooting Cow Is Latest Atlanta Novelty

BY GARLAND B. PORTER

A crap-shooting cow is the latest novelty in Atlanta. "Spot," who belongs to Ed North, a negro, living at the corner of Mary and Sims streets, has given birth to twin calves, both bearing the perfect figure of 7 marked on their fore-heads.

Ed is quoted by a neighbor as saying that it is bad enought for a cow to have two calves, but when Spot's twins proved to have the familiar "sebem" on their heads, he don't know whether to become superstitious or indignant.

"Now, if dat cow am tryin' to advertise dat A'm a crap-shooting nigger, it makes me plenty hot," Ed said, according to his neighbor, "But on de other hand, if she ain't thought nothin' bout dem sebems, why den they means somethin' and Ah don't like de looks ob it. Why, man, just 'majine throwin' two sebems at once! Dat means A'm gwin ter hab hawd luck—it sho do.

"Now, Ah ain't nebber had no awful hard luck wid de bones, and if dat ol' cow thinks she am gwine ter 'hoodoo' me she mought's well think some mo.' Ah's just gwine ter keep close watch and the fust time Ah fails to come out on 'Fi'l Joe she's liable ter become beefsteak."

Far be it from anyone who knows Ed to intimate that he is superstitious; but "sebems" surely have some meaning. Take for instance the seven wonders of the world; Niagara Falls, The Spinx, Stone Mountain, watermelons, 'possum and the rest of them—he knows that the mystic figure seven goes away back into the foundation of things that be.

URBAN LEAGUE WEEKLY BULLETIN

The Tampa Tribune, one of the strongest dailies in the state of Florida, has agreed to inaugurate the Urban League Weekly Bulletin. In reply to a communcation of the field secretary, Jesse O. Thomas, Editor W. F. Stovall writes as follows:

"Mr. Jesse O. Thomas, Field Sec'ty.
National Urban league, Atlanta, Georgia.
"Dear Sir:

"We thank you very much for your nice letter of the 18th. The Tribune and myself will be very glad indeed to co-operate with your local organization in every way possible.

"We have some very estimable colored people in this city who deserve all the help and support they can possibly get from our best citizens.

"We will be glad indeed to run your weekly statements concerning the activities of your league.

"Yours very truly,
"The Tampa Tribune Pubg. Co.
"W. F. Stovall, president."

Representatives of the Urban leagues, both local and national, have attended and participated in many of the important national gatherings throughout the nation within the last six or eight weeks. They have addressed the State and National Federation of Colored Womens' Clubs, the National Negro Business league, the National Medical association, the National Social Workers' conference. All of these organizations have been very cordial in their reception of representatives of the league and most generous in their expression of the desire to co-operate with the league for the general betterment of the negro group.

James H. Hubert, executive secretary of the New York Urban league, spoke to the National Council Forum annual gathering at Chautauqua, N. Y., on the subject, "Community Forums' Opportunity in the American Race Problems." Secretary Hubert made the following observations with reference to his experience: "The interest taken in this question was gratifying and somewhat surprising on the part of representatives from all parts of the country including states like Florida, Georgia and Texas. The council expressed its desire to cooperate with the Urban league secretaries wherever possible in promoting open forums, believing that this is one of the agencies that will help along in the handling of our various problems, and that the Urban league is peculiarly fitted to further this movement. I would suggest that you communicate with Mr. George W. Coleman, president of the National Forum Council, Ford Hall, Boston, Mass., requesting literature such as will give an idea of the forum and its plan of organization.

"Yours truly,
"James H. Hubert,
"Executive Secretary."

The Abyssinian Baptist church has undertaken the building of a community house in connection with their new church on 138th street, New York city. This community house will have a lecture room that will accommodate 1,000 people, 14 large rooms for school work, a gymnasium, shower baths, reading rooms, rooms for teaching cooking and sewing, a modern apartment and roof garden. The cost of both structures will be $300,000.

The commission of public welfare, of Greensboro, N. C., is making an effort to secure the gift of a site for a school for delinquent colored boys. In the past, they have had to choose between the alternatives of letting the colored boy go free, keeping him illegally incarcerated in jail or committing him to the Oxford orphanage. The incarceration of these boys with hardened criminals, have proven dangerously unwise.

Katie Kelley, educational agent of the Atlanta Anti-tuberculosis association, has just returned to the city from New York, where she has been studying at the New York school of social work. She was awarded a fellowship and took a six weeks' course in the following subjects: "Visiting Teacher," "Community Organization" and "Social Case Work." She made an excellent record and has returned to take up her health educational work for and in connection with the local branches of the anti-tuberculosis association.

Financial relief for veterans of the World War, dispensed through the veterans' bureau, is now the largest item of federal government expenditure. Approximately $43,522,000 was dispensed to aid ex-soldiers during July. In the same month the war department cost $39,810,000, being the second largest.

Brothers Handle Atlanta PigglyWiggly

J. B. McKIBBON,
Assistant Manager Atlanta chain of Piggly Wiggly stores.

M. P. McKIBBON,
Who has been named manager of Piggly Wiggly in Atlanta.

Although young men yet in their twenties, the McKibbon brothers, as manager and assistant manager of the Piggly Wiggly chain of stores in Atlanta, are holding positions of responsibility that few men of their years have attained.

M. P. McKibbon has for the past four years been associated with the Piggly Wiggly stores. He has been named as manager of the Atlanta chain, to succeed E. F. Newell, who has gone to Dayton, Ohio, to take a similar position there. Mr. McKibbon, before going with the Piggly Wiggly chain in Atlanta, was with the Bank of Talladega, Ala. But being of an observant nature, he foresaw the possibilities with a big chain store such as the Piggly Wiggly. He first entered their service as a bookkeeper's helper. Later he became head bookkeeper, then cashier, and now is made manager of the Atlanta division.

J. B. McKibbon, the brother of the manager, who has just been made assistant manager of the Atlanta division, first entered the Piggly Wiggly service as supply man for the Peachtree street store. Later he was made checker, then promoted to manager, and finally became the produce buyer. He has shown rare ability in the positions he has held, and his rise is no surprise to those who have watched his work with this big chain of stores.

According to plans made public by the new manager, Mr. McKibbon, two more stores will be opened here within the next few weeks, making a total of 20 Piggly Wiggly stores in the city. It is planned to continue opening new stores as rapidly as possible.

The local offices and warehouses of the company are located on Marietta street.

GEORGIA MELON MEN SEE BRIGHT OUTLOOK

Adel, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—Complete satisfaction with the outlook for watermelon production in Georgia under the control of the Georgia Watermelon Growers' association was expressed at the annual meeting of that body at Adel today.

W. F. Whatley, of Helena, said there is an optimistic outlook for Georgia products through co-operative marketing and growing. Mr Whatley presided in the absence of President J. S. Jones who was prevented from attending because of illness.

The watermelon yield in the state the past season was the lowest on record, according to the report of Secretary J. J. Parrish, but the members are well pleased with marketing progress. The secretary's annual report showed that only 1,839 cars were shipped from the 20,452 acres controlled by the association. Weather conditions were blamed for the low yield.

J. B. White, district sales manager of the North American Fruit exchange, told of efforts to advertise Sowega watermelons in the northern markets.

A delegation from Valdosta, including Dr. E. P. Rose, president of the Bank of Valdosta; J. M. Ashley, secretary of the Valdosta Chamber of Commerce, S. E. Johnson, manager of the Lowndes county exchange, and H. C. Albin, of the Kiwanis club, extended an invitation from the several civic bodies of Valdosta to the members of the association to remove their home office to Valdosta. No action was taken.

Confidence of Public In Wall St. Shown

BY C. H. PLATT,
Special to The Constitution.

New York, September 16.—The stock market was quite irregular during the last week, with periods in which the whole list ran up and then reacted and other times during which there were some issues going far into new high ground while others were tending lower. There were indications that the public was buying freely, and that in many places there was so little stock to sell that material advances were necessary before there was much stock offered, which was particularly the case in the railroad equipment issues.

In other instances, however, it was rather apparent that interests who had been holding stocks were very pleased to have someone to sell to, after many weeks of slack public buying, and even were willing to offer stocks down somewhat in order to keep the buying coming. At the start of the week, however, the average prices of the leading stocks moved to new highs for the year both in the industrials and the railroad shares, and there are many reasons for believing that this uncertain tendency is just a natural halting place in a bull market rather than marking anything near the end of the upward movement.

Public Demand Brisk.

There are apparently many issues that have not been prominent in the trading thus far whcih will be brought forward and advanced sharply, now that there is a good public demand on hand. It is also probable that the issues which have had the biggest gains thus far will not be so prominent from now on, unless they first have a thorough reaction and clearing of the market, in which event they may again rush forward to new leadership. Otherwise, it is most probable that new issues will take the premier position while the former leading issues are standing still or reacting a little.

A thorough cleaning out of the market is not due at this time, however, and only a temporary reaction every few days is all that can be expected for a week or two, possibly for several weeks more of generally higher levels. A very large proportion of the buying has been for investment and the stock removed from the market or else has been on heavier margin than to make the position of the market dangerous.

This has been why the drives of professionals to dislodge stock have failed and will fail until much more buying of a weak kind has taken place. It is also improbable that any severe reactions will be seen until more activity and strength has taken place in the more speculative stocks.

The majority of the issues that have been the strongest for the last month or more are either good investment issues or are of fair ranking from the investment viewpoint. Even issues that are of stable character and have good prospects for dividends but are not now on a dividend basis have not been prominent.

Speculations Fail.

The out and out speculations also have failed to be active or strong. When the quite speculative issues come to the fore and have wilder movements, there will be something to fear for the market as a whole, for then the movement will be near to an end, for the time at least. Nothing has arisen to suggest that this condition is any nearer than six weeks away, and general strength through the month of October seems to be fairly certain, with reactions to the meantime brief and unimportant as a whole.

The slightly disturbing conditions of the money market in the last week, with the government financing for the 15th and the sale of a new issue of certificates of indebtedness, plus a new crisis in German affairs, were not given as much attention as was the somewhat weakened technical position of the market.

The weakness in this regard, however, was overestimated by professionals who attempted to bring about more severe reactions and failed. It was the same as in the previous week when a small general reaction was in order and when it got somewhat beyond the natural limit and shorts tried to force a material decline, offerings were withdrawn suddenly and the market rallied rather heavily.

There has been a backing of some of the most important financial and banking interests in the country for the market during the last year and they are still back of it and probably will be for most of the next year, with the outlook now for a sharp reaction only through the late fall and early December and one in the winter and another in the spring, in what appears to be another year ahead of generally strong markets.

It appears, however, that the current movement will have a rather definite culmination near the turn of October-November, and that the next movement will be a new bull market rather than a steady continuation of the present one, much as the spring rise was definitely ended in June and a new market started in July.

Money Market Firm.

The money market showed a somewhat firmer tone, but this was a natural development of the fall season when crop moving needs and business borrowing increases, also of the government withdrawals of funds and financing. The outlook is rather strong for a definitely higher trend in money rates through the next six or eight weeks, but not of any decided pinch that would force real liquidation in securities or elsewhere. It is to be expected, however, that the rise in money rates will be large enough to force down any undue inflation in stock trading that may develop next month and the outlook for that inflation is sufficiently strong to dove-tail with the prospect for a slight shortage of funds near November 1 or soon after that date.

The higher trend in money is not expected to go far enough to hurt the bond market and there is every indication that bond prices will hold generally firm for some time to come. It appears that the demand for capital for business enterprises may not increase out of proportion to the supply of funds for at least another six months, possibly not for another year, and that by that time bond prices will have advanced much further and, therefore, if investments are injured then, it will be in the nature of losing some of the further advances rather than declining from around present levels for the highest grade issues.

Bond experts, in fact, say that even when a time of higher money rates is seen, there will then be an increasing turning to safe investments rather than the condition that caused the severe decline in bond prices in 1919 and through much of 1920.

The railroad equipment stocks had tremendous advances in recent weeks and reached the highest levels in years early in the last week, when a point was reached where offerings increased so greatly that sharp though long overdue reactions were seen. The strength in these issues was a direct result of the placing of many new orders for cars and locomotives in recent months and a strong outlook for more of this business for several years to come. The railroads have not enough equipment to handle the expected further great increases in traffic this fall, and there is every reason to expect further gain in freight next year.

Oil Wells Fail.

Parts of Mexican oil fields have almost failed as a source of production and some of the expected development in new fields has failed because of dry holes where oil had been looked for. The importance of this to the domestic oil industry can be measured when it is realized that most of the surplus production of the last year has been the equivalent of the oil imported from Mexico, also that consumption of oil here is heavier than domestic production by a good margin but is not equal to the previous combined Mexican import and domestic output. This situation has created a new feeling of enthusiasm for domestic oil stocks and they have been stronger recently.

The unexpected big sales of automobiles last winter and spring was one of the first proofs that the depression of 1920-21 was over, and the indication of coming prosperity was carried further in large demand for motor cars during the summer. It is apparent that this is going to continue and that the fall sales of automobiles will be larger than in any previous fall.

The leading steel companies that have been figuring on mergers plan to go ahead with these combinations and to take legal steps to defend any opposition that may come from the federal trade commission. There are many other mergers in various industries that have been planned for some time, but have been held back to see what the government will do, that will go into effect as soon as the steel companies succeed in their mergers, if such proves to be the case that they do succeed.

Copper Sales Small.

Copper metal sales have been small in volume, but prices have held firm and an active inquiry that is before the market is expected to result in some good business before very long, on a rising scale of prices. The selling interests look for 15 cent copper in less than a month and believe that 16 cents a pound for copper before the year is well within range of probability.

The steel industry has been operating on a higher ration and there is every indication that the balance of the year will witness increasing activity in this trade. Steel prices are still tending upward and many companies are showing increasing earnings.

The cotton market has been firmer and has a good prospect for additional advances in the next few weeks as the boll weevil damage is apparently growing and an increasing demand from domestic mills has been in evidence since the strike in New England establishments was settled. Private estimates of conditions indicate that further loss has been seen since the latest government figures were published and that there is now not much hope for an actual production of over 10,000,000 bales from this crop.

Pearson, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—C. E. Stewart, representative-elect from Atkinson county, will be in the race for speaker of the house in 1923. Mr. Stewart served eight years in the legislature and has a wide experience as to the duties of a representative.

He possesses all the requirements of a presiding officer, say his friends, who think he will make a strong race for the speakership.

New York, September 16.—Disposition to even up commitments for over the week-end was promoted by nervousness over the near eastern situation and the price movement in the cotton market today was irregular. After selling off to 21.62 at the start, December rallied to 21.69, but later broke to 21.45, closing at that level. The general market closed barely steady at a net decline of 5 to 15 points.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 7 points under overnight selling orders with active months showing net loss of 4 to 11 points under scattering liquidation. As soon as these initial offerings had been absorbed the market steadied up on trade buying and net decline of 5 to 15 points.

The market opened steady at unchanged to a decline of 7 points under overnight selling orders, with active months soon showing net losses of 4 to 11 points under scattering liquidation. As soon as the initial offerings had been absorbed, the market steadied up on trade buying and covering promoted by favorable reports from the cotton goods situation, reiterated claims of a steady spot basis in the south and reports that a tropical disturbance had shown itself near Martinique.

This is the season of the year when such storms sometimes reach the gulf coasts, and while the disturbance was too far distant and too uncertain in its future course to be considered threatening, there probably was some covering on an idea that it might develop more importantly over the week-end.

After selling up from 21.29 cents to 31.43 cents for October and from 21.39 cents to 21.55 for January, however, the market eased under scattering liquidation and some further southern selling was also reported here on the late forenoon break. This carried October off to 21.24 cents and January to 21.34 cents or 9 to 16 points net lower and the close was at about the lowest on most positions. One of the features was the narrowing of the difference between October and December to about 18 or 20 points as compared with 27 points at the close of the previous day, and trade interests were among the near months buyers. Sales of print cloths in the Fall River market for the week were estimated at 300,000 pieces.

NEW YORK SPOTS.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON CLOSES UNSETTLED

New Orleans, September 16.—Nervous and unsettled in the early trading today, the cotton market turned softer in the late trading and finally closed at net losses of 3 to 6 points. While war news was regarded as highly unfavorable and unquestionably was the dominating factor of the session, sellers were held in check by anxiety over weather conditions in the belt during the next day or two, those conditions being complicated by the appearance of another hurricane in the West Indies.

News from Asia Minor was the main influence on the opening but early declines were held down to only 2 to 5 points because of the first reports concerning a hurricane at the extreme eastern end of the Caribbean sea. Too much rain in the southern portion of the belt and the favorable character of week-end reviews of trade in general were a support for a while and after the first decline the market rallied until it stood 12 to 16 points higher than the last prices of yesterday. October traded as high as 20.87.

At the middle of the session reports were being received from the interior by brokers that the spot basis was firmer in many sections and this helped to restrict offerings but gradually, selling increased because of the fear that over Sunday accounts from the Near East might become even more serious. Lowest prices came late in the day when the trading months were 5 to 14 points down, net, with October at 20.61c.

Stock Letter.

There was considerable pressure at the opening today due to unfavorable foreign news and the lists soon turned reactionary.

Foreign bonds were also inclined to give ground, in stocks the chief points of weakness were many recent leaders, such as American Woolen and Studebaker.

The oils were featured at the opening with special strength in Sinclair on publication of six months' report showing earnings at annual rate of about $7 before charges off. This group acted well throughout the session, particularly Mexican Petroleum, which ran counter to the general trade.

Of late there has been a marked improvement in oil industry. The zinc stocks showed conspicuous strength in the face of the general downward tendency. The position of the zinc industry is excellent with only a few weeks' supply of spelter on hand and sharp price advances anticipated.

We continue optimistic as to the long range possibilities of the market, but advise caution for the time being until it becomes more clearly evident that reactionary tendencies have been halted.

Although technical reactions must be expected occasionally, in this connection there is some doubt as to the immediate future prices and we believe nothing would be lost by withholding purchases temporarily pending a possible further setback or the confident advance into new highgr ound by the industries.—Doremus, Daniel g Co.

New York, September 16.—Frequent strong Liverpool markets coupled with an extremely bullish weekly weather report, showing general deterioration over the cotton belt, were responsible for flashes of strength in the American cotton markets during the week. Small spot demand was productive of heavy future hedge selling from time to time and this acted as a check to efforts of local bulls to advance prices. The very best trade interests are bullish and are buying futures steadily on a scale down. There is nothing in the situation to warrant the expectation of any serious decline from present levels. The impending crop shortage is definite and bound to bring about very much higher prices sooner or later. Meantime good trading markets are certain. We strongly favor purchases of March and May. Quick profits of 50 or 60 points are likely to result on purchases made on all easy periods.—James W. Doran & Co.

New York, September 16.—The market was a trifle easier today on the unsettled European conditions. Therew as a moderate amount of hedge selling, also government selling orders were put in the market due to the declining market of yesterday. We understand the western interests have sold considerable cotton on the theory that the situation in Turkey would bring on further complication and delay trade revival. We hear from the south that the spot demand still continues good and that southern mills are still buying considerable cotton. Monday will probably bring in further hedge selling against cotton bought late this afternoon. We look for a nervous market temporarily, but just so long as the spot basis continues steady we feel prices will not decline to any great extent on the closing; market today was rather easy.—Hubbard Bros. & Co.

New York, September 16.—October cotton closed last week 21.72 high; this week 21.98; low 21.24; closing tonight 21.25. The highest prices were made under the influence of heavy demand for our goods and midmonth private condition reports indicating a crop in the neighborhood of 10,000,000 bales. The lower prices were caused by the unsettled feeling due to the war activities of the Turks and consequent political unrest in Europe.

As the week ended reports of vanishing spot demand came in, together with willingness on the part of merchants to sell, and selling spot cotton for forward shipment at a reduced basis.

Buying in the futures market was unusually heavy for a Saturday and reflects the old faith in higher prices. The new influence of the foreign situation undoubtedly caused the heavy selling, and probably induced the slackening spot demand. The outlook is that this condition may have a far-reaching effect upon sentiment and possibly upon confidence.

FEW FRACTIONAL BOND CHANGES

New York, September 16.—Few important changes took place in today's dealings on the stock market standard issues, showing only fractional changes.

Some ordinary active issues, such as Louisville and Nashville unified 4s and Remington Arms 6s and declined a point as did Belgian 7s and Chicago and Alton 3s, while distillers securities corporation 5s and Bethlehem Steel refunding 5s moved up a point or more.

French municipal issues steadied after an early display of weakness, the net losses generally being measures in small fractions. Expectation of a presidential veto of the soldiers' bonus bill was held responsible for the firmness in Liberty issues.

Total sales, par value, were $7,436,000.

WOODWARD HITS AT WALTER SIMS

Opponent Stands for Just Two Things, "Religious Intolerance and Bunco," He Asserts.

"Walter Taylor, the political boss of city hall and the chief of the city hall political ring, would be mayor of Atlanta, if Walter Sims is elected," James G. Woodward charged in a card which he issued Saturday.

An analysis of Mr. Sims' speeches shows that he stands for just two things—"religious intolerance and bunco," according to Mr. Woodward.

He accused Sims, of circulating false statements, which, he says, must be "quite in accord with the '12-20' club and the city hall ring, headed by Walter G. Taylor."

Woodward's Statement.

Mr. Woodward's statement follows:

To the People of Atlanta—On next Wednesday you will be called upon to nominate a mayor to serve you during the next two years—a period in which the most important improvements in Atlanta's whole history are going to be made.

The issues between my opponent and myself in this campaign are well known. I stripped them bare in the first public speech I made. It now is up to the voters to decide what is best for Atlanta's welfare, and I rest my case with them in the hope that this may be the controlling factor when they vote on September 20.

My opponent has circulated various false statements about me, all of which he knew were false. He has conducted a campaign of mud-slinging, quite in keeping with his standing as a lawyer, and undoubtedly quite in accord with the ideals of the "12-20" club and the city hall ring, headed by Walter C. Taylor, that is backing his candidacy.

Mr. Sims is running for mayor, but he would not and could not be mayor in fact, even if he were elected. Walter Taylor, the political boss of the city hall and the chief of the city hall political ring, would be mayor of Atlanta. This must be apparent to any person who knows the real situation.

Mr. Sims has made many speeches, but an analysis of them shows he has stood for just two things—religious intolerance and "bunco." That is his platform, as any person who has heard him speak will testify.

"Unworthy and Unfit."

I charge that any man who injects religion into a political campaign, and tries to ride into office on a crest of a wave of religious prejudice, is unworthy and unfit to serve the public in any capacity, much less in the high office of mayor.

The people showed conclusively last week that they have tired of this kind of thing when they defeated Carl F. Hutcheson, who was seeking a judgeship. Mr. Hutcheson and Mr. Sims are closely affiliated; they are members of the same clique; they attend the same dark lantern conferences; their viewpoints are identical. In fact, they are "buddies."

Atlanta is to be congratulated that Hutcheson was overwhelmingly defeated last week. Atlanta ought to finish the job next Wednesday by burying Sims under an avalanche of ballots.

Mr. Sims blows and bellows about the "bunco" investigation, which he headed. He says the worst kind of vice conditions were uncovered by his committee. If that be true, why was not something done about it by the courts? In almost every instance those tried on these "bunco" charges were acquitted, and in other cases the persons accused were set scotfree, or their indictments nolprossed by the same officer who first went out to clean up the "bunco" situation.

The truth is, Mr. Sims is trying to "bunco" the people and hide the real issue in the campaign. Why should he champion clean conditions, when it is common knowledge that he represents more crooks, bootleggers and automobile thieves than any lawyer in Atlanta. He is strictly a police court lawyer.

My friends know that I favor clean government. They know I will not raise any bogus issues to get votes. They know how successful I was in my four previous administrations in keeping the crooks out of Atlanta.

Cleanup Promised.

They know that if I find anything wrong with the police department I will without hesitation set myself to the task of cleaning it up. They know further that I will be fair in all public matters; that I will never be controlled by designing politicians or actuated by prejudice.

My record is before the people of Atlanta. They are thoroughly familiar with it. They know what I have done and they know what I will do.

Mr. Sims' record, if he has any, also is before them. What does he stand for? He has made many promises, but how are the people to know how many of them the "12-20" club and City Clerk Taylor, the political boss, will let him keep.

If the good people of Atlanta are sufficiently interested in their government to go to the polls Wednesday, victory for clean and honest government will be achieved.

Men and women of Atlanta, the issues have been stated; you know the situation. It is up to you.

J. G. WOODWARD.

In preparation for the fifty-sixth national encampment of the G. A. R., which is to be held September 24 to 29 at Des Moines, Ia., a questionnaire is to be sent out among Grand Army veterans to determine the youngest and oldest members. These heroes are to be feted and paraded during the encampment celebration.

The oldest apple tree in the northwest is said to be near Vancouver, Washington, and grew from a seed brought from England nearly 100 years ago.

Simple Application That Dissolves Blackheads

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blemishes blackheads. There is one simple, safe and sure way to get them out and that is to dissolve them. Get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub briskly over the blackheads for a few seconds—wash the parts and every blackhead will be gone.

Pinching and squeezing out blackheads will make large pores and you cannot get all of the blackheads out this way—while this simple application of calonite powder and water dissolves every particle of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition.—(adv.)

'Sign Board' War Brings Bloodshed Into Zion City

Zion City, Ill., September 16.—Zionists and "independents" marshaled their forces tonight following the first bloodshed in the "signboard" war of Zion City.

The message on the board advised all "religious bums, thugs and vagabonds to seek another city" and not disturb the peace of Zion.

Shortly after the bomb smeared the signboard, Ford Wilson, son-in-law of the Rev. Thomas H. Nelson, pastor of the Grace church, was knocked out in a fist fight with D. H. Darrow. Both men were arrested and released on $200 bonds.

A crowd which stopped to see the fight refused to move when a policeman arrived and a rough and tumble occurred in which none of them were seriously injured.

The signboards were erected by Wilbur Glenn Voliva, overseer of the Zionists, in an attempt to urge the "independents" to establish churches "anywhere outside of Zion."

MURIEL M'CORMICK OPENS HAT STORE

Chicago, September 16.—Miss Muriel McCormick, granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller, and hardly past 20, opened a millinery shop today, half a block from her elevatorless third-floor flat. She started in business and moved into her own private quarters at the same time, having stated repeatedly that she wishes to make her way without dependence upon the fame or fortune of her father, Harold F. McCormick, chairman of the board of the International Harvester company, or her famous grandfather. Her declaration of independence, however, related more specifically to her musical and grand opera aspirnats, rather than to her modest business enterprise. She announced she expected to spend part of every day at her shop, and devote the rest of her time to her musical education.

AGED VETERAN, HELD FOR MURDER, SILENT

Kittaning, Pa., September 16.— Andrew Davis, 89, a civil war veteran lay in a state of collapse in jail here tonight, unable to tell the story of the shooting of David S. Moxon, of Pittsburg, a mine superintendent, for whose murder he is held.

The police say Davis nearly blew Moxon to pieces with a charge from a shotgun at close range after accusing the latter of intimate relations with his daughter.

Moxon died in the Kittanning hospital today. The aged veteran refused to make any statement at the time of his arrest.

The day was replete with something or other doing all the time—automobile races, horse races, trick riding and box fighting, in addition to the amusements which are always prevalent at Lakewood. The object was to secure enough from the proceeds to send a large delegation of local legionnaires to New Orleans for the legion convention in October, and if the size of the crowd which packed the stands is any indication, Atlanta will be well represented when the veterans gather.

Americans Work To Make Germany Go Prohibition

Berlin, September 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—Americans are taking an active part in the movement to put Germany on the dry list. Recent meetings held in various parts of the country presented speakers from Connecticut and Minnesota, who described the progress of the prohibition movement in the United States.

These gatherings have revealed a surprising amount of sentiment among the people in favor of the abolition of alcohol, it is asserted in a statement by Dr. Reinhard Strecker, of Darmstadt, president of the committee conducting the campaign and former Hessian minister of education.

He expressed special surprise and pleasure at the moderation and abstinence now being shown by the young men. The best sections of Germany's youth are against alcohol, Dr. Strecker said, and these no longer drink, or even smoke. He added:

In 1920 United States railroads paid $119,832,127 for damages and loss to freight.

GEORGIA, FULTON COUNTY—Personally appeared before the undersigned, Marcus W. Beck, who on oath says that his campaign expenses for the position of Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Georgia in the Democratic primary held September 13, 1922, were as follows:

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 15th day of September, 1922.

W. B. TALLEY,
Deputy Clerk Supreme Court of Georgia.

YOU WANT TO VOTE FAIRLY Then Read The Facts Below

Newspaper space is expensive. I have not the financial backing my opponent has, I cannot therefore continually answer unfair and untrue charges made in paid advertisements.

C. S. ROBERT.

Here Are The FACTS

On September 2, 1922, H. L. Collier, Chief of Construction, voluntarily gave out the following statement:

I have stated several times in this campaign that I do not feel that this race should be made on a basis of recrimination. I had hoped to run on my own merits, and my opponent would run on his.

"It has been brought to my attention that certain speakers advocating the election of Mr. W. A. Hansell have charged Mr. C. S. Robert, another candidate, in the Construction Department in charge of street work with the responsibility for the holes in the city streets. If there IS responsibility, let that be charged to me."

H. L. COLLIER, Chief of Construction.

My opponent in the race for Chief of Construction, Mr. William A. Hansell, undoubtedly read this public statement, however, notwithstanding this, on September 15, believing that you had forgotten this, the following advertisement appeared in the Atlanta newspapers:

This is the sixth year my opponent has been in charge of the street department. Are you satisfied with their repair and maintenance? Vote for
William A. Hansell
For Chief of Construction on Next Wednesday.

During the years 1911, 1912, 1913 and 1914 Mr. Hansell was assistant Chief of Construction. During that time he should have learned the following facts: THAT:

The Finance committee of the General Council, budgets expenditures to be made in the repair of streets each year. Each ward is allocated a certain per cent of this budget: The street committeeman of each ward has the recommending power to the street committee in the disbursing of the appropriation; the street committee recommending to General Council and General Council approving. The Engineer in charge of streets (which is my present position) has nothing whatever to do with all this.

HE UNDOUBTEDLY DOES KNOW THIS, BUT HE IS PRESUMING THAT YOU ARE TOO IGNORANT TO KNOW THESE FACTS.

In the afternoon newspapers of that date he inserted the following ad:

$1,500 was appropriated to repair North Boulevard from North Avenue to 8th Street. The Money has been spent by the Street Department of which my opponent is head. Look at the street and vote for William A. Hansell for Chief of Construction.

Mr. Hansell knows, and knew when he paid for this advertisement that not one penny of this money has been spent of this appropriation on this street. He knew that the material had been ordered (it in fact arrived today) and that work on the repair of the street will begin this week. If you doubt these facts, make your own investigation through Mr. H. L. Collier, who is in charge of this work.

AS TO OUR RESPECTIVE ABILITY.

Have Mr. Hansell tell you how he would repair East 10th Street, which he laid in 1917, as County Engineer. Ask him to explain the present condition of Peachtree Road he laid in 1918. Ask him about Bellwood Avenue he laid in 1919. What would be the result under the "Baby Bond Act" if these were laid by the city of Atlanta with five to seven years yet to run on the bond.

We can refer you to many other streets faultily built by Mr. Hansell within the city limits when he was Asisstant Chief of Construction and Superintendent of Public Works of Fulton County.

This should be of interest to you:

Why should Mr. Hansell give up an "IRON CLAD, five-year CONTRACT" providing a salary of $6,000 per year with 10 per cent bonus for a $4,000.00 position as chief of construction? ASK HIM AND THEN ASK YOURSELF.

ROBERT CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE.

The Candidate and His Backers

James G. Woodward, candidate for mayor, states that he was put into the race by his friends.

Let us see who they are.

Let us see who Dr. Ingram is.

At the county court house the records show that Dr. R. F. Ingram was indicted by the grand jury on the first day of July, 1919, and on August 23, 1919, entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to six months or to pay a fine of $250, which he paid. The prosecution in this case, Lamar Poole, prosecutor, was based on a raid by U. S. revenue officers and city detectives with a county deputy and seven officers on the house at 431 Washington street, a gambling house. Among the things found at this house on this raid were:

135 pints of whisky
14 quarts
136 quarts
2 quarts
60 gallons

Dr. Ingram was indicted by the grand jury in U. S. court July 7, 1920 for removing and concealing 50 quarts and was convicted. He has a police court record, we are informed.

The Dresses

—Even the least expensive of them has an air that is charming! And as they mount upward in price they become more and more beautiful. Of fine Canton crepes, crepe satins and charmeuse. In graceful, clinging styles with flying panels here and an exquisite draping there, rich Egyptian embroidery, unique belt ornaments, beading and long fringe to give them beauty.

The Suits

—They start out at $23.75 by being smartly and severely tailored, but, ah! the graceful lines of them! And then as the prices advance, one finds them covered with a profusion of silk embroidery, the lines of the coat broken by soft blousing or lengthened by a loose, fringed panel, the cuffs and collars softened by rich furs. They're of veldine, caracul, panvelaine, gerona, lustrosa, tricotine, Poiret twill and trico twill. Trimmed with fox, squirrel, beaver, caracul, kid, mole and beaver furs.

The Coats

—Luxurious pile fabrics such as panvelaine, chentilla, arabella, velour, plush, fashiona, andreau superior, marvella and gerona are the materials that give these coats beauty. Then they're furred with dyed squirrel, natural squirrel, fox and beaver, hung with long fringed tassels, run with smartly tailored welts, embroidered and caught with cabochons until they're delightful to look upon.

Dresses for Larger Girls Are Priced $12.98 to $27.50

—With all the style of grown-up dresses these 14 and 16-year frocks have loose panels, long sashes that fall below the hemline, drapery, tassels and the like. They're fashioned of velvet, check velour, Canton crepe, French serge, Poiret twill, wool crepe and the new sesura cloth. Some have cire ribbon sashes; some have patent leather appliques embroidered on. Others have loose panels lined with bright silk; still others show varicolored Egyptian embroidery. WILLYS-OVERLAND REDUCES PRICES

F. S. Patterson, manager of the Atlanta branch of Willys-Overland, Inc., received telegraphic advice from the factory at Toledo, Saturday night, that Willys-Knight and Overland cars had been reduced in price. Each model, including the chassis, is affected by the price change. The reduction varies from $25 to $145. Mr. Patterson stated Saturday night that the reduction was a great surprise to him, but that he was glad to learn that increased production and its corresponding economies in production had made it possible for them to offer an even greater value.

The business of the Atlanta branch alone has shown an increase in sales of several hundred per cent in the past several months. According to Mr. Patterson, this increase has been maintained to a certain extent in every branch territory.

STRIKE AGREEMENT DOES NOT AFFECT CENTRAL RAILROAD

The Central of Georgia railroad has issued the following statement:

The Central of Georgia railway was not a party to the negotiations whereby certain railways will take back all of their striking employees and is not directly interested in the matter.

The closing chapter in the shopmen's strike, so far as the Central of Georgia railway is concerned, was written on September 11 when, at the instance of our present employees and in accordance with the suggestion of the United States railway labor board, contracts were signed with two new unions, not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, the Central of Georgia Railway Car Men's association, and the Central of Georgia Railway Sheet Metal Trades. These agreements are entirely satisfactory to both management and men.

The shop forces of the Central of Georgia are 85 per cent of the number employed prior to the strike. More work is being turned out than before the strike. There are only a few vacancies on the system, less than 500, and it would be impossible for us to take back more than that number of our former employees.

We handled, during the first half of September, 25½ per cent more business than for the like period of last year, and we are pleased with the situation.

SNELLING-SWINT TIRE COMPANY HAS BIG SALE

The Snelling-Swint Tire Company, local dealers for Firestone and Oldfield tires report one of the largest weeks sales in the history of Firestone and Oldfield retail sales in Atlanta.

This company, by purchasing in car load shipments, direct from the factory effect a saving which permits them to offer these standard make tires at a price closely competing with the off brand makes. They have recently sold their second car load shipment, and received another the early part of last week, which was placed on sale Thursday, with record sales, both to car owners and commercial accounts, according to the statement of Harry Snelling.

'Made in Atlanta' Show Will Open On Monday Night

By dawn on Monday morning the hundred or more exhibitors of the Atlanta Manufacturers' exposition will be at work installing their displays at the Auditorium, connecting the electric wires with their booths and starting the motors spinning, and when the big "Made-in-Atlanta Show" opens at 7 o'clock Monday night it is expected that everything will be going at full blast.

For several weeks the exhibitors have been preparing their displays, many of them building special machinery for installation at the Auditorium or preparing miniature factories for turning out their goods. A visit to the exposition will be like a tour through Atlanta's manufacturing district, except that it will mean far less time and trouble, and most factories are too busy to welcome visitors.

The curious folk who always want to know just how things are made and just what material goes into them will have an excellent opportunity at the "Made-in-Atlanta Show," and the man who stands in front of a show window for half an hour to watch somebody "making something" will find one evening all too short for a tour of the exhibits.

There will be exhibits showing the making of flour and automobile tires, of show cases and ice cream, of paper bags and automobile tops, of spring beds and neckties, of motor trucks and paints, to mention only a few of the displays. Those manufacturers whose machinery is too heavy to permit temporary installations will have exhibits showing their products in various stages of manufacture.

Thousands of visitors are expected at the "Made-in-Atlanta Show" all through the week, as the approach of the exhibition dates has occasioned a great deal of interest. There will be no charge for admission to the Manufacturers' exposition, and the public is invited to visit it at any time between 10 a. m. and 10 p. m., see the exhibits and carry home an armful of free souvenirs. There will be many valuable samples of Atlanta-made products distributed by the exhibitors, including thousands of Eskimo pies and other forms of ice cream.

Saturday will be Children's Day, but the young folks will be welcome at any time they choose to visit the Exposition.

MACON EDITOR'S HOME IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

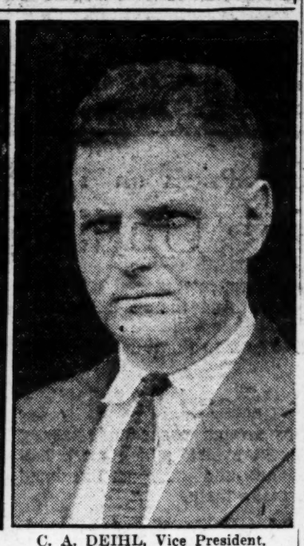

Macon, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—Fire, which started in the home of Matt O'Hara, 419 Forsyth street, this afternoon, badly damaged that house and spreading to the home of M. L. Richardson, managing editor of The Macon Telegraph, gutted the Richardson home.

For a time it appeared that several other houses would be destroyed, but the firemen finally confined the flames to the two dwellings mentioned. The loss from the Richardson home was the heaviest, being estimated at $5,000, partially covered by insurance.

Atlanta Lubricating Company Pushing Tiolene Motor Oils

L. W. LA BLANCE, President.

C. A. DEIHL, Vice President.

The Atlanta Lubricating company has been appointed distributors for Tiolene motor oil, and has inaugurated a vigorous sales and advertising drive in the Atlanta territory.

This is a new company, but is composed of well-known local men. L. W. LaBlance, president, has been identified with the distribution of high grade oils in Georgia and the southeast during the past six years. L. A. Deihl, better known as "Fuzzy," is vice-president. "Fuzzy" is well known among the young business men of Atlanta and the oil trade, with which he has been identified for some time. Mr. LaBlance is a graduate automobile engineer and technical lubrication expert.

They have in the past few weeks secured a distribution among the better dealers in the Atlanta district, which is not only a credit to their organization, but a distinct compliment to Tiolene as well.

Tiolene is made from Cabin Creek premium Pennsylvania crude and is said to be one of the highest grade oils made from any base oil. During recent races here Tiolene has made some splendid showings, according to Mr. Deihl.

"On July 4," says Mr. Deihl, "the two winners, Johnnie Aiken and Bob Luton, driving a Stutz and Essex, respectively, made some very good time and beat everything in the field of starters. During the first 24-hour motorcycle race, the American championship, held at Lakewood park on August 11 and 12, this year, R. C. Sligh, of Augusta, Ga., traveled 1,151 miles without a single bit of motor trouble, using this oil. Thus, during 24 hours he averaged 48 miles per hour. The second rider Hiram McAbee, of Nashville, Tenn., covered 1,044 miles during the 24-hour period. Harry Sweet, No. 3, traveled 1,025 miles, and No. 4, Lewis Lawler, went a total of 1,023 miles, all without any motor trouble, using Tiolene oil.

"If the motor says oil is good, it is good and that is all there is to it," says Mr. LaBlance.

McMillin to Head New Insurance Firm Formed in Atlanta

Joe L. McMillin, Saturday became president of the recently organized McMillin, Powell & Co. The new company, which will have offices in the Healy building, will represent the Volunteer State Life Insurance company in Georgia, of which Mr. McMillin has been Georgia manager for some time. Mr. McMillin was former manager of the southern division of the American Red Cross. Other officers of the new company include Henry M. Powell, vice-president, and C. A. Hill, secretary and treasurer. The personnel of the new organization will consist largely of former employees of Mr. McMillin. The organization of the new company was caused by the rapidly expanding business of Mr. McMillin's agency, and the enlargement of its work.

WAYCROSS SCHOOLS WILL OPEN MONDAY

Waycross, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—The city schools of Waycross will open Monday. Registration of pupils has been going on this week. Superintendent Miller stated today that he expected a decided decrease in the number of pupils attending the local schools this year, due to the fact that the Hebardville school, which was burned last year, has been rebuilt and will accommodate the pupils of that section who last year were brought to Waycross to attend school.

The first faculty meeting of the year will be held Saturday afternoon, when the work for the year will be outlined. The majority of the teachers will arrive tonight or tomorrow morning.

DECATUR SERVICE MEN REORGANIZE POST OF LEGION

An enthusiastic body of ex-service men of Decatur met on Friday night in the U. D. C. chapter house and reorganized the Harold Byrd post of the American Legion.

The following officers were elected: Dr. J. F. Pifferman, commander; C. M. Candler, Jr., vice commander; N. A. Pratt, adjutant; Thomas Harderman, treasurer; W. A. Christie, historian, and Joseph F. Gardner, chaplain. This reorganization was perfected in pursuance of the general policy of the state department to have all dormant posts to become active before January 1, 1923.

B. P. Gambrell, of Atlanta, state executive committeeman, was present and assisted in the reorganization.

After the business meeting adjourned the young ladies of the town served ice cream and cake and a social meeting was held.

AUTO VICTIM BURNED IN ATHENS CEMETERY

Athens, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—Instantly killed when run down by an automobile near his home in Jones county, R. W. Watson, aged 60 years, was buried in the Gus Roberts cemetery. The car that killed Mr. Watson was a truck belonging to the Mason Grocery company, of Gray, Ga., reports say, and was driven by a negro. The deceased is survived by two sons and six daughters.

Keys of Church Given to Sheriff To End Quarrel

Rome, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—Judge Moses P. Wright today moved to compose the differences of the Rome branch of the Church of God and the Tennessee branch, when he directed the sheriff to take possession of the keys to the Rome church and turn them over to each branch on alternate Sundays.

The court's order was given in the injunction filed by the Rome branch to restrain the Tennessee branch from entering the Rome church from its own building because of basic differences in the belief of the Tennessee church and the Rome congregation.

The Rome church claims to be a separate organization, owing no allegiance to the Tennessee body. So bitter became the chism that police interference was necessary recently to avoid violence. The Tennessee church had barred the doors of the Rome church and attached new locks to prevent entrance. Whe the local pastor and his flock attempted to batter down the doors to worship in their own building the Tennessee church ousted the pastor. Rome members, however, refused to recognize the authority for removing their pastor, and he is retained.

The state democratic convention may nominate a candidate for the general election to be held in November, and Judge Thigpen's friends are sponsoring his candidacy.

DODGE BROTHERS SEDAN

The first thing you will notice about the car is the new and distinctive beauty which Dodge Brothers have brought to it.

The cowl is higher and more graceful. The radiator is more dashingly shaped. A new smartness and distinction of line is obvious from end to end.

The upholstery is done in genuine mohair velvet of the finest quality. Rear arm rests and deep, wide seats contribute to the comfort of riding.

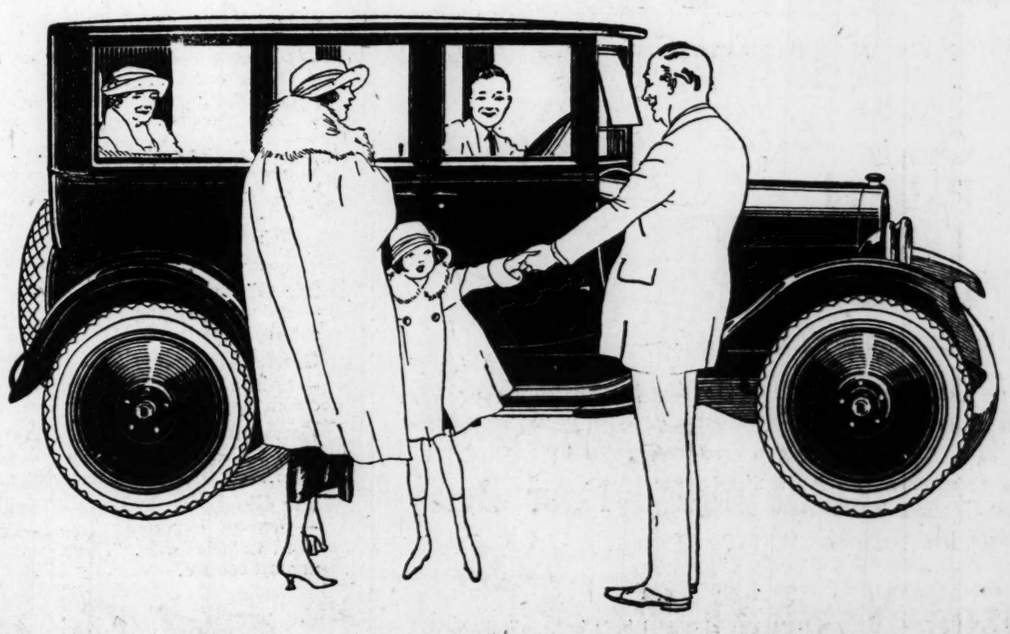

The fittings and trimmings are in excellent taste, and include nickeled window regulators, etched dome light, horsehair carpets, body heater, windshield cleaner, Yale door locks and weather-stripped doors and windows.

Eighteen coats of paint and varnish, hand-applied over an equal number of days, account for the exquisite finish of the exterior.

Steel disc wheels (with cord tires) harmonize with the lines of the body and screen the under parts of the chassis.

Yet in spite of its ample and inviting luxury, owners will tell you that the cost of running the car is exceptionally low.

Junior Chamber Ready for Burial Of 'Carelessness'

Unique Parade Will Be Feature of the First Day of "Safety Week."

BY GARLAND B. PORTER.

The big "Safety First" week of the junior chamber of commerce is now on. Monday the first actual demonstration will be made before the citizens of Atlanta. At 11 o'clock a unique parade will course through the principal streets of the city.

The junior chamber has announced that a death has occurred in the city of Atlanta. The dead man will be laid to rest Monday morning. His name is "Mr. Downright Carelessness." As a matter of fact, the parade, which leaves Baker street at 11 o'clock, is to be a funeral march for "Mr. Carelessness." Roy LeCraw will officiate at the burial, and Robert Troy will render Chopin's "Funeral March" on his mouth organ. Horse blankets, beautifully decorated with little medallions of bullfrogs being croaked under the cruel heels of automobile tractors, and bearing the legend "Don't tread on me," will be distributed to the mourners.

With the funeral procession will move a cavalcade of wrecked automobiles, wheelbarrows and peanut parchers, all symbolic of the wrecks strewn along Mr. Carelessness' path while on earth. In one of these injured wheelbarrows will ride Mr. Troy, who will play Chopin's march on his harp. The procession will terminate at Five Points, where Mayor Key and Councilman Walter Sims will direct the last rites.

Professor W. A. Sutton, of the city schools, has sent out letters to all teachers of the city schools asking that they co-operate to the fullest with the week's work. He has inclosed special lessons in safety first for each day of the coming week to be taught in classes. Professor Sutton states in his letter that sixty persons were killed by automobiles in the city of Atlanta between the month of August, 1921, and 1922. He states that 25 of these were children. In the same period 513 persons were injured, 208 of whom were children. These facts are eloquent enough of what should be done, states Professor Sutton.

MANY TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS IN ATLANTA ARE REPORTED.

The Citizens' Safety association, being greatly interested in the Safety Week to be conducted by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, appointed several committees which have been checking traffic for the past 24 hours, during which time they have taken the numbers of several hundred automobiles for various violations. In making this check the committees have recorded practically all forms of traffic violations, but particular attention was given those affecting directly and indirectly the safety of persons and property.

In many cases it was impossible to secure license numbers they being obscured and in some cases covered entirely, by spare tires and wide bumpers.

This check was made solely for the information of the Citizens' Safety association, but it is felt that a large majority of the operators of the automobiles recorded fully realize that they are violating not only the city ordinances, but every law of safety and have little, if any, regard for the welfare of other citizens.

During the past twelve months sixty persons, including 25 children, have been killed, and more than 600 more or less seriously injured on our streets. This can be reduced only through the wholehearted co-operation of every automobile driver and pedestrian, not only during Safety Week, but for 52 weeks in every year. Are you guilty of any infraction of the law that will endanger persons or property.

Plenty of Coal At Low Prices Is Now Forecast

Washington, September 16.—Plentiful coal at reasonable prices was forecast today by administraion officials as congress cleared the way for action on two fuel measures and Secretary of Commerce Hoover started a voluntary coal conserving organization under way.

Hoover hoped to see the anti-coal profiteering bill and the Borah fact-finding bill enacted before the end of next week. In the meantime the United States chamber of commerce and representatives of the big public utilities and the largest industries organized to use coal on a day-to-day basis so that the small consumer could have his share.

The anti-profiteering bill, vesting the interstate commerce commission with the power to deny coal cars to profiteering coal operators, is expected to pass the senate early next week. Then it will require only the president's signature to become a law.

The fact-finding bill is in conference and probably will be pleased before other branches of congress next Tuesday. Its passage was said to be assured. This bill creates a commission with powers to examine the books of all persons engaged in the coal industry, thus showing the cost of production as it relates to the cost to the consumer, thereby uncovering the profiteers.

A state service medal is issued to all honorably discharged veterans of Oregon and also to other persons of any allied army who at the time of entering service were and now are residents of that state.

SCOUT EXECUTIVES ATTEND CAMP FIRE

Blue Ridge, N. C., September 16.—The 500 executives of the Boy Scouts of America, assembled at the national conference, spent this evening before a big camp fire, attended by impressive ceremonies.

Daniel Carter Beard, national scout commissioner and chairman at the court of honor, was presented by the local and national executives with a solid gold eagle badge, expressing their high regard for him and recognition of his services, the gold badge being recognized by Boy Scouts as the highest award of honor that one of their number can earn. Mr. Beard himself was one of the first scout boys in the country to be accorded the badge by the national court of honor.

Big Liquor Plot Charged to Three In New Orleans

Chicago, September 16.—The arrest in New Orleans of two men in connection with an alleged conspiracy to smuggle whisky from Havana, Cuba, to Chicago, via New Orleans, was announced today by federal agents who have been working on the case for several weeks. Those under arrest were said to be Thomas Madden, a former Chicago saloon keeper, and Roger Pierce, a Pullman car porter. Another man known as Jack Shean, alias Mark Boasberg, was being sought in connection with the case. Pullman porters were declared to have made as much as $1,000 a month transporting the liquor between New Orleans and Chicago.

Wadsworth Blocks Camp Equipment For Sons of Vets

Washington, September 16.—Immediate consideration of a resolution authorizing the loan of war department camp equipment for the Mississippi convention of the United Sons of Confederate Veterans, at Jackson next month, introduced today by Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, was blocked by Chairman Wadsworth of the senate military committee, who refused unanimous consent.

The New York senator explained there was a congressional policy against loans to state encampments of veterans and that government materials could be loaned only for national encampments. Senator Harrison then had his resolution referred to the military committee.

DISORDERS FEARED IN SOFIA CONGRESS

Sofia, September 16.—Fears are being expressed that disorders may break out Sunday when the peasant party (the government party) headed by premier Stamboulisky and the opposition bloc both assemble in congress, the latter to devise means of overthrowing agrarian rule and the former to counteract the opposition.

In the government party's call for its meeting the promise is held out that the bourgeois opposition will be given a "good lesson."

The New Cadillac Victoria

THE new Cadillac Victoria, we believe, embodies refinements which will induce even wider and warmer favor for this popular Cadillac model.

A well-considered change in dimensions causes the car to appear lower and longer and greatly accentuates the atmosphere of distinction always associated with the Victoria.

The enlarged interior, with the driver's seat placed directly behind the steering wheel, and all seats lengthened, provides increased spaciousness and comfort for four passengers.

Its owner will discover a degree of dependability and riding smoothness that is generally considered unequalled in current automobile manufacture.

Cadillac has developed a finer Victoria, one more artistic, more roomy and more comfortable, which we submit to prospective buyers with full confidence that it will win their delighted approval.

F. E. Maffett, Inc. Has Big Loyal Sales and Service Organization

F. E. Maffett, Inc., distributors for Dodge Brothers' Motor Vehicles, is today announcing the principals of his big organization in Atlanta. In a rather unusual advertisement in today's paper, he shows the photographs of twenty-four of his principal employees. These men represent only executives and salesmen. Thirty-two other persons are engaged in the service department or offices.

"I am particularly proud of the organization which I have built during the past three and a half years that I have been associated with Dodge Brothers as a dealer. Many of the men with me now have been associated with me and the Dodge Brothers account of a much longer time, when I was with other organizations selling and servicing Dodge Brothers cars.

"The men who compose my organization are 100 per cent loyal to me and to Dodge Brothers' products. No more faithful, competent or experienced organization could be brought together. Every one of the fifty-six persons in the organization have the interest of the organization and the owners of Dodge Brothers' motor cars and trucks at heart," said Mr. Maffett.

In addition to the members of Mr. Maffett's organization, there are a number of good service garages here which have been issued licenses as official Dodge Brothers' service stations.

T. O. Fisher, one of the best known local automobile men in Atlanta, has recently joined the sales force of Mr. Maffett. Mr. Fisher has been associated, prominently, with the automobile business in Atlanta and Georgia during the past nine years. He will take charge of the sales department.

Litel, and Russell F. Stein.

Several of the speakers have recently come to Atlanta, Dr. M. M. Mr. Litel has been playing as leading man with the Forsyth Players for several weeks past.

"COLLEGE NIGHT" HELD AT NORMAL SCHOOL

Athens, Ga., September 16.—An annual event at the State Normal school that is enjoyed by all the students is "college night." This took place Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock in the auditorium. A number of impromptu speeches were made, several college songs were sung and all participated enthusiastically in the college yells.

COLLEGE PARK SCHOOL ATTENDANCE GROWING

Pupils in High School Now Total 175—Additional Desks Required.

The opening attendance Monday of 760 in the white schools of College Park far exceeded that of any previous year. All seats were taken on opening day, but desks are being placed for pupils entering late. Before the close of the week every child will be comfortably provided for.

The high school registration totals 175, a number equivalent to half the entire enrollment of the schools at the time they became a local system. To those who have interestedly watched the progress of these schools through the five-year period of their existence, this growth has been nothing less than marvelous.

The high degree of merit attained by the College Park schools is recognized in educational circles throughout the whole state. In all literary and athletic meets of the fifth district they have been an important factor, having won the victor's laurels in three of the five annual contests in which they have participated. This unusual record attests the efficiency of the general school management and should be a source of hearty gratification to those who have labored together so conscientiously and successfully for the upbuilding of a system equal to any in the state.

Peace of World Up to Religion, Says Convention

Atlanta Delegation Back From International Bible Students' Meeting.

The delegation from Atlanta which attended the convention of the International Bible Students' association at Cedar Point, near Sandusky, Ohio, September 5-13, returned to Atlanta by special train Saturday. There were 50 persons in the delegation, occupying two cars of the special train that carried the delegation from here and several points in Florida.

W. S. Cummings, C. R. Thomas and William Madole were in charge of the train arrangements of the trip. Mr. Thomas stated upon his return that the convention was the greatest assembly of its kind ever held, being attended by more than 15,000 persons. Services were held for various nationalities in the mother tongues, he said. Many nationalities were represented.

Speaking of the work of the convention, Mr. Thomas said: "Resolutions were adopted claiming that the principal clerical, political and business leaders of the world had failed in their task for bringing about world peace and claiming that the job is now up to the inter-denominational religions to do it. The resolution also stated that there is near at hand a day of great tribulation such as never witnessed before on the earth and such as will never be witnessed again." The principal sermon of the convention was delivered by J. F. Rutherford, international president of the association on "Millions Are Now Living Who Will Never Die."

Power That Seems To Have No Limit

4-Passenger Opera Bougham

Through the medium of the new Peerless Eight, America is now learning to what greater heights the power, sustained speed, and ductility of fine eight-cylinder construction can be carried.

It is learning the thrill and the enjoyment of power that seems to have literally no limit.

Power that comes with a rush that leaves you almost breathless; yet it is yours to command as you will.

But we are certain that no stock car heretofore has incorporated such power, with such power-control.

In the exquisite grace and beauty of the new Peerless Eight, there is little hint of its might.

But ten minutes at its wheel will serve to convince the most experienced motorist that for fine behavior and ultimate ease, its like has not been built before.

SIMMONS GETS LARGE CONTRACT OF LOWERY

Local Plating Plant to Nickle Output of Lowery Auto Factory.

The Simmons Plating Works, one of the best known plating plants in the entire southeast, has been awarded the contract to nickle the metal parts of the Lowery Free Wheel, a new tilting steering wheel lock for light cars, which is being manufactured in Atlanta by the Lowery-Blakeman Co. The Simmons company has for a number of years enjoyed an excellent business from the automobile trade, the automobile owner, and from the average household, but it has been of recent years that their plant capacity has been increased to care for any great amount of work for manufacturing, assemblying and fabricating plants. However, this class of their business has increased steadily, and during the past year they have secured several big contracts, including their latest one from the Lowery-Blakeman company. This company does all classes of plating work, including, golder, silver, copper, nickel, etc. It is claimed by Henry Simmons, manager, that in the caurse of each weeks work, they plate, with metals of varying value, articles varying from small jewelry, to the heaviest pieces of machinery, which are nickled.

They make a specialty of refiinshing automobile light reflectors, radiator shells, and other parts of automobiles where nickel finish is used, and household articles such as beds, silverware, etc.

"Fiddlin' John Carson" Working For Big Contest

Premier Fiddler of Mountain Georgia Expects to Win at Meeting Here.

BY WILBUR BURTON.

Blue Ridge, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—Strains of weird, eerie music, caused by the concussion of horsehair on the catgut strings of Fiddlin' John Carson's fiddle echoed and re-echoed through the pine-covered valleys and bleak peaks of the Blue Ridge today, for the famous Fiddlin' John was begininng his two weeks' practice prior to the opening of the annual "Fiddling Festival" down in Atlanta on September 29 and 30.

And all Fannin county, so it seemed, assembled around Fiddlin' John's cabin and predicted that this year the "Kreisler of the Blue Ridge" would make Atlantans assembled in the Auditorium sit up and take notice and unanimously vote that Fiddlin' John had out-fiddled all the other fiddlers combined.

Better Than Ever.

"Blamed if Old John ain't better'n ever before," remarked the noted Si Hinkle, who is famed alike throughout the length and breadth of the Blue Ridge as a connoisseur of music and moonshine. "If Fiddlin' John don't git that $100 fiddle this year there's something wrong with the judges, that's all." The $100 fiddle aforementioned is the grand prize given by the Cable company to the champion fiddler of Georgia at the Old Fiddlers' convention each year.

Despite the fact that a hundred or more old fiddlers from every part of Georgia are planning to enter the annual fiddling contest in the Atlanta Auditorium on September 29, Fannin county is confidently backing Fiddlin' John, and all sorts of bets from mules to kegs of "moonshine" are being placed on him. All bets so far have been taken on Fiddlin' John three to one, but any resident of Fannin county who even so much as intimates that Fiddlin' John may lose is scowled upon as a traitor, and is advised to carry his gun if he goes out alone after dark.

Saturday Fiddlin' John himself issued a statement predicting that this year he was as sure of the prize as if he had already sent each judge in the contest a keg of non-Volstead liquid.

"Come one, come all," declared Fiddlin' John. "I'm ready to stake my still that I'll carry off the grand championship. I'm a derned lot surer than Cliff Walker was that he would win the election, and I expect to make those other fellows that think they can fiddle feel about like Tom Hardwick when I git through playin' for 'em. From now on until the day when I leave here fer Atlanta I'm goin' ter fiddle five hours every day, and I give fair warnin' to all other alleged fiddlers in Georgia that they had better do a lot of practicin' if they expect ter even come up to me."

Immediately upon finishing his statement Fiddlin' John began to play that classic of the Blue Ridge, "Old Grey Hoss in the Wilderness," which he says will win him the coveted $100 fiddle.

FRANCIS RECOVERING FROM AUTO INJURIES

M. D. Francis, of Juniper street Saturday was at home recovering from injuries received Friday morning when he was struck by an automobile at Juniper and Fifth streets. His leg was badly bruised and mashed, and according to Dr J. L. Campbell he will probably be incapacitated for many days. He also received cuts and bruises about the body.

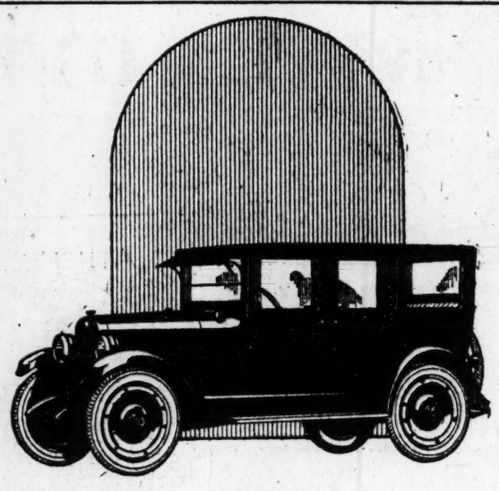

The automobile that injuried Mr. Francis was driven by a Mr. Blanton, of Clearwater, Fla., who stopped his machine and rendered every possible assistance. It is claimed by several witnesses that Mr. Blanton was traveling at a lively rate of speed when the struck Mr. Francis, the force of the impact knocking him some distance and rendering him temporarily unconscious. Dr. W. F. Goldsmith, who lives nearby, rendered first aid.

At the time he was hurt Mr. Francis was crossing Juniper street to get into the automobile of a friend, Courtland Leody, who had offered to take him to town. Mr. Blanton's car was traveling in the same direction and as it passed Mr. Leidy's auto on the left, struck Mr Francis.

NEGRO, CHARGED WITH SHOOTING OFFICER, IN JAIL

Robert Baugh, negro charged with shooting and seriously wounding Patrolman H. D. Lawson on the night of December 26, last, Saturday was in the Fulton county jail awaiting trial.

Baugh was brought back from Washington, D C., by City Detective E. M. Cason, and he is said to have admitted shooting the offices, but claims he was shooting at another negro. He is said to have stated that he left town because he realized "things would not be well with him, even though the officer was shot accidentally."

People generally accept the good Maxwell as a decidedly unusual motor car value. Those who know this fine car most intimately, are its strongest and most outspoken admirers.

FARM CONFERENCE POSTPONED WEEK

Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, September 16.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—The semi-annual conference of the National Board of Farm Organizations, which was to be held in Washington from October 3 to 5, has been postponed to October 11 to 13, it was announced today following a meeting of the executive committee.

Concurrent with the announcement, Charles S. Barrett, of Georgia, president of the National Farmers' Union, issued a statement urging a representative attendance to the meeting. Other affiliated organizations are making a similar appeal to the farmers of the country.

Emphasizing the importance of the problems to be discussed, Mr. Barrett declared that it behooves the farmers of the nation to inform themselves on the forces and movements existing to interpose their influenece in opposition to the program of agricultured co-operation.

Barrett's Statement.

Mr. Barrett's statement in part, follows:

"I am very desirous that our state farmers' unions get behind this coming conference with all the enthusiasm possible, and through publicity in their official organs, through correspondence, etc., be the means of bringing to Washington a large number of delegates

"I cannot too strongly emphasize the importance of understanding the tremendous forces and movements which exist in this country, and which, in order to retain in their selfish grasp financial and political power absolutely unwarranted by the service they perform, are constantly interposing their influence in opposition to the wholesome, enlightened and democratic program of agricultural co-operation.

"The cleverest legal and social lobbyists that high salaries can command are swarming in, through and over Washington, inundating, cold and grasping commercialism in which the thought of fair play is forgotten in the rush to extort from the workers of this country all that the traffic will bear.

Wants Leaders.

"In planning for the conference here on October 11, I have in mind that there are in different farmer union communities men who excel others in quickly grasping things and I know that if they will come here to the meeting and get the first hand information of what is going on, it would be far better than anything they could read at home.

"Our local unions should get together as soon as possible and arrange to send at least one representative to the conference; but where financial adversity will not permit of this several locals might get together and pass the hat and county organizations should also make suitable arrangement to send their representation.

"The national board of farm organizations, I am very happy to say, enjoys an influence and standing of the highest order, and with loyal interest and backing of the member organizations, it will continue to fight onward in their behalf."

WATSON EXPLAINS BONUS BILL VOTE

Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, September 16.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Newspaper comment upon the action of Senator Watson, of Georgia, yesterday in voting for the soldiers' bonus bill, which was somewhat of a surprise in certain circles, caused the Georgia senator to rise to a question of personal privilege on the floor today and explain his position.

In referring to his vote to accept the conference report on the bonus, the New York Herald and Washington Post of current issue described Senator Watson as having "flopped" and as switching "to support of measure he rapped." The latter was founded upon the two speeches Senator Watson made during the consideration of the bill in which he declared he would vote against the bonus because of the estimated $5,000,000,000 additional taxation upon the American people it carried.

Rising to a question of personal privilege, Senator Watson said:

Quotes Paper.

"In this morning's issue of the Washington Post appears the words 'Watson (Georgia) switches to support of measure he rapped.' In the body of the article is a sub-headline: 'Wtson, of Georgia, changes views.'"

Senator Watson then quoted the following sentences from the article:

"The supporters of the bonus bill have gained one vote on the showing of this roll call, Senator Watson, of Georgia, who made a speech against the bill and opposed it when it was before the senate, switching his position and now voting for it. He made no explanation excepting that there were some features of the bill he did not like, but decided to vote for it anyway. His change of position has been discounted in the calculations of the required strength to sustain the anticipated veto."

Declaring that the record failed to show it, he said when he voted for the bonus bill conference report he briefly stated that while the measure was not all he wanted for the soldier, he would vote for it nevertheless.

Bill Changed.

"When I voted against the soldiers' bonus bill there had already been voted out a sales tax plan proposed by the Senator from Utah (Mr. Smoot), he himself being one of the few who supported the plan. There still was left in the bill the McNary reclamation project amendment, which according to estimates would have taken from the treasury over $300,000,000 of public money and which would have afforded the soldiers farms in the west or in the south some time within the next five or ten years.

"I voted against the bill because it had that clause in it.

"The bill as it pended before the senate yesterday was the original McCumber bill which gives the soldier a certificate of inbedtedness which he can use as collateral in the borrowing of money of 4 1-2 per cent. Therefore, I thought that half a loaf of bread was better than no bread. I was assured by leaders on both sides that this would be the only bonus to pass the congress."

Meet Monday to Prepare Elks' Convention Drive

Two hundred Elks, under the command of William T. Perkerson, chairman of the executive finance committee of the 1923 convention board, will approach the citizens of Atlanta beginning Wednesday to secure contributions of $150,000 for the convention of the Elks' grand lodge which meets July 9 to 14. The committee meets Monday to organize.

The outcome of this appeal will determine whether Atlanta will entertain 50,000 Elk delegates and almost as many more visitors next summer, or whether the meeting will be switched to some other point which is willing to entertain the convention in adequate style, according to Mr. Perkerson.

It is necessary to raise the entire sum before November 1, when the officers of the grand lodge will assemble in Atlanta to review the plans of the 1923 convention board. The national officers must have assurance then that Atlanta is capable of measuring up to the responsibilities of the occasion, Mr. Perkerson said.

WILLIAM T. PERKERSON,

Will Organize Monday.

An organization meeting will be held on Monday evening to line up the forces of the drive. Dinner will be served in the main dining room of the Elk's club at 6:30 o'clock to 200 men who have been chosen to put over the job. Representatives of every line of business have been asked to participate in the campaign and to confine their efforts towards securing contributions from their particular business section.

Because the results of the convention will be felt so generally throughout the city, and especially because of the civic value to be obtained from entertaining a nation-wide organization of such numbers, it is believed by the convention board that practically every business house in Atlanta will make a substantial contribution.

It is a notable fact, according to Executive Secretary B. C. Broyles, that the work of obtaining funds is to be handled not only by members of the Atlanta lodge but also by a large number of men who are not Elks, who have volunteered their services out of civic pride and a desire to see anything that makes for the good of the city a success.

Committee Members.

Argonaut Miners May Be Rescued Sometime Today

All Is Ready to Care for Any of Entombed 47 Who May Be Alive.

Jackson, Cal., September 16.—Doctors and nurses, a large equipment of the aids science has placed at their command and 47 hospital cots graphically told the story tonight of Jackson's undying hope that the 47 miners entombed in the Argonaut mine since August 27, are alive and will be rescued tomorrow, the twenty-first day of their imprisonment.

Men who have been working desperately in the Kennedy mine at the barrier between them and their coworkers went into the Kennedy 3,600 foot level said they would advance the work to a point where the rescue work could begin Sunday morning.

It is conceded that unless the unforeseen develops, the Argonaut crew which goes to work at 7 a. m. tomorrow on the 3,600-foot level of the Kennedy mine will break through into the Argonaut workings ahead of the Kennedy crews working on the 3,900-foot level.

Officials tonight would make no prediction as to what will be found after the Argonaut mine is opened. It is possible, they say, that there are cave-ins on the 4,200-foot level of the Argonaut where the entry is expected to be made. This may mean days, even weeks of work in order to reach other levels of the Argonaut.

They also say that the entrapped men may have sought the lower levels and that water may have risen in the mine to such an extent that all who were waiting for rescue have been drowned.

The greatest fear, however, is that of gas caused by fire in the Argonaut. Analysis showed only two-tenths of one per cent of carbon monoxide in the mine's atmosphere tonight.

It is more than likely, officials stated, that cave-ins have forced the gas to practically every part of the Argonaut levels. Old mother lode miners insist that the unfortunate workers would bulkhead themselves in the lower levels in such a manner that gas poisoning would be impossible. Furthermore, they argue, these men know the rate at which water rises in the Argonaut, and would seek safety on a level where they would be safe for a month at least.

Clarke's Choice In Next Assembly Is Frank Holden

Athens, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—Receiving a total of 1,999 votes, 540 more than his nearest opponent and practically 90 per cent of the entire vote cast, Frank Holden, great-great-grandnephew of Alexander Hamilton Stephens, and a prominent young lawyer, of Athens, was elected

FRANK HOLDEN,

Mr. Holden is one of Athens' well-known attorneys and is a son of Judge Horace M. Holden, who was at one time a justice of the supreme court of Georgia. He was a lieutenant during the world war and served with the 82d division.

Since the end of the war he has formed a law partnership with his father, Judge Horace Holden, enjoying a large and lucrative practice. Besides, he has written a book in which he reviews certain personal experiences during the war. He is commander of the Allen R. Fleming post of the American Legion and national committeeman of the legion for the state of Georgia.

He is graduate of the University of Georgia, having taken degrees in both the academic and law departments. He was a member of the Georgia baseball team and was one of its best players.

DISARMAMENT MOVE OF LEAGUE FAILURE

Geneva, September 16.—The league of nations' most important project collapsed tonight simultaneously with announcement that Lloyd George probably would be prevented by the Near East crisis from coming to Geneva.

All hope of the league for securing its mutual defense treaty this year as a basis for universal land disarmament was virtually abandoned when Lord Robert Cecil and de Jouvenel, the French delegate, failed to agree as to whether the treaty should precede disarmament or vice versa.

Final vote was adjourned until next week, but it is conceded that the whole project will be postponed pending further study.

This failure furthered Lloyd George's intention to reconsider his plans for a trip to the league seat, although Sir E. Grigg, the premier's secretary, hurried to London tonight at a call from his chief who is forced to remain at the helm of affairs in Britain, as the empire was called upon to prepare for

TECH DORMITORIES TO BE OVERFILLED

Lack of dormitory space and suitable rooms for Georgia Tech students will characterize the opening of the the fall term of school next Wednesday, according to Dr. M. L. Britain, president of Tech. Classes will begin at Tech on September 25 and registration, which opens Monday, will close Saturday. All former students are urged by the registrar, H. H. Caldwell, to register as early this week as possible in order to prevent the usual but unnecessary final rush of students.

The lack of rooms and dormitory space was emphasized Saturday by Dr. Brittain, who declared that the condition pointed attention to the need of suitable provision by the state for caring for Georgia young men at Tech. "More than $20,000 each year are paid out by Tech students on account of the lack of dormitories," declared Dr. Brittain, 'and this means in many cases the determining factor in preventing the education of many of our young who would otherwise train at Tech for the industrial development of Georgia."

1,700 Will Enroll.

An enrollment of over 1,700 is assured for Tech this year, and boys who have not yet filed applications for admittance will probably not be able to enroll for the fall term, according to Mr. Caldwell. Dormitory reservations have already been completely filled, and many students will be unable to live in the dormitories since they are not large enough to care for all the freshmen enrolling this year. "This is regretable," declared Mr. Caldwell, "because expenses in private homes are much higher for the students than in the dormitories, but so far the state has failed to make appropriations for new dormitories."

Several changes have occurred at Tech since the opening of school last year. Many new courses are in the curriculum. The enrollment is larger than ever before, but before the school year beginning is concluded the Greater Georgia Tech building program, which will enlarge the facilities of the school, will begin. This program will be carried out as rapidly as the pledges to the campaign are paid to provide money for the construction of the new buildeings planned.

Brittain's First Term.

The fall terms this year will be the first under the direction of Dr. Brittain, the new president of the institution, who served Georgia for many years as state superintendent of schools, and who, in his new capacity, will supervise the higher education of many Georgia boys once under him in the public schools of the state.

Many of the students are already arriving in Atlanta and yesterday, according to Dr. Brittain, many dozen applications were made for admittance, which will probably not be accepted because of inadequate facilities at the school.

In his statement yesterday on the fall term Dr. Brittain declared that the most pressing need of the school, as shown by this year's enrollment, is to obtain suitable boarding and rooming places for the students. "We have only two dormitories at the school," said Dr. Brittain, "and they do not quite take care of the freshmen class alone.

"Part of the freshman class and all the other students must find lodging at various boarding and rooming houses, and some of these privately operated houses charge the students a great deal too much. The Tech authorities are anxious to protect the students in every way possible and will be glad to hear from all who can and will furnish good homes at reasonable rates for Tech boys.

"Those who can do this are requested to write R. C. Beaty at the Georgia Tech Y. M. C. A., who is charged with the responsibility of the inspecting the rooms and listing them. He will be glad to hear from all who will furnish rooms at once, and Tech will indeed be grateful to those who can and will give aid to the students.

"This situation calls attention to the pressing need of suitable provisions by the state for these young men. Many of the 2,000 students at Tech are compelled to pay from $10 to $15 a month more for rooms in private homes than they would have to pay in the dormitories, and needless to say this imposes a great and unbearable hardship on deserving young men who would come to Tech. Because of this fact great numbers of fine students are deprived of an education and this means an incalculable loss to the industrial development of Georgia."

Verdict of Suicide.

Bridgeport, Conn., September 16.—Coroner Phelan in a finding today said that Pidelo S. Henry, New York oil promoter, who was found dead near his summer home at Cannondale last Monday night, committed suicide. The body was discovered leaning against a tree, with a shotgun across the legs. Part of the head had been torn away. Henry was a Yale graduate, class of 1894, and came east three years ago from Tulsa, Okla.

TERRIFIC BATTLE RAGES IN IRELAND

BY GEORGE MacDONAGH.
United Press Staff Correspondent.

Dublin, September 16.—A terrific battle was in full swing tonight in the Wild Ox mountains, where free state scouts discovered a rebel stronghold and gave the word that sent government forces against the insurgents.

Artillery was hauled to the battle zone by the free staters shortly after the battle opened and heavy shells were poured into a concentrated rebel position.

It was reported in Dublin that the real backbone of the revolt could be broken if the national troops capture the forces against whom they were in operation tonight. A storming party was to be sent against the rebel

Announcement was made that Sean McMahon has been appointed chief of the general staff, succeeding Richard Mulcahy, who became commander-in-chief when Collins was killed.

Dublin was thrilled tonight by a report that the chief clerk in the military advisor's office in Belfast had disappeared, and that simultaneously important documents relating to plans for the defense of Ulster were missing.

WEEKS STARTS DRIVE TO GET OFFICERS JOBS

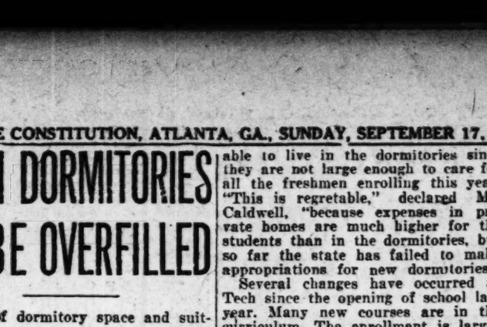

Washington, September 16.—A national canvass to locate jobs for approximately 1,100 army officers who will be turned out of the army by December 15, was launched here today by Secretary of War Weeks.

Corps area commanders have been ordered to make surveys of their regions for possible positions for these officers in which chambers of commerce, rotary clubs and similar organizations have been asked to help.

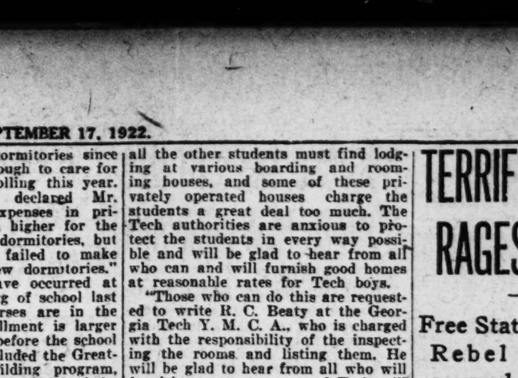

A special employment bureau has been created by the adjutant general of the army to canvass employment agencies, large corporations and commercial and industrial establishments.

Motor Over To Athens--- Georgia's Seat Of Learning

Wonderful autumn weather, the first touch of fall and the first falling leaves will lure the motorist out in the open in this the loveliest season of the year.

A beautiful little city with wonderful homes of the antebellum type, Athens offers a most interesting trip to the Atlanta motorists who have an eye for beauty and wish to spend a pleasant day or week-end.

Among the points of interest in Athens are the State University, Lucy Cobb Institute, the birthplace of Henry W. Grady, and the home of Dr. Crawford W. Long, the discoverer of anesthesia. There is also in Athens the house in which John Howard Payne, the poet, wrote "Home Sweet Home."

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION RADIO DEPARTMENT

Program: 6-7, 9-10 Daily 3:30-4:30, 9-10 Sunday

Seven outstanding musical numbers were featured by Station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution, last night between 6 and 7 o'clock.

The program was opened by a number by Riely Eakin, dramatic soprano, and Miss Marguerite Bartholomew, accompanist, and was then taken by Warner's Seven Aces, The Atlanta Constitution orchestra, of which B. H. Warner is director.

The number presented by Riely Eakin and Miss Bartholomew was "One Fine Day," from Puccini's "Madame Butterfly." Riely Eakin has a voice that is equalled by few singers in the south. For volume and a full tone, her voice stands untouched in Atlanta.

Miss Bartholomew as the accompanist was presented as one of the best pianists in the south. Her reputation extends far beyond Atlanta as does that of Riely Eakin.

The number by Riely Eakin was presented last Thursday in a recital at the Atlanta Woman's club and it was such a success that the singer was persuaded to present it for Station WGM. All of next week Riely Eakin will enact the scene from "Madame Butterfly" and sing "One Fine Day," in Enrico Leide's production for the Howard theater this week.

The Aces' program included some of the best numbers The Constitution music-makers play. Three of the selections were requested by listeners. One especially was outstanding. It was "Song of India." This is a masterpiece as Mr. Warner has it arranged for the Aces.

The Aces opened their program with "Nobody Lied." That's a number almost everybody likes. The second number was a special arrangement of "Tricks," one of the latest dance selections out.

Three request numbers followed. They were "O Sole Mio," "Song of India" and "Lovable Eyes." The concluding number by the Aces was "Lonesome, Lovesick Blues."

At the 9 o'clock broadcast period The Atlanta Dominoes were presented in a program of twelve dance selections, which were broadcast from Station WGM, just as a dance was in progress at Roseland. The Dominoes are heard frequently from Station WGM and last night with their dance numbers made an excellent impression.

PROSPERITY SEEN AS STRIKE ENDS

Chicago, September 16.—With settlement of the railroad strike practically assured, industrial leaders tonight predicted a return to pre-war prosperity.

The strike settlement was all that was needed to open the door to "better times" many merchants and manufacturers declared.

Practically every railroad in the country was working on some plan to end the labor troubles caused by the shopmen strike—either by negotiating on the basis of the Baltimore agreement or the formation of company unions.

At the same time the federal government prepared to combat the defense against the Daugherty injunction, which was to start here Monday.

To End Rail Strikes.

Attorney-General Daugherty predicted that if the government obtained a decision in the suit transportation strikes would be unknown in the future.

"There will be no jobless winter," was the word sent out by the United States employment service. The present employment situation was most encouraging, the bureau declared, and anticipated further improvements.

"Now that the strike is settled, the only thing that stands in the way of returning prosperity is a decent price for farm products," J. R. Howard said.

"Thanks to the sincere efforts of progressive shopmen and progressive railroad executives, the rail strike is to all intents and purposes settled. The organized farmers want to congratulate both sides."

A survey among farmers revealed that producers of perishables faced economic ruin because of the transportation tie-up. Grain and livestock producers were not as hard hit.

Big Harvest.

Added to the burden of the strike were the low prices paid the farmers, Howard said

Howard predicted one of the biggest harvests in the history of the country this fall.

"Elevators in the grain belts are filled with grain. These must be emptied before other grain producers can sell," Howard said. "The settlemen of the strike will surely improve the situation."

"The good old American dollar will come back into its own now with the movement of freight," Wm. J. Wrigley, president of the gigantic Wrigley company predicted.

"Greatest Cure."

"The greatest cure for hard times is to stop talking about hard times, get to work and keep money and goods circulating."

Packing house trade at the great Chicago stock yards reflected the improved conditions on the transportation systems, Armour and company declared.

"Movement of merchandise, possible with the settlement of the rail strike, which will mean a more fluent exchange is bringing about prosperity," G. D. Everitt, president of Montgomery Ward company stated.

"However, the farmers who create the nation's wealth must receive a fair return before we reach the goal—the initial steps of which we are now taking to reach."

DIPHTHERIA CASES DECREASE IN ATHENS

Athens, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—Possibilities of a diphtheria epidemic in Athens were reduced today, when Dr. J. D. Applewhite, county health officer, announced that there have been considerable fewer new cases report d during the past week than at any previous time.

For a time diphtheria conditions in Athens have been causing anxiety. The opening of grammar schools, scheduled for last Monday, was delayed two weeks on account of the epidemic.

New Fads in Sets Not Always Suited To Amateurs' Use

Because the new has been so rapidly replacing that which was also new the short space of a year ago but which is old now, the great army of radio fans are constantly hearing of new hook-ups, new apparatus, new stunts, and new schemes that seem to hold out wonderful promises for better radio reception. Included in this list should be printed radio frequency amplificaion, superregeneration, and some of the methods of obtaining audio frequency amplification other than through transformers. The three examples that have been selected represent perhaps the latest developmnts in the science of radiotelephone reception, and in the hands of experts merit all the praise that has been given them. But as playthings for the radio fan they are far too complex. By sticking to the standard sets as now manufactured the buyer and operator is assured of the most regular and consistent service and consequently the maximum of enjoyment.

Audio frequency amplification can be handled by any one with a short period of practice during which he or she learns the meaning of the dials and knobs and how to eliminate certain annoying sounds in the quickest time.

Radio frequency amplification installed at great expense has frequently been found to add nothing whatsoever to the signals. This is not the fault of the principle, however. Poor design of apparatus generally should be blamed.

The super-regenerative set is a wonder in the hands of an expert. All others without reservation should steer clear of its intricacies. Major Armstrong with his tremendously complete knowledge and understanding of what goes on inside tubes and coils can almost make the set speak without a broadcasting station in operation. Scores of ingenious mechanics have likewise been successful in building and operating a super set, but the general class of radio fans would be hopelessly lost and completely befuddled by the seemingly queer actions of a super-regenerattive set.

From information gleaned from letters it appears that many persons have tried to get around the purchase of audio frequency transformers by using a form of resistance coupling between amplifying stages. It need only be stated here that the transformer is the most efficient means of supplying the proper coupling between stages for 360-meter reception. Other methods should be saved for the time when the longer wave lengths come into more general use for broadcasting.

EDDIE RICKENBACKER IS MARRIED SATURDAY

New York, September 16.—Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, American ace, was married today at the First Congregational church, Sound Beach, Conn., to Mrs. Adelaide F. Durant, divorced wife of a former rival of the American flier in automobile racing. They sailed on the Majestic for a honeymoon in Europe.

TO MAKE TESTS ACROSS ATLANTIC

Canadian and American Amateurs to Have First Chance to Listen-in Testing.

The third series of amateur trans-Atlantic tests will be conducted by the American Radio Relay league in cooperation with the radio amateurs of England, France and Holland.

The test will be conducted from December 12, to December 31, 1922, inclusive. During the first ten days of the tests, American and Canadian amateurs will transmit signals for reception by the radio amateurs of the European countries. Those of the American and Canadian transmitters making the best records as determined by reception reports from the European amateurs, will be used to transmit the results of reception by American and Canadian radio amateurs when the English and French radio amateurs are transmitting.

For the first time in history of amateur radio, American and Canadian amateurs will have an opportunity to demonstrate their skill in receiving amateur signals from across the Atlantic. As a result of the success of the A. R. R. L. trans-Atlantic tests of last December, when 30 radio amateur transmitters succeeded in bridging the Atlantic, the French government has permitted the issuance of several amateur transmitting licenses, while the British postoffice department has issued a special permit to the Wireless society of Manchester to use a power of 1,000 watts of continuous wave energy for the express purpose of establishing amateur radio communication with the amateurs of the United States. The American and Canadian members of the American Radio Relay league are highly optimistic in reviewing their chances of hearing the British amateurs using this amount of power, since several American amateurs using less than 500 watts of C. W. energy were heard by Paul F. Godly, who was sent over for the tests by the A. R. R. L. and who was stationed at Ardrosson, Scotland.

To Place Receiver.

Mr. Godly is arranging to establish his record breaking receiver at some point on the north Atlantic coast during the coming tests with the idea of copying signals from the European amateur stations. A series of preliminary tests for the purpose of determining what American and Canadian transmitters shall be given a place in the final tests with an individual schedule and code letters will be conducted from October 25, to November 3, inclusive.

To qualify for the final tests, a transmitter must cover a distance of at least 1,200 miles, airline, during the preliminary tests.

The preliminary tests will cover a period of two and one-half hours (9:30 P. M. to midnight, Central standard time) each night, which is divided into ten periods of fifteen minutes each. Transmission will take place by inspection districts. One district transmits at a time and all others remain silent endeavoring to copy as many of the transmitting stations as possible. After the tests each night, the receiving stations are to send a confirming record to all transmitters at a distance of 1,200 airline miles or over. When filing application for entry in the final tests, a transmitter shall include at least one 1,200-mile record, or show documentary evidence that its signals have reached out 1,200 airline miles during the months of September or October.

Psycho-Analysis Talk.

A special lecture on psycho-analysis will be given Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock by Mrs. Rose M. Ashby in the mahogany room of the Ansley hotel. While in New York and Boston Mrs. Ashby gave special study to this subject and will give the gist of it in a practical and interesting way. The public is cordially invited to attend.

DR. C. A. CONSTANTINE AND TWO OF HIS PLOW HANDS

Dr. C. A. Constantine, well known in Atlanta dental circles, not only looks after the manufacturing and selling of dental supplies, but like many other Atlanta business men, he has a sort of mania for farm life. When not engaged in Atlanta he can be found on his splendid plantation down in Clayton county, two miles from Jonesboro.

The doctor declares that his crops this season have been splendid, and that by the use of calcium arsenate and nitrate of soda he has gained a number of laps on the detestable boll weevil and, in fact, has almost eradicated him as a nuisance on his farm.

Dr. Constantine is shown above in one of his cotton fields standing between two of his "best farm hands," he says. They are little chaps about 12 and 14 years of age, "but they are good at the plow, and can pick about as much cotton as their father," says the doctor.

The one on the left, as you look at the picture, is Will Driver, the other is his brother, Ed. Both are inveterate cigar smokers, and the stronger the cigars the better they like 'em. Will, the smaller one, is two years older than his brother, but is no doubt stunted from smoking such strong cigars, according to his boss.

BY GEORGE C. CONGDON, JR.

Don't you often sit at home and wonder what those dots and dashes mean when you catch them when you're just "fooling around" with your radio set? Doesn't it "get you" at the office the next day? It would be difficult to enumerate the broadcast listeners who have asked me just that question and that is why The Constitution is asking listeners that same question now.

But it isn't just that The Constitulton is asking that question. Beginning Monday, every evening between 6:40 and 6:50 o'clock, central standard time, The Constitution is going to give actual demonstration of the lessons on code reception which will appear beginning Monday in the columns of The Constitution's radio department.

Amateurs throughout Atlanta have declared this step by The Constitution to be one of the biggest forward movements in radio development since the inauguration of broadcasting in the south.

Great Plan, Says Bell.

"It's a great plan," he said. "I don't know of anything that could be better in the way of a means to bring the interests of amateurs and broadcast listeners together."

The lessons will be written by A. W. Shropshire, operator of Station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution, and will be published each day in the radio department. These lessons in print will be a guide, giving methods of practice of code reception. The big part of these lessons in code reception, however, will come in the evening, when demonstration of the day's lesson is given by Mr. Shropshire using a key in Station WGM's 500-watt set.

Monday morning the first of these lessons will be printed in The Constitution. Monday evening between 6:40 and 6:50 o'clock, Mr. Shropshire will supplement his printed lesson with a few remarks and will then send slowly a few letters. He will repeat these letters on the key enough to thoroughly acquaint listeners with them. At the end of each week a review of the whole week's lessons and demonstrations will be given, the time devoted at the 6 o'clock broadcast period from Station WGM being extended to twenty minutes, and lasting from 6:40 to 7 o'clock.

Complain of Code.

Frequently broadcast listeners, who do not know code, complain of interruption by amateurs who are telegraphing on a 200-meter wave-length when they are listening to entertainment programs broadcast on a 630-meter wave-length. A good receiving set, of the vacuum tube type, is capable of being tuned to shut out the telegraph signals and bring in the broadcast music, or vice versa. Crystal sets it is often difficult to tune sharply enough for the listener to select the entertainment.

Amateur and broadcast stations are on different wave-lengths and if a listener is using a good tube receiver he should experience no difficulty with interruptions from code workers.

But there are times when one just runs into code signals from a distance. One doesn't know where they come from, but one can guess if he knows approximately what wavelength the signals come on. For instance, code coming on 600-meters is generally coming from ships at sea or shore stations.

Code in Air Always.

Think of the world of information and the interest one would find in radio code work if he knew enough code to receive those messages! There is hardly a time when a listener cannot hear code on his set.

It is to teach people how to receive this code that Station WGM is printing these lessons and then making them practical by the demonstrations.

Wife Fights Model For Jewels, Alleged Gift of Husband

Chicago, September 16.—Guests and employees of the Congress hotel were talking today of the fight in "Peacock alley," the hotel's famous promenade, between Miss Edna De Werth, beautiful fashion model, and Mrs. Melville Reeves, wife of the man jocularly known as Chicago's "skyscraper burglar."

The stakes were $10,000 worth of jewels which Miss De Werth wore, and Mrs. Reeves won. The jewels which adorned the mannequin before the fight were the gifts of Reeves, his wife said, and belonged to her.

Previous efforts to obtain the jewels had failed, Mrs. Reeves said. Through her attorney she obtained a replevin writ and, accompanied by a bailiff, went to the hotel.

Encountering the beautiful Miss De Werth as she came down "Peacock alley" wearing the latest style creations, Mrs. Reeves asked for the jewels and pointed out the bailiff. Expressing the disbelief that the man was an officer, Miss De Werth attempted to pass.

Mrs. Reeves went into action. A diamond and sapphire lavalliere was her first trophy, followed by a ring, bracelet and wrist watch When hotel attendants separated the combatants Miss De Werth stood stripped of the Reeves' ornaments, and in no condition to pose immediately as a fashion model.

"I begged that girl at least a dozen times to give him up and return my property," said Mrs. Reeves. "She refused and laughed at me and I—well, what could a self-respecting wife do?"

MUSCLE SHOALS SENDS POWER INTO GEORGIA

Florence, Ala., September 16.—Electrical energy generated at nitrate plant No. 2, Muscle Shoals, was today finding its way through an interlocking system via Gorgas into Georgia and the Carolinas, according to announcement by the Alabama Power company, lessees. The plant is running at maximum capacity to augment power lines to the east which are short on power by reason of lack of fuel, it was stated.

Stock Company Formed.

Sandersville, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—A stock company has been formed in Sandersville to build stock and grading pens for swine and cattle. These pens will be of the most modern type and capable of handling several hundred head daily in the shortest possible time. This work is in charge of H. W. Bingham, county demonstration agent. Washington county farmers are raising more hogs this year than ever before, and many large sales will be held here this fall.

U. S. REGULATIONS ON RADIO GIVEN

New Radio Listeners Ask for Laws Governing Transmission by Telephony.

A question arising in the minds of a great many of the new radio fans is relative to the United States laws and regulations regarding radio communication.

The owner of an amateur radio transmitting station must obtain a station license before it can be operated, if the signals radiated therefrom can be heard in another state; and also if such station is of sufficient power as to cause interference with neighboring licensed stations in the receipt of signals from transmitting stations outside of the state. Radiotelephone stations, as well as radiotelegraph stations, are covered by these regulations.

Transmitting stations must at all times be operated under the supervision of a person holding an operator's license, and the party in whose name the station is licensed is responsible for its activities.

There are three classes in which amateur station licenses are divided, as follows: Special amateur stations known as the "X, Y, and Z" stations are usually permitted to transmit on wave lengths up to 375 meters. In cases such as school and experimental stations, increased power and longer wave length are sometimes allowed.

General amateur stations are permitted to use a power input of one kilowatt, and which cannot use a wavelength in excess of 200 meters.

Restricted amateur stations are those located within five nautical miles of naval radio stations, and are restricted to one-half kilowatt input. These stations are governed by the same wavelength restrictions as those governing general amateur stations.

Malicious or willful interference on the part of any radio station, or the transmission of any false distress signal or call is prohibited. Severe penalties are provided for violations of these provisions.

Application for operator's and station licenses of all classes should be addressed to the radio inspector of the district in which the applicant or station is located. Radio inspector's offices are located in the following places:

First district, Boston.
Second district, New York city.
Third district, Baltimore.
Fourth district, Norfolk, Va.
Fifth district, New Orleans.
Sixth district, San Francisco.
Seventh district, Seattle.
Eighth district, Detroit.
Ninth district, Chicago.

No license is required for a receiving set, but the secrecy of all messages must be preserved.

There is no fee at present for either operator or station license.

Nineteen High Army Officers To Be Promoted

Washington, September 16.—President Harding approved today the selection of six brigadier generals to be promoted to major generals and 13 colonels to be brigadier generals—the largest promotion list of high ranking army officers ever announced in time of peace at one time.

Announcement that the president had approved the selections was made by Secretary Weeks, who said that the nominations of the officers named would be transmitted to the senate before the end of this year and as vacancies occurred in the grades effected.

The 19 promotions were made possible in part by the recent voluntary retirement of five major generals and two brigadier generals from active service, which also made it possible for the army to retain the services of 13 colonels who would have been separated from the service by the reduction in that grade in accordance with acts of congress.

Brigadier generals to be major generals as given in the list:

Ernest Hinds, on duty war department retirement board.

Willoughby Walker, commanding coast defenses eastern New York, with station at Fort Totten, N. Y.

John B. Bellinger, quartermaster corps, who now is returning from Hawaii to the United States and will be assistant quartermaster general.

Edward L. King, army war college Washington, D. C.

Harold B. Fisk, in charge of training sections of training and operations division, war department general staff.

Miss Walker Will Make Her Radio Debut Today In Constitution Concert

OneCongressman Slaps Confrere On House Floor

Washington, September 16.—With his open palm, Representative Oliver, democrat, Alabama, gave Representative Dempsey, republican, New York, a slap on the cheek in the house late today during the hubbub which usually attends the calling of the roll and then as he was attempting to land a second time, members rushed between them.

After the house adjourned, Mr. Oliver and Mr. Dempsey shook hands and the New York representative said the Alabama member had apologized and they were again "the best of friends."

As explanations came later the house found that the encounter was due to a misunderstanding. Mr. Dempsey, chairman of the rivers and harbors committee, in charge of the rivers and harbors bill, was trying to reduce the time fixed for debate and was on the democratic side discussing the question with Mr. Oliver, when suddenly the Alabama man's left palm shot forward and caught the New York man on the cheek. Representative Bowling, of Alabama, jumped over two rows of seats to reach the scene, but meanwhile the sergeant-at-arms and other members had quieted things.

Mr. Oliver explained that he wanted more than the five minutes Mr. Dempsey had allotted him in the debate on the item in the rivers and harbors bill relating to the depth of the East river in New York, inasmuch as he had presented a preferential motion to concur with a senate amendment which would reduce the appropriation for that particular project.

The Alabama representative declared Mr. Dempsey, in a manner which he considered offensive, had replied: "I won't give you any time."

"I resented it as any gentleman would," Mr. Oliver said. "I smacked him with the palm of my left hand on his face."

Mr. Dempsey denied the use of profanity and declared he had promised time to Mr. Oliver and had gone to him and suggested that he take five minutes, saying that it was a New York item in which he could not see where the Alabama representative was interested.

Speaker Gillett was not presiding when the incident took place and no rebuke was administered by the chair, but Representative Oliver later apologized for breaking the rules of the house.

Return of Bustle Is Now Predicted By Paris Stylists

Paris, September 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—"The return of the bustle by next spring" is the difinite prediction, regarded as a threat in some quarters, just made by the fashion experts. These style creators base their forecast on the present trend in waistline designs and character. Skirts are now being made with hip paniers of wire or cane and have been very popular.

This season's fashion show, and the present tendency is, to extend this projection all around the waist. Many models have big rows of plaits, which bulge out grently, suggesting the very old-fashioned bustle. The women, however, have raised a loud cry against the return of the bustle. They say "never again" but dressmakers only smile, knowingly and answer: "It is on the cards."

BLIMP TAKES REST ON LONG JOURNEY

Belleville, Ill., September 16.—(By The Associated Press.)—The army dirigible C-2, on its way from coast to coast, was moored at Scott field, the government flying field near here today, drawing thousands of spectators. The blimp arrived here last night and despite the extreme darkness, had no difficulty in making the landing. Powerful searchlights were used in order to guide the crew safely to the ground.

Few citizens here knew of the arrival of the dirigible, so quietly worked the machinery that the humming of the engines was hardly audible.

The crew of the airship is in charge of Major H. A. Strauss. It is probable that the blimp will depart on its next lap to Fort Sill, Okla., Sunday or Monday. The entire distance to be covered on the flight which began at Langley Field, Va., is estimated at 3,085 miles. Stops will be made at several points including Little Rock, Ark.

Miss Maude Eberhardt, Brilliant Pianist, and Signor Volpi Also on Big Program.

Two feature artists, one of whom is new to radio listeners will be heard between 9 and 10 o'clock tonight from station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution.

The singer for the program tonight is Miss Olive Walker, a dramatic soprano, who has a voice of distinctive quality and volume. She is a pupil of Signor E. Volpi and is known in musical circles as an artist of exceptional talent.

Miss Maude Eberhardt, pianist, a pupil of I. M Mayer, of the Mayer piano school, will be the instrumental soloist for tonight. Miss Eberhardt has been heard before from station WGM and the impression she made in her previous appearances promises to be strengthened with her offerings tonight.

Signor Volpi, Miss Walker's teacher, will play the piano accompaniments on the Steinway from Phillips & Crew. Signor Volpi is heard frequently from station WGM and can almost be called a regular artist of The Constitution's raido service. His pupils have scored some of the biggest triumphs in the south in raido and he generally accompanies them at the piano in their vocal numbers.

Makes Radio Debut.

Miss Walker tonight makes her radio debut from station WGM. However, Miss Walker is well known to Atlanta audiences and her voice tonight by radio will be new only to the thousands of listeners who hear station WGM beyond the borders of Georgia. Miss Walker's voice has rare range and sweetness of tone and her appearance tonight at The Constitution promises an exceptional concert.

One of the biggest hits scored in local theatrical efforts recently was that made by Miss Walker in the Elk's minstrels of 1922. Signor Volpi is now preparing Miss Walker for the concert stage. She will be heard in concert this winter.

Miss Eberhardt, who plays on the program with Miss Walker, is well known to Atlanta musical people. Miss Eberhardt is a teacher of piano as well as a pupil of Mr. Mayer and she has a record of brilliant concerts.

Sacred Program.

Between 3:30 and 4:30 o'clock this afternoon, The Constitution will present some of the latest Steinway Duo-Art reproducing piano selections and some of the latest sacred numbers offered by the Victor records. The sacred program, which was arranged by the Victrola department of the Cable Piano company, includes such artists as Schumann-Heink, the greatest contralto of all times

The program this afternoon will take the place of the regular Sunday afternoon organ recital by city organist Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., which is precluded by arrangements at the Auditorium, where the organ is located, for the manufacturers' exhibit this week.

Questions and Answers

Radio Editor—My aerial is a single wire 80 feet long, 30 feet lead-in, and 50 feet high. Am using standard two variometer regenerative set with two steps of amplification. Reception does not seem to be as good as it should be. Would additional wires help? R. A.

Additional wires would not help any. The best thing to do is to increase its length in some way or other. If you can not make it absolutely straight you can lead the added length away at an angle. Make this angle as great as possible.

Radio Editor—Will you kindly tell me if the inclosed diagram is correct? I intend to use a vario-coupler for a tuning inductance. It has 40 turns on the primary tube. It has 14 taps. Tapped once every seven turns and once every single turn. Do all these taps go to one switch? Please tell me how to tune this set. G. N.

Your hook-up is correct with the exception that the B battery polarity is reversed. The positive terminal should always go to the plate. You should use two switches. The seven-turn taps should go to one switch and the single turn taps should go to another switch. The tuning is accomplished entirely by the switches and the variable condenser. First adjust the primary switch, having the secondary condenser at minimum value, then adjust this condenser until loudest signals are obtained.

Radio Editor—How can I increase the wave length of my receiving set? I am studying the Continental code and want to be able to pick up the ship and government stations. P. R.

You can increase your wave length by connecting a loading coil in series with your set. If you have one of the average short wave sets you will not need much loading to bring your wave length up to 600 meters, which is the general ship wave length. A loading coil having about twenty turns should be sufficient. This coil you can either buy or make.

Radio Editor—Which would be more efficient—a single wire aerial 150 feet long or a four-wire aerial 80 feet in length? When completed this aerial will be 75 feet high. A. W.

More efficient for what? If you mean for a receiving aerial, I should say that the single wire would give better results. The added capacity resulting from the extra wires is not necessary, and in many cases undesirable when used only for receiving. The greater length of the single wire also makes it better.

Gentlemen:

I have a radio receiving set using your "Garadio" variocoil with a detector tube and one variable conedenser and I get four or five programs from distant cities every night I use it, even in summer weather. The variocoil is certainly the finest regenerative tuning coil on the market.

On a recent trip to Florida I carried this set with me and heard everything from the north just the same. Too much good cannot be said for this instrument.

Georgia accepts Pennsylvania's best

Georgia Motorists have accepted TIOLENE in the big-hearted and hospitable way typical of the Great Southland.

TIOLENE has made friends all over Georgia. Its success is tremendous. A large part of it is due to the unstinted praise of motorists who have used TIOLENE and found it better than any previously known best.

Further and sweeping endorsement of TIOLENE is shown by this list of dealers who have elected to sell TIOLENE. They are the best and most representative in the state. These men know motor oil. It's a safe wager that they would not stake their reputations unless they knew absolutely that TIOLENE is right.

The staunch approval which TIOLENE has gained, almost over night, among both users and dealers is not casual. It is proof of its superior quality. From first to last TIOLENE is a quality oil. It is made from Cabin Creek Crude, the grade that commands a premium over the market price of all other Pennsylvania crudes! Lubrication experts are all agreed that Pennsylvania crude makes the best motor oil. Your own Georgia Tech, than which there is no finer technical institution in the world, will verify this fact.

There can be no better oil than TIOLENE until a better crude is discovered. It has a lower percentage of carbon residue than any other motor oil. It is more efficient and lasting. It clings tenaciously to moving surfaces under high speed.

There is a correct grade of TIOLENE for every motor. It is sold from ocean to ocean and in all foreign countries and is marketed by its makers through the best dealers.

And—for you motorists of Georgia who have not as yet tried TIOLENE, here is a big piece of news, the price of TIOLENE Motor Oil is no higher than you have been paying for dangerous substitutes.

TIOLENE is the only motor oil ever sold with a positive money-back-guarantee tag tied to every can. There is a TIOLENE dealer conveniently near you. TIOLENE is sold all over the Southland. Look for the TIOLENE Bull's-Eye sign displayed on the TIOLENE dealer's place of business. See him today. Have your crank case drained free and thoroughly rinsed out. Then fill up on TIOLENE. It will make your motor instantly responsive and smooth running, will add to its life and to your pleasure of driving.

S. A. Lynch Takes Over Atlanta Ball Franchise

J. P. Corbett Will Head Baseball Organization; Other Officers Named

New President Will Leave Shortly for Tour Of Eastern Baseball Centers in Search Of Manager and Material for 1923.

BY WILLIE WIGGINS.

The directing genius of S. A. Lynch is now behind the Atlanta ball club, since Saturday saw the completion of negotiations which transferred the ownership from R. J. Spiller to a combine from the Lynch Enterprises, Inc., headed by J. P. Corbett as new president of the Atlanta Baseball association.

While definite purchase price figures were not available, it is understood that the amount strays not far from $125,000, with a goodly percentage of cash involved in the bargain. In addition to his concessions at the park, Mr. Spiller retains ownership of Ponce de Leon park, and leases it to the new association for a period of 10 years at $7,500 a year.

The new Atlanta Baseball association has the following personnel, in addition to Mr. Corbett, an old baseball man, as president: Warren F. Freeman, vice president; C. E. Holcomb, treasurer, and D. R. Millard, secretary.

Shake-Up Certain.

A stirring shake-up is expected in the affairs of the club under the new regime. The fatal season just past, as well as the indifferent playing of teams representing this city for the past seasons, has been responsible for a determination on the part of the new management of the club to give Atlanta a winning ball club at all costs. Mr. Corbett leaves within the next fortnight for a six weeks' jaunt through the east, where big league affiliations will be consummated, and a manager will probably be chosen.

To insure Atlanta a chance at ball players of high calibre, almost certain affiliations are foreseen with the Chicago Nationals, by whose grace Atlanta secured during the past season Josy Klugman, rated as one of the premier keystoners of the league, despite the lowly position of his team. One of the New York teams will also be tied in on a working agreement, it is anticipated, but whether it will be the Yanks or the Giants is not yet known. The Philadelphia Athletics also have worked in fairly close liaison with the Crackers during the past and will continue to do so.

The Southern league affiliations of Ty Cobb and his Detroit Tigers have not been entirely satisfactory to the fiery manager, it is rumored, so it is believed that Mr. Corbett will be able to form a connection with this organization which will be valuable in sending good ball players to rally around the Cracker banner.

To Begin at Once.

Mr. Freeman, th new secretary of the club, said Saturday that a foundation for a good ball club would be begun at once, to be ready for a capable superstructure to be reared next spring when the rejuvenated Crackers leave for some glass-arm plantation for their preliminary training.

"The problem of a manager is the first which will confront us," said Mr. Freeman, and it is hoped that this difficulty will be put out of the way by the time Mr. Corbett has returned from his eastern trip.

"There is one thing certain, however—there will be no misunderstanding next season about who is manager. The manager who is chosen will manage the playing team and the president, Mr. Corbett, will handle the financial affairs of the aggregation. The manager's job will be to stay on the field with his men and see that Atlanta is given good baseball."

Local fans look forward to a renewal of the old interest which existed in Atlanta baseball when pennants flew occasionally from the center field flagpole. It is also believed that an entirely new bunch of ball tossers will greet the fans when they visit the park on opening day next season, with the probable exception of two or three who have shown shining ability even under the recent unfavorable circumstances.

Mr. Spiller, in releasing the actual ownership of the team, still holds a good interest in its activities, and is not blamed for the poor showing of the team during his ownership. Difficulty in securing a suitable manager, and the fact that the need for new material was not seen early enough to do a great deal of good are taken as the factors which overcame Mr. Spiller's earnest efforts to gather together an organization which could win games.

Victory Over A. M. Kennedy Sends Him to Championship In Well Played Struggle

Lynn Fort Wins in Consolations; Hunt and Miss Lowndes Win Mixed Doubles and Miss Lowndes Beats Miss Hutchinson.

BY ROY E. WHITE.

Jeff Hunt, local tennis player, entered from the Atlanta Athletic club, won the Georgia state singles tennis title Saturday afternoon on the East Lake courts over "Mutt" Kennedy, a club-mate. The score of the match was 6-3, 7-5, 7-5.

Lynn Fort, another Atlanta star tennis player, won the consolation single championship from Joe Duckworth. The score of the match was 7-5, 6-2.

Jeff Hunt and Miss Alice Lowndes, of Charleston, S. C., won the mixed doubles over V. M. Manning, of Greenville, S. C., and Miss Maberry, of Charleston, S. C. The score of the match was 6-1. Only one set was played because of darkness and both Hunt and Miss Lowndes had won singles during the afternoon.

Miss Alice Lowndes is the proud possessor of the Georgia state ladies' singles championship trophy, by one wonderful victory over Miss Mary Hutchinson, of Atlanta. The scores of the match were 5-7, 6-1, 6-4.

A total of eleven silver trophies were presented just after the last match was played and several of the entrants were presented with two trophies each. V. M. Manning, of Greenville, won a trophy in the mixed doubles. Miss Alice Lowndes won two trophies, one for the single championship and one for winner in the mixed doubles. Jeff Hunt won two, one for the singles champion and one in the mixed doubles. Miss Hutchinson won a trophy for loser in the single championship. A. M. Kennedy won a trophy for runner up in the single title.

Carleton Smith, B. M. Grant, V. M. Manning and A. M. Kennedy each won a trophy for their play in the doubles final. Lynn Fort won a trophy for winner of the consolation tournament.

The Feature Match.

The feature of the afternoon was the match between Hunt and Kennedy. Jeff won the match in three straight sets but Kennedy was pushing him all the way from the very beginning.

The fact that Hunt won the title does not show the game of tennis put up by the loser. It was some of the best work ever seen on a local court as far as getting onto the ball was concerned. Hunt utterly failed to put a drive past Kennedy in the entire first set and the score was 3 to 1, with Kennedy leading in the second set before the champion put a ball past Kennedy.

Kennedy's defeat lies in the fact that he failed to make the easy drives count, and many excellent chances were spoiled by low driving. Any man that can get hold of every ball driven over the net in 13 straight games is some tennis player, even if he is defeated. Had Kennedy placed his drives as well as on Friday, there would be a different score.

Hunt played the same steady game that he has played all through the tournament. He never lost his head and was the same in all of the sets. He pulled a wonderful rally in the second set. With the score standing 5 to 2 against him he tightened up and won the next five straight games and the set, 7-5. In the last set Hunt was weakening considerably, for he had Kennedy 5 to 1, and Kennedy won the next four games, only to lose the last two.

Hunt Shifts Play.

Hunt is a wonderful tennis player not to have a backhand stroke, and many times Kennedy would pound on his backhand only to have Hunt shift over on the court. Hunt in his victory Saturday had a keen knowledge of the back line, for practically all of his drives were within four or five inches of the back tape.

In the ladies' finals Miss Alice Lowndes, of Charleston, S. C., finally nosed out Miss Mary Hutchinson, of Atlanta, in the best two out of three sets. Miss Lowndes' victory was a remarkable piece of work, for she entered the match with the odds heavily against her because of an attack of tonsilitis last night. Toward the close of the match she showed clearly that she was about all in and would soon be forced from the court.

Miss Hutchinson, a local product, played a wonderful game of tennis against Miss Lowndes. She won the first set, but the experience of Miss Lowndes was too much for her.

Miss Lowndes was death on her serving and many times with the odd point against her she put across an ace for a tie point. She also showed some very good judgment on the balls knocked to her back line, and saved many points by it. She was all over the court, despite the fact that she was hardly able to be there, and in the last set was leading Miss Hutchinson by 5 to 2, but her weakness enabled Miss Hutchinson to win the next two games and almost tie the score.

Miss Lowndes has won several city tournaments in Charleston and also several summer camp championships, but this is her first singles title. She is also part sharer of the mixed double crown. It is quite a coincidence that both the Georgia state singles titles were won by a team that won the mixed, or scramble doubles.

Lynn Fort Wins.

The dubb or consolation singles title and trophy go to Lynn Fort, of Atlanta. Fort won a well-played match over Joe Duckworth, another local product. The match was won in straight sets, 7-5, 6-2.

Both men played some good tennis in the consolation matches, but they suffered their defeat in the tournament on the very first round by the older heads. Manning disposed of Duckworth and Ellis eliminated Fort, and the committee arranged a consolation tournament for those eliminated and offered a trophy for the winner. The tournament was not as brilliant as the main one, but some good tennis was given the spectators.

Singles champion won by Hunt over Kennedy, 6-3, 7-5, 7-5.

Ladies' single championship won by Miss Lowndes over Miss Hutchinson, 5-7, 6-1, 6-4.

Consolation singles won by Fort over Duckworth, 7-5, 6-2.

Mixed doubles won by Hunt and Miss Lowndes over Manning and Miss Maberry in one set, 6-1.

Lynch Likes to Sweeten Lemons

BY WILLIE WIGGINS

He Has His Chance With Crackers

Now that everything is set, the Crackers are in new hands and Atlanta baseball bugs have set out to win themselves new laurels in the hope-springing eternal marathon they have been participating in for several years—it actually looks like people are going to have a good time and not suffer the tortures of the dad-blamed at Ponce de Leon park next season.

It all happened Saturday. Very much like Messrs. Lynch and Spiller were preparing to entertain Atlanta at a little party.

"You buy the Crackers," said Mr. Spiller, "and I'll furnish the soft drinks and the peanuts. And we'll have the party in my big yard out on Ponce de Leon avenue."

That's all there was to it, except that Mr. Lynch has already bought the Crackers. It is rumored, however, that there will be a new carton or so on hand when festivities open next spring. And it is also true that some of the old Crackers are rather stale, and will probably be given away or sold at very low rates to somebody not so particular. Some, also, are not quite done, and will be sent back to some busher league oven for seasoning.

NO EXCUSES NECESSARY FOR GOING TO GAMES.

But, since it appears that some of the substance which makes the horse's sweetheart go, which is the root of all evil and the raison d'etre of bill collectors, will be splattered about—it really looks like Atanta is going to have a good ball club in 1923. A man can go to the ball park without telling everybody he went out there to catch a man he wanted to see on a business deal.

And honest, upstanding citizens, who would like to like baseball if baseball would let them, can add the following words to their vocabularies: headwork, pennant, slide, dammit, slide, baseball, willow, killim, fatned, pitchers' battle, attaboy and close game.

WHAT ABOUT EVERS AS LOCAL MANAGER?

It is known that the new Crackers will have an intimate association with the Chicago Cubs. It is further intimated that the new manager of the Crackers will be a man who has worn the Cub uniform and isn't entirely above wearing it now.

Now wouldn't it be the concrete canary's corset if the manager sent down should be Johnny Evers, the human crab, but one of the sweetest-sounding names on any of baseball history's pages. They say the shoe business up in Troy isn't so good since barefoot dancing became the vogue and it might be that Johnny would listen to the appeal of southern shekels.

That statement isn't based on anything but conjecture which was born of the writer's share of that hope-springing-eternal bunk.

MR. LYNCH WILL MAKE THINGS HUM.

The fact that Mr. Lynch now has the Crackers is enough to made fandom cry for joy. Not that Mr. Spiller didn't try his stuff with them, but Mr. Lynch has a reputation of making things hum when he takes hold of them and since his venture is located in the best baseball town south of the Potomac—why shouldn't we have a winning team?

A pennant has been known to float from the sapling in center field at Poncey park. Mobile, this year, hauled off and came from last place to second to none by the expenditure of some shekels. And besides, Mr. Lynch with his reputation from fondling nothing but success, would hardly grab him a lemon if he didn't intend to sweeten it.

Yes, the chances are that next season we'll diet on sweet Crackers. That won't leave a bad taste in the mouth. And won't crumble when in contact with the Bears' claws, the Pelican's beak, the Chicks' spur, the Barons' grimy paws, the Lookouts'—well, spectacles, the Vols' (wish I hadn't started this) bayonet, or the Travelers' suitcase. Thank the Lord that's over.

MRS. GAUT IN 2-1 VICTORY

Glen Echo Country Club, St. Louis, Mo., September 16.—Mrs. Dave Gaut, of Memphis, is the new western women's golf champion, she clinching this honor today by defeating Mrs. Curtis Sohl, of Columbus, 2 up and 1 to play. Mrs. Gaut played a steady game all the way, her approach shots being especially strong. The Memphis woman also did some wonderful work upon the greens. The Ohio lady made a great fight all the way but virtually doomed herself on her drive for 17, when she put her tee shot into the lake. Mrs. Gaut was on the green in three, two feet from the cup for an easy birdie four.

Mrs. L. E. Wesson, St. Louis, defeated Miss Audry Faust, St. Louis, 1 up in 19 in the championship consolations.

To Take Rest.

Bobby Barrett, the Philadelphia lightweight who suffered reverses at the hands of Lew Tendler and Charley White, plans to take a long rest before inaugurating his winter campaign. Barrett says he was pushed to the front too fast and before he gained the valuable experience needed to cope with the topnotchers.

MISS STIRLING IS DEFEATED

Toronto, September 16.—Mrs. W. A. Gavin, of the Huntercombe club, England, captured the Canadian women's golf championship today defeating Miss Alexa Stirling, of New York and Atlanta, former American title holder, two up and one to play.

Mrs. Gavin, a former New Yorker, carries back to England the title won last year by Miss Cecil Leitch, former British champion.

Neither finalist was at her best in the 18-hole title round, although Mrs. Gavin apparently always had something in reserve to meet Miss Stirling's frequent challenges.

Mrs. Gavin took the lead at the third hole, made the turn one up, and then won three of the four holes to gain a margin of four up. Here the American star made her supreme bid, cutting her opponent's lead to one up by taking the 14th, 15th and 16th.

Short On Drive.

Going to the 17th, Miss Sterling was a trifle short on her drive, and overran the green with her second, while Mrs. Gavin found a bunker with her tee shot but put her second on the green. Their thirds were close to the cup, but Miss Stirling missed a putt of 3 feet and lost the match when Mrs. Gavin sank an 18-inch for a four.

Both players had trouble with their driving and Miss Stirling, usually steady on the greens, had frequent difficulty gauging her putting strokes.

Mrs. Gavin took the first hole when Miss Stirling pulled her drive and took four to reach the green, but the former American champion squared the count by holing her first putt at the second hole.

Mrs. Gavin again went into the lead when Miss Stirling took three putts on the third green and made it two up by shooting a par three on the fourth while Miss Stirling was short on her tee shot and again in putting.

Both players found traps on the fifth but Miss Stirling won by holing a four foot putt. The American girl lost the sixth by taking 3 strokes from the edge of the green and both halved the short seventh in par threes.

Brilliant Approach.

A brilliant approach shot to within four feet of the cup on the eighth enabled Miss Stirling to hole a birdie four and reduce her opponent's lead to one. They halved the ninth, due to another pretty approach shot

Shoots First Side in 31 and Follows With a 32 On Second—Final Score Three Strokes Better Than Mark Made in 1920.

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY

Bobby Jones, southern amateur golf champion, runner-up in the national open championship tournament at Skokie and a semi-finalist in the recent national amateur affair at Brookline, yesterday clipped three strokes off his own record for the East Lake course when he negotiated 6,570 yards in 63 strokes.

The former record, 66, was made by Bobby approximately two years ago, when he managed to couple 33s for each side. He has since equalled that mark four times, but the figure stood until yesterday, when accompanied by his father, Tess Bradshaw and Abe Adair, the youthful Robert made golfing history for this section.

Delving into the files of this newspaper, one will come upon the startling information that yesterday's feat marked the seventh time that Bobby has broken the course record at East Lake. As a matter of fact, since Bobby passed out of his swaddling clothes, records at the country home of the Atlanta Athletic club have been very much what Robert T. Jones, Jr., wanted to make them.

His performance Saturday was wonderful, there's no doubt about that. It doesn't need any such introduction to readers who know a golf club from a sack of salt. He could not have made it had not every shot been propelled by the swing of the master golfer.

Playing Easily.

Those playing with Bobby in the record-breaking round declare that he was playing easily throughout the session. Only once or twice was he forced to extend himself, and on those few occasions the mistakes he had to rectify were trivial affairs.

Two bad holes were encountered, Bobby's comrades assert. On No. 8 Bobby uncorked an indifferent iron shot and found his ball in the rough. Using a niblick, he pitched to within eight feet of the pin and sent down his putt for the par three.

On the fourteenth Bobby was forced to use everything he had to come out even with par. He started for this green with a whaling drive nearly 300 yards. Figuring that the pin was on the side of the green nearest him, Bobby was not strong enough with his mashie pitch and was short. He was too strong with his second pitch and was left with a 15-foot putt. He rimmed the cup, but his putt would not drop for the birdie four and he took a par five.

After that Bobby was never in danger, although he admitted that the growing dusk made him a bit uncertain at the 18th, when his tee shot was hole-high but just to the right of the green. He chipped up dead, however, and rammed down the putt for a par three and a record that East Lake golfers can shoot at for years to come was established.

Began With Birdie 3.

The record-breaker started with a birdie three on the first hole. Bobby had a fine drive and his second came to rest on the green, 20 feet from the cup. Carefully estimating the putt, Bobby let go and the ball went straight into the pocket.

His pitch onto the second green left him with a ten-foot putt for a two and he promptly ran it down, sending him two strokes to the good in his battle with par.

At the third Bobby's drive was beautiful and he followed with a pitch that stopped four feet from the objective. It looked like Jones was going three up on the old gentleman, but he missed the short putt and took a par four.

He had a good chance for an eagle three on the long fourth, but the putt wouldn't drop and Bobby took a birdie

BILL TILDEN WINS CROWN

Philadelphia, September 16.—(By the Associated Press.)—William T. Tilden, II, of Philadelphia, United States tennis champion, retained the title today by defeating William M. Johnston, of San Francisco, in a terrific five-set struggle by scores of 4-6, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4, on the courts of the Germantown Cricket club today. Tilden also won posession of the championship cup, in which he won legs in 1920 and 1921, Johnston also had two legs in the trophy when play began.

The struggle of the finalists in the forty-first annual titular tournament of the United States Lawn Tennis association transcended any similar battle spectators ever remember having seen here. The gallery of 14,000 persons witnessed a match such as is seldom, if ever, offered as the climax of a national or international match. Perfect weather conditions favored the players.

Words and figures are poor tools with which to carve for posterity a record of contest staged today by the two greatest tennis players of their time. It transcended any similar battle in the memory of the oldest follower of the game. At the close of the one hour and 40 minutes' struggle the gallery was in a state of hysteria and exhaustion almost equal to that of the contestants. Rooting for first one player and then the other, the spectators toward the close of the struggle began to call shots and dispute linesmen's decisions until play was of necessity halted several times.

Desperate Battle.

Battling desperately yet with the most perfect court science and racquet control, for permanent possession of the championship trophy, on which each held two legs, the two "Bills" gave an exhibition of super-tennis play of astonishing and stupifying calibre.

Master wielders of hickory and gut they served, drove, volleyed and lobbed with a speed and precision which left the average tournament player aghast at their skill. Impossible appearing placements were turned into scintillating returns, service aces, shot at eye baffling speed, flew back to far corners of the court while the dripping, gasping contestants raced about the turf at bewildering speed.

At the end of what was undoubtedly one of the most gruelling tennis matches in the history of the sport, Tilden led Johnston by just four games and 16 points. No better example of the almost even ability of the two need be cited. Tilden won, but his margin of victory lay not entirely in his racquet wizardry. It was greater physical proportioning power and endurance, that contributed to his retention of the cup.

As if he figured that the frail Californian could not go five full sets at the speed with which "Little Bill" opened the match Tilden seemed to save a little something for the crucial third set and if this was his reasoning it was correct.

The champion did not lift his game to its highest plane until the third set nor did he go after every one of Johnston's exquisitely placed returns until that session. It was then do or die and he proved that in the crisis he was still the greater player both physically and mentally. Errors were, perforce, frequent in the long and exciting rallies in which each strove to force an opening for a winning shot but toward the end it was Tilden who set the pace and executed the most brilliant gets and placements.

YANKEES WIN OVER BROWNS

St. Louis, Mo., September 16.—Bob Shawkey bested Urban Shocker in a pitchers' battle, and the New York Yankees defeated the St. Louis Browns 2 to 1 today in the first game of a three-game series that is generally believed will decide the championship of the American league. The victory put the visitors a game and a half ahead of the Browns. Allowing only seven hits and issuing no bases on balls, Shawkey was supreme throughout in his battle with Shocker, who was touched for nine hits and two walks.

New York made its first run in the second inning, when Meusel singled, went to second on Jacobson's fumble, advanced to third on Ward's sacrifice and scored on Scott's single. The visitors scored their second run in the third on Dugan's single, Ruth's single and a sacrifice fly by Pipp. The Browns scored in the sixth on Gerber's single, Shocker's infield out and singles by Tobin and Foster. Sisler hit into a double play in this inning, preventing further scoring by the Browns.

PUGILISM'S CROWNED HEADS BOOBS IN WALL STREET

LOCALS FIFTH IN BATTING

The batting champion of the Southern Association probably will not be determined until the offical, final averages of the season are compiled. It's a race between Schleibner, of Little Rock, and Henry, of New Orleans, with Schleibner having the edge of 11 points on figures, including games of Tuesday. The Little Rock hitter, according to averages based on those figures, is hitting .354, while Henry is second with .343. A week ago they were tied with .335.

Schleibner, however, took the lead as a result of smashing out 14 hits in 7 games, while the best Henry could do was 11 in the same number of starts. Huhn and Williams, of the pennant-winning Mobile club, with 11 homers apiece, threaten to complicate the home-run situation. Schulte, also of Mobile, is leading the race with 12, but the final averages may upset him.

In base stealing, Stewart, of Birmingham, is so far in the lead that he is certain to capture the season's honors. He offered 46, while Silva, his teammate, is second with 39.

by Miss Stirling and a missed short putt by Mrs. Gavin.

Both players missed putts for fours on the tenth, halving the hole. Mrs. Gavin took the 11th, 12th and 13th to become four up, driving straight down the fairway and putting brilliantly while Miss Stirling found the rough on the 11th, overran the cup on the 12th green and got into a bunker on the 13th.

Making her last stand, Miss Stirling took the 14th with a par three, recovered from a bunker and holed a 15-foot putt to win the 15th and captured the 16th when Mrs. Gavin lost her ball in a creek. The result left Miss Stirling one down but her opponent was equal to the test on the 17th and took the hole and match two and one.

The complete card for the match follows:

Miss Stirling:
Out	646	456	345—43
In	575	835	65x 44—87
Mrs. Gavin:
Out	565	365	355—43

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

Benny Leonard shows a surprising lack of originality. Or else he's spoofing the public about having tossed off "a million" plunging on the stock market and the ponies.

Always thought Benny was one smart fellow among the boxers. Thought he was saving his ring money and making more in business. By Benny's own statements he has to start all over again earning a living in the ring.

But no tears, Rufus!

Benny has already made a fair start with $170,000, for fighting Britton, Kansas, Tendler and Ever Hammer. The poorhouse is a long way off for Benjamin, even if he has wrecked a fortune.

As far as I've ever seen or heard, Benny hasn't been much of a plunger on the race tracks. His business judgment, shown in match-making and purse-getting, has been rather keen. Funny if he is a boob in Wall street. It doesn't sound like Leonard.

Perhaps Benny is taking an easy way to stand off touches, for any champion who wears diamonds and sports a bank account finds a host of "friends" holding their hands out at every turn. Or perhaps Benny has a notion that he might as well take a chance on the stock market as pay out a huge percentage of his ring money in income taxes. If he wins he has something more for taxes, and if he loses he isn't much worse off anyhow, because buying and selling stocks is a business, and losses cut down the tax.

BILLY GIBSON'S TOUGH LUCK.

Billy has often shown himself a keen business man. In two or three business ventures he has made all the money he'll ever need and this doesn't include his share as Leonard's manager—a fortune in itself. Yet Gibson has been "flat broke" several times through overconfidence in his ability to beat the ponies. He has been a bookie, a horse owner and a race follower, with all the ups and downs of the race track. Bill has often told me that if he could lose interest in racing he'd be a rich man.

He made money with a merry-go-round or carousel at North Beach, with a cafe in the Bronx, in real estate, with the Fairmont A. C., and by managing fighters. The race track, for years, got it all.

As a bookmaker Gibson always paid. Very often his customers didn't. As a fight promoter he became famous for rare honesty, always returning the ticket money when for any reason a bout was called off. Fact—he returned more than the ticket money, for some of his customers collected on the "Annie Oakleys" after cleverly refilling the holes punched in them.

It was nothing uncommon for Bill to refund six or seven hundred dollars more than the entire gate taken in, and then pay the preliminary boys out of his own pocket.

Perhaps Leonard backed Billy's racing judgment. Or perhaps he tried to emulate Leach Cross, who made a splurge two years ago by winning over $40,000 in the stock market, and quit his job as a property man or stage carpenter or something with a moving picture company. Even with tips from "a friend on the inside" the stock market trims you nine times out of ten.

If Benny has dropped a million—his earnings in the ring, in movies and on the stage, and in business—he has only followed the example of other boxers who tried to get something without working—and lost their kale.

Kid McCoy, cleverest boxer of his time, was a boob for the ponies. The keen and tricky Kid often dropped his ring money on the race track, where he always had "inside information" from his friends. The funny part of this is that any fighter who cleans up big money in the ring is a shining mark for all kinds of go-getters.

TOM SHARKEY LOST HIS ROLL.

Bob Fitzsimmons, when he was world's champion and thought every man who slapped him on his back was his friend, entertained a famous financier at his house, and on this gentleman's advice invested his entire fortune—over $100,000—in a stock deal. He never got a cent back. Bob was often hard up in his old age, and he died poor.

Leach Cross fought a great number of battles and was one of the biggest money makers in the ring in his day. He lost every cent he had—near the end of his career, in the stock market. He fought a little more and got enough money to go to California, where he held down a movie job. Still speculating, he ran a tire stock deal up to about $40,000, quit, and made a little more in an attempted "comeback" in the ring. He's back on the movie job.

Trotting horses, stock market, and grafting politicians took all of Tom's money. When he was flat broke he went to San Francisco and ran a bar for a while, tried it in Los Angeles and has moved around the country from one town to another, ever since. If Tom was the fighter he used to be he'd make a fortune in a month—but a fighter hasn't much left when his ring days are over.

HOW POOR TERRY WAS TRIMMED.

Terry McGovernor never bet more than a $5 bill on a horse race until he went crazy. Then the bookies took over $40,000 from Terry in a week, and were stopped only when Sam Harris threatened them with exposure through the newspapers. They were taking Terry's bets "on the finger"— collecting from him when he lost and refusing to pay when he won, claiming that they never made any bets with him. A boxer is easy picking for the professional trimmers—but a crazy boxer is a gift.

Abe Attell was a born gambler, a money-maker in the ring and usually broke because there were smarter gamblers around him. Attell had nothing at the end of a long ring career. At least he said so.

Young Corbett won $20,000 in one day on the Ingleside track when training for his second fight with McGovernr, in California. At the end of the week he had lost it back, and was in hock to the bookies for his share of the Corbett-McGovenror purse as well. Trying to beat the races kept young Corgett broke, and when he was through with fighting he hadn't a dollar of his ring money left.

Leonard hasn't much time ahead as a lightweight champion, unless he stalls like Johnny Kilbane and fights about once a year. Any mah he fights may have the luck to crack him on the chin—and then Benny will be an ex-champion and not even among teh big money-makers. For the public isn't as much interested in a man who has been at the top as it is in the fellow who's climbing up.

four. He followed the same course on the fifth and had no trouble scoring fourth birdie in five holes, getting a four. His tee shot on the short sixth was ten feet from the cup, but he took a couple of putts for a par three.

From his drive on the seventh tee it appeared that Robert would gain another stroke on par, but his second was indifferently played and he had to shoot his head off for a par four. His third was beautiful, leaving him a short putt. The story of the eighth and Bobby's hard work for his three has already been told. A long drive, a powerful brassie and two putts gave Bobby a birdie four on the ninth.

A review of that side shows that Jones turned in five birdies and was not over par a single time, his 31 being five strokes under par. Here is the card, compared with par:

Par:
Out—434 553 435—36
Jones:
Out—324 445 434—31

The Second Side.

It was pretty evident at the turn that Bobby was about to turn in a record-smasher, and his comrades began to wonder how much longer the streak would keep up. Bobby gave them nothing to worry about on the tenth. His drive was over the hill, a regular home run with the bases loaded, and his second was ten feet from the pin. Bobby came within an ace of getting a three, as his first putt hit the back of the cup, but declined to drop. He made his four, anyway.

He played easily on the eleventh and scored a par three. Super-golf gave him a birdie three on the twelfth. A long drive and an accurately placed iron second left him with a short putt for this figure. Back up the incline to the thirteenth went the rampaging Robert and a par four was the result. Back down on the long fourteenth and a par five was recorded on his score card.

Bobby's drive on the fifteenth was one of the longest of the round and a fine second put him on the green. He took two putts for a birdie four. Another birdie was scored on the sixteenth, when Bobby rammed down a 20-foot putt, and he came right back on the next green with another 20-footer for a birdie three. His three on the eighteenth was par for this hole. Here is the card for the second side:

Par:
In—434 455 443—36
Bobby:

Used Only 26 Putts.

In the 18 holes Bobby used but 26 putts, showing that his game in this department was exactly ten strokes better than rules for battling par specify. He was not over par on a single hole on the round and really might have been a stroke or two under his score had all his short putts gone down.

It marked the seventh time that Bobby has broken the East Lake record. The late George Adair, away back in 1914 donated a cup to remain in the possession of the golfer holding the East Lake record as long as the mark held good. Mr. Adair then proceeded to win the cup, scoring a 79 on September 8, 1914.

He held onto the trophy for nearly a year, D. E. Root with a 78 gaining the cup on July 2, 1915. Root's regime was short-lived as Bobby Jones took it away five days later with a 77. Since then it has not been out of Bobby's hands.

He broke his own record of 77 on July 4, 1916, shooting a 74. Two years later, on July 18, 1918, Bobby carried the low mark to 70 and on July 16, 1919, he registered a 69. He cracked this mark on September 14 of the same year with a 68. On September 23, 1920, Bobby made his first 66, to be repeated four times before he went under the figure.

Oakland, Cal., September 16.—Infielder William Mariott, of the Oakland team of the Pacific Coast league, a former member of the Chicago Cubs, has been traded to the Mobile club of the Southern association for Del Baker, a catcher, who formerly was with the Portland team of the coast league, it is announced by the Oakland management. Baker will report in the spring.

Atlanta Given 4th Corps Ring and Mat Tournament, To Be Held Nov. 23-4-5

Army Wrestlers and Boxers From Nine Southern States Scheduled to Enter Event. Fort McPherson to be Represented.

BY M. D. GLEASON.

The athletic department of the fourth corps area of the army which comprises the nine southern states of Arkansas, Louisiana, Missisippi, Alabama, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, will hold a boxing and wrestling tournament about November 23, and 25 at the Auditorium.

This will be the biggest thing of the kind ever pulled off in the south, more than 80 men of both branches of these sports taking part.

This tournament will be under the direction of Captain Smith, who is athletic officer of the fourth corps area. The conducting of this big tournament is receiving the same efficient and thorough efforts that Uncle Sam puts into any undertaking.

Questionnaires have been sent to every athletic officer in every branch post or fort in these states to ascertain the best athletics.

Partial Entry List.

A partial list of the best men selected so far in several weights and classes is as follows: R. F. Coleman, weight 135 pounds, and M. J. Lyons, weight 124, of the Twenty-second company, and the Twentieth company respectively, of the coast defense of Pensacola, Fla.

C. O. Dunde, weight 167 pounds; Ed Thacker, 160; Paul Walker, 135; fighters, and E. Dickerson, weight 150; C. Hartline, 147; N. Lockman, 150; M. J. Stalworth, 130 wrestlers of Camp McClellan, Ala.; R. E. Roden, weight 139, and Ed Slowinski 145, fighters of Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

Ostendorff, weight, 180; Campbell, a success. 168; Miller, 149, and Conway, 130, wrestlers of Camp Bragg, Ark., and LePain, weight 172; Ryan, 162; Baldwin, 158; Busch, 143; Carrol, 135; Harris, 136 Motes, 135; Penny, 135; Conrad, 125; McDevit, 124; Donavan, 12?; Billy Donavan, 122; Geracle, 121; Burnette, 133, and Maxey, 135, fighters of Camp Bragg, Ark.

Fort Moultrie, on the Atlantic coast, is now holding elimination contests and will enter men in all classes in both wrestling and boxing.

Fort McPherson will be well represented both in boxing and wrestling. The following men have so far qualified to take part in the boxing bouts: King, Doy, Phillips, Seilke, Wainwright, V. J. Makaisar, Propes.

A good many of these men were well-known boxers and wrestlers before entering the service. Battling King now at Fort McPherson, formerly of Providence, R. I., was champion welterweight for New England for some time before he joined the army and some of the local experts consider him the best man of his weight that has been seen around Atlanta in some time.

Reduced Rates Planned.

Efforts are being made to get excursion rates on all roads into Atlanta during the tournament as it comes at the same time as the big army and marine football game at Ponce de Leon, November 22.

The proceeds of this tournament will go into the athletic fund of the fourth corps area and will be used to stimulate further the spirit of athletics of the army in these nine southeastern states.

Colonel R. H. Williams, chief of staff, of the fourth corps area promises that the big military band at the fort will help make this tournament

BY EMMETT SIZEMORE.

Auburn, Ala., September 16.—(Special.)—The first weeks practice for the Donahue Tigers was brought to a close here late this afternoon after a stiff workout each afternoon this week. More than three full teams have made up the big tent while Kirk Newell reports more than fifty freshmen have put in a big week in his freshie camp, and despite exceedingly hot weather the coaches have driven the Plainsmen candidates at mid-season form in preparation for their "opener" with the Howard Bulldogs in Birmingham, September 30.

Coach Donahue has a very different type of material reporting this year than from any year in the past decade. For the past ten years the Tiger lines have been made up of huge beefy specimens, tipping the scales at 200. This season faster linemen will be seen on the Tiger roster and with one or two exceptions all of them will weigh well under the 200 mark.

To Lose No Time.

More experience than usual is noted in the Orange and Blue personnel and the Tiger chieftain it is thought, will use less time in preliminary work than of previous seasons.

Coach Gath Wilson seems to be a real find on the coaching staff. He has charge of the varsity linemen and has been busy this week in giving the linemen drills in charging on the offense and defense and the use of hands and various fundamentals for line playing.

Coach Newell's freshmen are busy in preliminary work. The training of these freshmen is being somewhat delayed on account of all the equipment not having been received. A number of the freshman candidates have shown up well in the workouts this week, among which are linemen McNeil, Franklin Self, Sprinter Bonner, Huckeba, Rox, Couch, Davis; backs, Salter, Greene, Yates, Nails, Williams, Langshore, Allridge, Hodges and right ends Market, Ford, Hunnicutt and McFadden.

A rather attractive schedule has been arranged for the freshmen team this year, which includes Sidney Lanier, at Montgomery, October 6; Florida freshman, Jacksonville October 14; Georgia freshmen, Opelika October 20; Talladega Hi at Talladega November 11; Georgia Tech freshmen, Atlanta November 25.

Larger Football Squad.

Ohio State university will have a larger football squad this year than ever before. The completion of the giant Ohio stadium is assigned as the cause for the added interest in the grid sport. Coach Wilce expects to have a squad of at least 150 candidatesc when the crew reports for first instructions on September 15. He believes he can eliminate more than one-half of this number in one week.

Better Outlook at Vanderbilt As Weight Is Added to Forwards

Nashville, Tenn., September 16.—(Special.)—Those who judge the quality of the circus by the size of the elephants in the parade will find a demijohn of consolation in the knowledge that the moleskin situation on Dudley field took on heftier appeared. And right merrily were proportions. The boys with the bulk they greeted, for the vanguard of the forwards on opening day failed to bring with them the portly dimensions which are so desired for line service.

But with the arrival for the second session of Lynn Bomar and Walker, a former Peoples-Tucker performer, the fear of puny proportions in the line slunk away for a considerable distance. Lynn Bomar checked in with more weight than is actually desired. He confessed to tipping the beam at 208 pounds, which is about 20 pounds more than his gridiron weight. Bomar has engaged in no such rugged work as packing steel around the staduim like to Fatty Lawrence and Tucky Kelly, and as a result is troubled by excess baggage. Hence the help of the Georgia duel will be forced to do no end of chores each morning and afternoon in order to chop away the unnecessary fat.

Walker, however, has no such handicap of adipose tissue as Bomar. He appears to be in prime condition and his arrival created considerable elation among the coaches. He did not come out for football last year but looked after an end position at Peoples-Tucker and may fit in well at one of the vacant line places. He is fitted out with powerful legs and weighs close to 190 pounds, being built much along the lines of Frank Elam with straight and sturdy underpinning.

Four Line Candidates.

Around this husky Walker (who hails from Columbia, a town which produced the far-famed Lee Tolley, Tuck Kelly, Fatty Lawrence and Garland Morrow revolve many hopes of the line problem situation. Morrow is expected to develop into a forward of more than momentary ability. He is of rugged construction, although not overburdened with weight, but it is a football fact that some bulk can be spared in the guard stations if alertness, speed and shiftiness are there in fat proportions.

Tucky Kelly is constructed on robust lines, is supplied with moleskin experience which he collected as a Wildcat center, and if Walker attains expectations the trio with Lawrence should dismiss many of the line worries, or at least to cause them to shrink to more normal proportions. There is no side-stepping the conviction that Vandy will miss Fats Bailey, Frank Elam, Pink Wade and Tom Ryan in the line should the latter pair adhere to their resolutions to remain out of the football fold

Right now Walker is more promising than Putty Overall, for the Murfeesboro boy was handicapped by a lame and treacherous knee and was never able to properly handle his immense bulk. How to replace Elam of course is a titanic puzzle. He flared like a meteor across the Dixie gridiron firmament. He lacked polish to a marked degree, had not learned to follow the ball with his eye when going down under punts, but was an uncut diamond of inestimable potentialities.

Ryan Practically Lost.

Kelly may be another raw gem. The same may be true of Garland Morrow. There is never any basis upon which to estimate the latent talent of a mole-skinner in the dawn of September. No more than a rookie in April can be properly gauged. It's a pastime far too hazardous to attempt, even for the most learned in moleskin lore.

With Walker, Morrow and Kelly budding into the ability hoped for and with Pink Wade and Tom Ryan both returning, the Vandy line situation would take on a hue as rosy as the dawn of a June morning.

But the chances of Tom Ryan being back are swiftly fading. In a letter yesterday to the coaches he shed the gloomy news that he expected to retain his Tampico oil job at least until Christmas and then return. Which tardy arrival will be quite too late to aid the Commodores against the Wolverines, Texans or Tigers.

Of course there is yet a chance that the Texans will alter his plans and arrive in time to patrol the flanks again. But the chance is remote. Extremely so.

Hek Wakefield's toe work should offset the absence of Tom Ryan in the punting department, but Hek Wakefield is a back by trade, and has only a nodding acquaintance with end duties. And Tom Ryan was one of the most talented wingmen in Dixie last year. There's a gap that will require considerable work to fill.

Tot McCullough has not yet put in his appearance, much to the distress of the coaches, who plan to drive the Morgan giant through a whirlwind of education in tackle play. If the herculean Tot delays much longer he is apt to arrive in time to find more competition for his berth than he cares to encounter.

Lawrence's Chances.

If Fatty Lawrence can escape another serious injury this autumn he should prove of material assistance in knitting together a stout set of forwards. Last fall a cracked ankle mowed down the Hi boy before he could get under way. His injury prevented him from taking part in any of the big games; shorn of this experience his training naturally was dwarfed. Already he is on the ailing list with a sprained ankle, but the accident is expected to mend hastily.

Hard as steel, from vigorous labor around the stadium, Fatty Lawrence is in top hole condition. He proved last year that he has marked ability and the coaches are extremely hopeful he will expand this year into a sterling forward.

The Commodores were put through another forenoon and afternoon grind which left them fairly gasping when it ended. Wallace Wade looked after the backfield candidates while Tex Bradford groomed the forwards. The customary forward passing exercise at both sessions preceded the roughish charging and blocking exercises with the huge Tex Bradford using no gloves on his squad. The bare information that Wallace Wade hovered over the backs leaves no room for imagination as to whether or not they were well churned up when he had concluded the day's work.

FINE STAFF FOR TRINITY

Durham, September 16.—(Special.)—The advent of a new year in athletics for Trinity college finds a new coaching staff over last year. Herman Steiner, who was assistant coach last year, has moved up a peg and now heads the works. Acting under him as assistant is J. S. Burbage, who comes from Georgia where he has established a record in turning out successful teams for Georgia Military academy. It is the plan of the athletic authorities at Trinity to create a staff that shall remain intact over a number of years, thus insuring the best possible development of Trinity teams.

Steiner's record as assistant under Coach Baldwin, who was very successful with the Trinity teams last year, won him the place as chief of the works for this year. He was a close student of the game under Baldwin and as coach of the second team developed a combination that often put the varsity to its best efforts to stay even.

As head coach he will in all probability carry out the system which Baldwin found most effective. He has also been engaged the past summer in picking up some fine points in the game from leading coaches over the country. He spent some time learning the system of forward passes employed by the famous Rockne at Notre Dame. The system of play which he expects to instill into the Trinity team this year will get well under way in the two weeks camp in the mountains. This mountain camp will give Steiner and his men a jump on the other aggregations of the state in the matter of training.

Experienced Coach.

Coach Steiner is a graduate of the Normal School of Physical Education at Indianapolis, Ind., and has had considerable experience before coming south. He attended Syracuse university and was made captain of the freshman football team He left Syracuse to enter the army After his army career he decided upon coaching as a profession and entered the Normal college. At this college he was connected with the athletic supervision of the Indianapolis, captain of the basketball team, and track coach at a nearby college He played minor league baseball for a time.

Zybszko Starts Training.

Wladek Zbyszko the wrestler, will leave his camp in the Maine woods on September 25 and enter daily training to get in shape for the winter season. Zbyszko has been roughing it since June 1. He has gained 14 pounds but does not expect to hold this additional weight when he starts his daily visits to the gym.

Hard Schedule Faces Tennessee; Backfield Will Be Big Feature

Knoxville, Tenn., September 16.—(Special.)—Way off in the mountains of east Tennessee, far removed from the temptations of civilization, Coach M. B. Banks and a large squad of University of Tennessee pigskin artists have started training. Camp Wonderland, located at Elkmont, in the heart of the Appalachian range about 500 miles east of Knoxville, has been chosen as the lair of the Fighting Volunteers for preliminary practice, due to extensive repairs now being made on the university gymnasium.

Not until the day before their first engagement on September 23 will the Vols come forth from their mountain lair. From then on daily practice sessions on the local gridiron will be in order to shape a team which can hold its own with such formidable antagonists as Vanderbilt, Sewanee, Georgia and Kentucky State.

Coach Banks is very optimistic over the outlook, despite the fact that a number of valuable men have been lost through graduation and other causes.

He bases this confidence upon the following roster of candidates who are expected to report when the practice curtain rises: The linemen and their weights are Captain Struegel, 187; Key, 190; Holt, end, 175, Lane, end, 165; Kelly, 165; Gilliland, 165; Cloyd, 175; Shipe, 170; Hurley, 165.

Of the candidates for the eleven, Struegel, Holt, Lane, Campbell, Smith, Hurley and Phillips are letter men, J. G. Lowe, Morris, Duncan, Kennedy, Cureton, Kefauver, Kelly, Sneed, Nehf, Keister and Jackson put up good scraps for berths on last year's gridiron machine. Key, a powerful husky, made a bid for the 1920 team. Fonde, a track letter man, bears the reputation of being a fine plunger of ability, although he did not report for practice last year.

Strong Backfield.

SOUTHEASTERN FAIR'S RACING PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

John Marshall, Duval High School Recruit, Shows Up Nicely With Freshman Squad. "Pup" McWhorter is Great Star.

BY JOHN STATON.

Judging from the crowd out to watch the initial skirmish of the year, you would have thought that Tech was playing a real match game. There must have been fully 150 enthusiastic people out, ready to give the glad hand to anything that resembled a good play. Of course, all the old guard was out, rubbing hands, and comparing this with last year's first.

The freshmen were the first at it, and played hard all the way through, despite the extremely warm rays that filtered through heavy clothing. There was no kick off, but the ball was placed in the center of the field and they were told to go to it. And go they did. For fully thirty downs, there was no advantage to either side. But number one weakened, and number two tightened up. Result, that three or four touchdowns were scored in rapid succession.

Marshall Stars.

John Marshall, playing end for number one, perhaps did the work that brought forth the most commendation. He is the lad from Duval High school, cracked up to be one of the best prep men going to college in the south this year. He follows the ball relentlessly and recovered quite a few loose balls. In addition, he caught two or three difficult passes for long gains, one going for a touchdown.

After some forty or fifty downs, the two varsity squads were brought forth, and turned loose. And blood and thunder reigned. Before many downs, it assumed the nature of a grudge battle. Clay's team consisted almost wholly of last year's freshman team. Coach Alexander used his men at random from last season's varsity squad. Coach Alex's team seemed to have the edge in the encounter, due to the stronger line. Coach Alex's line could hold on defense and charge well on the defense, while Kid Clay's team was a trifle weak in both departments. The backfields stacked up about even, and were swapped around from time to time.

"Pup" McWhorter, halfback on last year's freshman team did perhaps the most consistent work of the afternoon. It was thought for a time that "Pup" might be given a chance at fullback, but yesterday's play showed that he is too good a halfback to sacrifice. He has the making of a wonderful player, but is not cut out for a fullback. He is fast, shifty, has a neat change of pace, and is very clever in a broken field. His position is most assuredly halfback. McWhorter and Harris worked two or three nice passes, "Pup" throwing, and Frank receiving.

Harris Gained Ground.

Frank Harris, little as he is, was the ground-gainer of the bunch. He was especially right on the short end run. Being fast and small, he can ooze through a hole as big as a dime and then have room to spare. He can snag anything within a mile of him, if you will only throw the ball his way.

For Coach Alex's side, Red Murphy, Fred Moore and Fleetwood, played it most nearly to Hoyle. Murphy is the dashing fullback this year, and is growing to the job right along. He plunged with the ball in that old time Harlan style, seldom failing to gain. Fred Moore, after a year's absence on the football field is coming back strong. He has a talent for going where the play is called, and for following his interference. He reminds one of Frank Ferstin that respect. Follows his interference clear through, and then breaks for the hole. Watch Fred this season.

Red Fleetwood hounded the life out of the ball yesterday. He played center last season, and made his numeral. With a little added weight, and a trifle more experience, he comes back this year ready to fight it out for his letter. He made one or two nice tackles on punts, getting down the field right along with the ends.

Some Rough Work.

Boy, but there was carnage. If the play had continued much longer, it's reasonable to suppose that both teams would have been completely shattered. To list the injuries would be like calling the roll of the wounded in a big battle. More bleeding noses and cut eyes were being flaunted to the breezes than you would have thought existed. Kid Clay was calling for fresh men so fast that he got their positions confused. Red Murphy and Fish Davis, both fullbacks, retired from the game with bleeding noses. Al Staton tryed his hand at guard and got biffed in the eye on the last scrimmage. A couple of stitches will be necessary to make both ends meet.

Oscar Davis rubbed it in by saying that it took hard men to play guard. Oscar could afford to say that. He was not in the scrimmage. Povoa, the all-South American end from Brazil, suffered a wrenched back. Harris was forced to retire due to injuries received somewhere about the leg. Carpenter got stepped on generally. And that's only a few. More yet, and still more.

Not all the varsity squad was privileged to get into the soiree. Their dose will come next Tuesday or Wednesday. They probably will get their fill of it before next week is out. But it's coming. As sure as the week dawns, as sure as practice continues, there will be all the scrimmaging wanted next seven days.

BY BOB GAMBLE.

Macon, Ga., September 16.—(Special.)—Football practice of preliminary nature at Mercer was brought to a close this afternoon at sundown after a strenuous week of intensive training for the 60 men in the squad. This is the largest number of candidates ever to try for positions on the Orange and Black eleven. Thirteen letter men are expected to be seen in action this season for the Baptists, many of these men having been at work this week, the others being expected to arrive Sunday. "Red" Welch, two-fisted, red-headed, hard-driving fullback, one of the mainstays of the 1921 team, was graduated in June and will not be a candidate for the team this year as he has served his full four years in football.

With the exception of Welch, every varsity man of last year is expected to return. In fact, all of them have reported for duty except Sid Johnson, 210-pound center, and Ed Irwin, scintillating end, sensational punter and splendid forward-passer. Johnson's return is assured and the Gibraltar of the line is expected Monday. Irwin was injured in a baseball game several weeks ago and may not report before the opening game, Saturday, September 23, against Piedmont college.

Scrubs from last season include F. E. Barron, Thomasville, center; "Coot" Lynch, guard; "Bubber" Pope, Valdosta, fullback; Manly McWilliams, Dalton, half; Glenn Carthron, tackle; Joe McClain, guard, and others, there being some 35 experienced men in the squad.

From G. M. C., Mercer claimed "Red" Adams, half, "Hook 'em" Saunders, linesman, and "Uncle Remus" Shaw, end. Gordon sent this year, Frank Evans, Hill, "Worm" Bate and others, while former prep stars also in camp represent other southern schools.

Coach Josh Cody is assisted this year by Everett Strupper, former celebrated Tech halfback and all-Southern player, with E. P. Moseley, six years coach at Gordon institute. Under these three able mentors, great things are expected of the Baptist eleven.

The candidates for the team practiced twice daily during the week, beginning Tuesday. Returning punts, tackling the dummy, running interference and executing signal drills occupied most of the players' time. Coach Cody has been giving his chief attention to the line, while Assistant Coach Strupper has directed his thought toward the backfield. The freshman crowd is under the leadership of Coach Mosley. The two assistant coaches are proving popular with the men. Friends of Mercer predict great things under the direction of the staff of congenial, hard-working mentors.

Scrimmage Tuesday.

No scrimmages have been held but it is rumored about Mercer's broad and still longer campus that the first sham battle will take place Tuesday afternoon on Alumni field. Then, and not before, then, can any comprehensive line be drawn as to the ability of the men. The first game may see the use of one eleven or all elevens from the squad; therefore, no prediction is made as to the probable players.

Mercer this year has the most difficult schedule ever attempted by the football team. Eleven games are listed, including contests with Georgia, Tech and Auburn, three of Dixie's most formidable elevens. That Mercer is moving forward is evidenced by the program for the team. Freshmen will be used in all games except these three, there being no conflict in this regard, with other teams listed.

Macon is supporting Mercer wholeheartedly and prospects are excellent for a successful season. The schedule follows:

September 23, Piedmont college in Macon.
September 30, Georgia in Athens.
October 20, North Georgia Aggies in Macon.
October 13, Birmingham-Southern in Birmingham.
October 21, Auburn in Auburn.
October 28, Vanderbilt in Nashville.
November 4, Maryville college in Macon.
November 18, Oglethorpe in Macon.
November 25, Carson-Newman in Jefferson City, Tenn.
November 30, Thanksgiving day, Howard college in Macon.

Cease Pennant Talk.

Davy Bancroft, of the New York Giants announces that members of McGraw's clan have ceased all pennant talk and are devoting their entire time to winning ball games. Bancroft says the Giant pitchers are not as weak as they have been charged.

FUTURITY TO 10 TO 1 SHOT

New York, September 16.—With consummate ease, Sally's Alley, ridden by A. Johnson in the silks of Willis Sharpe Kilmer, today won the 15th running of the rich futurity, a six-furlong sprint for two-year-olds, and established a new record of 1:11 for the race at its present distance.

The Rancocas stable's Zev, with Sande up, was second, three lengths back and driven to her limit to withstand the running of Wilderness, of the R. Wilson colors, ridden by Ensor. Wilderness, by closing fast, finished two lengths ahead of Cyclops, one of the favorites.

Sally's Alley is the first New York state bred entry ever to win the futurity, the classic of the Belmont park fall meeting. The winner, a filly by a Allumeur-Salvolatile, took the lead at the first quarter, shooting past Zev, and finished galloping. The previous record was held jointly by Colin and Maskette, the respective winners in 1907 and 1908.

The New Yorker took the blue ribbon and a purse of $47,550 from a field of 23, which the starter had difficulty in getting away, keeping them at the barrier for 23 minutes while the crowd of 30,000 howled. Salley's Alley paid those who backed her to win, 10 to 1.

Zev and Goshawk were the betting choices, both being quoted at 5 to 1. A steady play drove the Kilmer filly's price from 12 to 1 to 10 to 1 at post time.

Allumeur, the winner's sire, was imported by Clarence Mackay and sold to Mr. Kilmer after a season at Sunbriar, at Binghampton. He was thought slightly lacking in quality and was presented to the federal remount bureau. When Sally's Alley showed promise as a yearling, the desire for Allumeur's return prompted Mr. Kilmer to give another sire, Magic II., plus a money consideration, for him.

Salvolatile, the winner's dam, was bought by her present owner for $600.

DIXIE SERIES IS ON TODAY

Fort Worth, Texas, September 16. More than 10,000 baseball fans are expected to jam every nook and corner of Panther park, home of the Fort Worth club for three consecutive years champions of the Texas league, to witness the opening game of the series for the class A baseball title of the southland between the Mobile Bears, champions of the Southern association and the Atzmen.

Generally cloudy weather is the offering of the weather man.

Throughout Friday night, thousands of persons formed a line several blocks long awaiting the opening of the ticket window. Murray Livingston, a resident of Polytechnic, a suburb, was the first in the long line and he took up his stand at 2 p. m., Thursday, waiting 18 hours to purchase two reserved seats.

Joe Pate, premier Texas league southpaw, or Paul Wachtel, star spitballer of the Cats, who led the Lone Star league this season in the number of victories, will draw Manager Atz's assignment for Fort Worth mound duty, while Manager Bert Niehoff, of the Bears, will send to the mound Dutch Henry, Charley Fulton, a big right-hander, or "Lefty" Fuhr, giant southpaw. Neither manager would give a definite announcement.

The gates will open at 11:30 a. m., Sunday. Accommodations for 12,000 persons have been made. If this number witnesses the opening clash of the southern baseball classic, it will set a record for attendance at a baseball game in Texas.

Following Sunday's game, the teams rest Monday and play here again Tuesday. Wednesday night a special train carrying the Panthers and 125 Fort Worth fans will leave for Mobile, where the teams battle Friday and Saturday, and if necessary, Sunday. The winning club is the victor in four games of the seven-game series. If a sixth game is needed the teams return to Fort Worth and play the following Tuesday, and the seventh will be played Wednesday.

CITY TOURNEY AT EAST LAKE

The 1922 city golf championship tourney will be played on the East Lake course, September 20 through September 23, which makes play begin next Wednesday and causes the course to be closed to all, save those entered in the play Monday and afterward until the matches are over.

Any amateur golfer in Atlanta is eligible for the competition regardless of whether his golfing insitncts have been whetted at the private clubs or on public courses. The entrance fee of $3 can be paid at the first tee when the qualifying round is started on Wednesday, but entries should be sent early to the secretary of the Atlanta Athletic club so that pairings may be made and all other arrangements perfected.

Thirty-two qualifiers will enter the first flight, where they will be split into the championship and second flights. The match play will be at scratch over the 18-hole route except the finals in the championship flight Saturday, which will be for 36-holes.

Richard Hickey and Charles Sciple have won once each on the big Gulf Refining company trophy, the handsome cup which must be won three times for permanent possession. There are in addition to this trophy for the tournament winner a trophy for low qualifier, a team trophy to go to the four men from any one club making the best grand score in the qualifying round, and trophies for the winners and runners-up in each flight.

ONE-DAY TOURNEY FOR WOMEN GOLFERS

Women of the city who have fallen for the seductive elements in the good old game of golf are interested in the one-day medal tournament which takes place next Monday at Brookhaven.

The entrance fee for this play will be one ball, and the prizes in regular ball sweepstakes will apply in the final summing up of the activities which will take place on that evening.

Doesn't Like Weather.

Ray Schalk likes to play ball in every city of the American league circuit but St. Louis. The Chicago catcher says he likes St. Louis and the St. Louis fans, but he does not like St. Louis weather between April and September. Schalk compares an average summer day in St. Louis with July 4, at Tampa, Fla.

TIM O'DOWD

If Sammy Sandow can work off five or six pounds and retain his strength, he will have an excellent chance to defeat the above youngster Tuesday night at Ponce de Leon. But if Sammy loses any strength, Tim's going to reverse the verdict reached at their first meeting, when Sandow was returned the victor.

NEW HEAVYWEIGHT ON THE CARD

Former Agrees to Make 118 Pounds

The fight program for next Tuesday night has been arranged, according to announcement made by the American Legion fight committee and J. Walkington Miller. It looks to be one of the best attractions that has been arranged for the amusement and edification of local fight fans in some time.

Sammy Sandow, whose previous appearances here have stamped him as a fighter to be feared, is scheduled to meet Tim O'Dowd in 12 rounds.

Sammy and Tim have been casting longing looks at one another since the occasion of their first battle, which was won by Sandow in impressive fashion. That is, it impressed every one except Tim and Albertus Mayson, Tim's manager. They were not so satisfied.

They both feel that in a second appearance Tim will be able to account for the veteran. Many of Tim's admirers feel the same way. Sammy's followers think differently, and this is what makes fights.

Weight Settled.

There has been but one contention between the different camps. This has been weight. Mayson says that Sandow was a little too big for Tim in their first engagement and that if he would take off that extra four or five pounds that Tim would hand him an artistic pasting in 10, 12 or 15 rounds.

"Why I could cut off one of my legs and still whip O'Dowd," was the way Sandow expressed his sentiments.

"He'll need all the legs he's got and a couple of extra arms and hands before this fight is over," O'Dowd countered.

The referee in this verbal battle raised the hands of both fighters after these remarks—and both fighters were unmarked after the clash.

Now Sandow has posted a weight forfeit at $300 that he will make 120 at 3 o'clock and the final arrangements for their 12 round encounter are finished.

Just what will happen when these fighters meet is hard to tell, but that it will be something violent is a practical certainty. Both want to win. Sandow because he wants to show local fans that he is as good as his previous appearances here indicated. Tim in order to wipe out the defeat handed him in their first engagement.

It should be a great fight.

New Heavyweight.

The ten round battle on the program between Eddie Civel and Jack Denham sould prove a real contest. Civel belies his name, according to advance information. He is rambunctious in the ring and exceedingly hard to get along with.

He is 21 years old, and his manager says that every day he adds in age he is just that much meaner in the ring. He has met Brennan and other heavies.

Denham is the proper selection to settle the hash of any fighter who thinks he is hard. Jack is not hard alone—he is tough as well—and he has made a lot of fighters hard to catch in his career in the ring.

Pewee Burns, who looks meaner than Jack Dempsey ever tried to look even in his wildest moments, will meet Kid Allen over the eight round circuit.

Kid Young meets Battling Benson in the other scrap. Young is a tough bird himself and he has fully recovered from the setback he received here a short time ago at the hands of Battling Barnett. Benson is as good as ever and this fight is well made.

Jimmy Tierney Pressing Hornsby

Sisler's Margin Over Cobb Safe

Chicago, September 16.—Rogers Hornsby, the St. Louis star, who a few weeks ago appeared to have the batting championship of the National league tucked in his hip pocket, today has cause for worry over the 1922 honors.

Jimmy Tierney, the Pirate second-baseman, is only 17 points behind the St. Louis favorite, and with the close of the season three weeks away, may become a dangerous contender. The latest figures which include games of Wednesday show him hitting .380 compared with .345 for two weeks ago. Max Carey, of the Pirates, has increased his lead in stolen bases to forty-two, and his record of runs scored to 127.

Hornsby has .397, and has increased his home run string to 37.

The injury to George Sisler has cast a gloom not only over St. Louis but in many other cities where the fans have been pulling for the Browns to win the American league pennant.

Margin Is Safe.

If Sisler is not able to get back into the game, his batting average of .424 appears to be high enough to assure his position as leading hitter for the 1922 season. His closest rival, Ty Cobb, is thirty-one points behind, and the chances of his catching up are remote. Cobb's average is .393. Sisler has the edge for stolen base honors with forty-seven, with Kenneth Williams, a team mate, tagging along with thirty-three.

The race of Babe Ruth to overtake Williams and Tillie Walker, of the Athletics, for the home run honors is becoming more exciting. Walker smashed out three during the past week and ran his string to 35, while Williams bagged two for a total of 37 and the Babe crashed out three for a total of 32.

Other leading batters for 100 or more games:

Races Postponed.

Kansas City, Mo., September 16.—The Kansas City automobile races have been postponed until tomorrow afternoon, speedway officials announced this morning. Threatening weather was given as the reason.

6 SWIMMERS ARE PERFECT

BY TOM HUFF.

Six men have been found at the Y. M. C. A. who could do every dive and stroke perfectly, or at least well enough to get close to 100 per cent. Only expert swimmers and divers, both at the same time, would ever make 200 points in this rating. Stars in individual events would make less than 100 points in many cases. Very frequently a man good in either diving or swimming would not be good in both.

This meet was begun with the prime purpose of giving expert swimmers a chance to improve the weak points, and become an all-around star. The secondary purpose, and a worthy one, was given to every man a chance to learn the dives and strokes not already acquired.

Assistant physical directors, Longshore or Parker, have been in the big Y. M. C. A. pool every afternoon and evening to take tests and give instruction. The pool has been as full of life as a new swarm of bees. Of course, this has been very gratifying to the association, for no such success as this was hoped for.

Exceeded Expectations.

No more than two or three men were expected to make the top notch. But expectations have been exceeded, and even more than the six already over the top, probably four more, at least, will attain the goal.

The life saving group of tests has appealed to almost all the contestants. A total of 300 points could be made by making all the life saving group. No other single group of tests offered so many points. In fact, most individual stunts gave a total of ten or fifteen points, and hence the long grind toward 2,000.

The following rating is given the several swimmers in the Y. M. C. A. 2,000 points swimming meet which will close September 30, Although Tom Cobb made his 2,000 points over two weeks ago only five more men have attained that high rating.

Two thousand point men: J. D. Sparks, J. C Dusenbury, W. T. Willingham, C. P. Burnett, H. C. Eubanks.

Others who are working towards the 2,000 point goal are: S. C. Swilling 1,800, B. C. Schoen 1,600, Gladstone Rogers 1,590, Joe A. Parsons 1,550, Phil Schoenick 1,305, R. G. Weis 1,209, Leonard Gordon 1,205, R. C. Griffin 990 H. W. DeCristina 930, Richard Enloe 749, Theo Abbey 735, G. H. Galloway 710, Julian Whatley 645, W. A. Maxwell 450, Ralph Le Craw 430, C. A. Webb 425, H. O. Mitchell 385, W. A. McCarty 310, E. H. Merritt 305, W. Waldon 230, Edgar Todd 245, Roy Green 235, Barnard Sutter 215, R. K. Daniels 185.

MRS. MALLORY EASY WINNER

Philadelphia, September 16.—In the final for the middle states singles for women, Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, of New York, defeated Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, of Wilmington, Del., 6-1, 6-1. Mrs. Jessup was able to break through the steady game of the national champion to win only the fifth game of the first and sixth game of the second set.

The girls' national lawn tennis doubles title was won today by Miss Helen Wills, of San Francisco, and Miss Helen Hooker, of New York, who defeated Miss L. Goodman and Miss Betsy Hilleary, both of Philadelphia, 6-0, 6-2. Miss Wills won the girls' singles title yesterday.

Priestley Orme as a Fisherman

BY DAVID HOLT

Finds Few Tarpon in Gulf Quest

For the honor of the human race, a few real good tarpon fishermen are needed on the Alabama coast. With 40 days to go before the season closes and the tarpon return to more tropical waters, the silver king has all the best of it in the contest between fish and fishermen. Mankind gets the fish laugh.

Many a tarpon that came into the world in humble circumstances now has a silver spoon in its mouth. One day last week Horri Lining, of Mobile, had seven strikes while trolling with silvered spoons about Grant's pass and the islands on the Mobile county coast. Now those poor fish will go back to the Caribbean with souvenir spoons from Mobile instead of decorating the sporting goods store walls as piscatorial exhibits of the taxidermist's art.

Record has been made of 20 tarpon caught in Alabama waters this summer. In some past seasons that number have been accounted for in one day. The fish are there but they are as fickle, coy and hard to please as picture stars are said to be. They are all stuck-up with amateur tackle and overfed with bait of the still-fishers. Their gums are sore and they refuse to bite on solid food such as wooden minnows and "Tarporeno" lures.

Orme's Bad Luck.

Priestley Orme, of Atlanta, also gave the big game fish a fair and honest trial over a period of several weeks, but even when the weather and the water, the moon and the tide, were in perfect form "the fish were not there that water called for." He caught two tarpon, one of which was 6 feet, 6 inches in length and the other much smaller. He had one fine day among the bluefish off Petit Bois, landing 35 of them and several pompano. He caught a fine specimen of the dolphin while fishing south of Dauphin island, had fair sport with king mackerel and landed many blackfish, or "flashers." But the general results were disapointing; even though he had as his boatman Clarence Bryant, and Matt Borsarge as his guide.

Matt Borsarge confirmed, in conversation with Mr. Orme and this writer, the report of young tarpon having been caught in the bayous along the Alabama coast. He states that while throwing a castnet for mullet in Bayou Como, he caught several young tarpon. They were about 8 inches in length and had all the features of a tarpon, including the peculiar dorsal fin and head formation. A specimen caught at Dauphin Island in the same way was identified as a young tarpon by the United States fish commission, according to reliable authority.

But Matt's statement needs no confirmation where he is known. To say that an Alabama coast Bosarge does not know a tarpon would be equivalent to saying John Bankhead doesn't know politics or W. P. G. Harding doesn't know money. Alfred Henry, Matt, Marshall and all the rest of the Bosarges, here, at Biloxi and elsewhere along this coast have the fish instinct highly developed. They can detect a school of bull reds where the less informed persons woud say there were no fish. Marshall declares he can locate migrating bodies of mackerel by the sense of smell. Matt is more modest in his claims. In fact he has little to say except when asked a question, and then his answer generally is "I reckon so," or "I don't think."

Orme's Experience.

Priestley Orme tells of having visited Sodus bay, lake Onotario, for the fishing and when he inquired for the best guide to be employed he was told to employ Alfred Bosarge. At Biloxi he received the same answer to the same question. At Coden he has employed one or another of the Borsarges in that capacity for years. Doubtless they are all of the same tribe, of Arcadian ancestry.

These men have no monopoly of the fishing ability, seamanship and skill as guides. Many of the fishermen who visit the Alabama coast would match Earl Bryant and his brothers, Clyde and Clarence against any guides and boatman that ever threw a castnet or tickled a dead mullet into life and action. Raz Crenshaw's fishing parties have been notoriously successful and there are several others at Coden, Bayou la Batre and Dauphin island that have good boats and know where and when to go for sport at salt water fishing.

Fine Outlook at Athens As Grid Work Rolls On; Candidates Discussed

BY JOHN E. DREWRY.

Athens, Ga., September 16.—Each day of practice on Sanford field makes University of Georgia football prospects loom brighter. These bright prospects are not limited, however, to the varsity squad, because today Coach Bill White announced that he will have a freshman team that will do credit to the university and will add to the laurels that its author grid heroes may bring to the institution.

Thirty-seven candidates have reported on Sanford field for the daily practice of the varsity squad under the direction of Coach Stegeman. Among those who can be seen working there for hours every afternoon are:

Non-Letter men—Dan Post Billy Freeman, Harvey Cleckley, Bill Philpot, Jake Simowitz, C. L. Padgett, J. D. Thomason, Spencer Grayson, Bob Richardson, Jake Butler and Perkins.

The first scrimmage of the season was held Thursday afternoon, and was participated in by twenty-five men. Things began to look right with this scrimmage, not to forget the arrival on this auspicious occasion of none other than the so-called "Goat" Tanner.

Showing flashy form in the scrimmages held this week was Harvey Cleckey, once of Princeton university. While it is a little premature in the season to be making definite predictions, one cannot refrain from saying that Cleckey does show up well.

Strongest Combination.

One of the sporting scribes at Athens in reviewing the scrimmages held at Sanford field said that the strongest team in the whole affair would be something like this: Anderson and Richards at ends; Joe Bennett and Taylor at Tackles; Vandiver and Newton at guards; Frye at center. And in the backfield would be sent Butler, Thompson, R. Day, Dan Post, Phillpot, Mulvihill, Perkins and Simowitz.

The coaches are drilling the stars in the art of handling passes, and especially in the art of receiving the pass. To just what extent this play will be resorted during the coming season cannot be said this early, and there has been no speculation among the scribes.

A feature of the developments during the latter part of the week was the announcement that there is a possibility of Jim Tom Reynolds, brother to ex-Captain Owen Reynolds, returning to the university to participate in the grid struggles. This information came from a reliable source in Atlanta, where Mr. Reynolds is said to be sojourning at present.

Other news in connection with old stars is that Sheldon Fitts, the Alabama half, will not be seen on the Georgia grid this season; neither will Buck Cheeves return—at least all hope of his return has been abandoned.

Sam Boney, favored for the position of center made vacant through the graduation of "Bum" Day is in Athens, but has not been able to participate in practice on account of malarial attacks. He is on the side lines every day, and will be in the game shortly, it is believed and hoped.

There is plenty of material in Athens already, and more will come to give the University of Georgia one of the best freshman football teams to be found at any college in the south. And indications are that there are to be some mighty good first-year teams, this coming about because of the rule prohibiting first-year men to play on varsity squads.

Some Fine Youngsters.

A few of the dazzling youngsters who have reported to Bill White, who is to coach the Georgia freshmen, are Dick Fair, G. M. A. linesman; Nolan Richardson, who won fame at the Tech High; Warrenton, last year at V. M. I.; Brumbley, of amateur fame, and Buster Kilpatrick, by birth an Athenian, and a shining light on the Athens High squad last season.

Among the institutions that the Georgia freshmen will meet are Riverside at Athens, October 7; Clemson freshmen in Athens, October 14; Auburn freshmen at Opelika, October 21; October 28, open; Woford freshmen at Spartanburg, November 3; November 11, open; University of North Carolina freshmen at Jacksonville, November 25.

It is thought that the Georgia freshies will meet Mercer first-year men on one of the open dates and that other games will be arranged for the remaining open dates.

GRID SEASON DRAWS NEAR

If that egg you ate for breakfast didn't agree with you, or if both those eggs you ate for breakfast didn't agree with you—take heart and a dyspepsia tablet, don't allow your serenity of temper to be ruffled, or even tucked, for next Saturday, mes amis, the football season opens.

Or rather, it starts opening. For here in Atlanta we will not get an opportunity to hear moleskin thud against epidermis. But in at least two Georgia cities college football players will begin taking chances on not getting in on the bigger [illegible] of the season. In Athens, where Newberry's ideas will conflict to a certain extent with those of Georgia; and in Macon, where Mercer will endeavor to assuage the ambitious wrath of Piedmont college.

On the same day, other well-known southern teams out of the state get into action. At Baton Rouge, Louisiana State plays the University of Louisiana: Howard mingles with Jacksonville State Normal over in Birmingham: V. P. I. plays Hampden-Sidney, at Blacksburg, Va.; Centre tries to start for another sprig of laurel or so against Carson-Newman in Danville, Ky.; V. M. I. plays Lynchburg college in Lexington, Va.; and Davidson tackles Presbyterian college at Clinton, S. C.

The Real Start.

But on the following Saturday—ahem!

Tech opens in Atlanta, versus none other than Oglethorpe. Again Atlanta will have the honor of doing something unusual in that she will provide an interesting football game between two local institutions. It's a big day at Oglethorpe and a big day at Tech and a big day for all Atlanta.

Over in Athens, the season for Georgia begins to take on a sterner hue when she meets Mercer, led by Josh Cody and Everett Strupper, and inspired by the determination to place her football teams on the pinnacles which have always been occupied by her basketball and baseball aggregations.

Auburn will get her first action of the season when she meets Howard in Birmingham; another game of interest in the section will be Clemson's tilt with Centre at Clemson, S. C.; Wake Forest will play North Carolina at Chapel Hill, N. C.; and in Columbus the United States infantry school will see what it can do with Piedmont college. Other games are at Blacksburg, Va., King College vs. V. P. I.; Birmingham Southern vs. Jacksonville Normal, at Birmingham; George Washington vs. Virginia at Charlottesville, Va; Louisiana College vs. Mississippi College at Clinton, Miss.; Third Army corps team vs. Maryland Aggies at College Park, Md.

TEXAS WEAK, REPORT SAYS

Austin, Texas, September 16.—The toughest schedule of years, four of last year's first string back, and a new man to help coach the backfield, is the gist of the football situation around the University of Texas. Head Coach B. M. Whitaker is growing bald-headed with the hot weather thinking about the grid situation in the Longhorn camp.

No propaganda is necessary this year to tell the world that the Longhorns are weak. The only encouraging spots are in the return of Captain Swede Swenson, of Stamford, all-southwestern center for three years, and Bobby Robertson, of Dallas, crack halfback.

Joe Moore will be back at end, but his illustrious running mate, Hook McCullough, mentioned by Walter Camp in his all-American selection, will be missing. George Hill, guard; Tom Dennis, tackle; Dave Pena, tackle, will not be back. Of two 1921 alternating guards, Jack Vokell will be missing, but Archie Gray will be back. This leaves practically the entire line shot to pieces, with Swenson left as the nucleus for a new line.

Many Substitutes.

But a wealth of substitutes for the line, such as Ward, Craddock, Gorman, remain over, while Sprague is an encouraging contribution from last year's fresh. But lo—not a quarterback is there except George Gardiere, last year's substitute. Gardiere has the fight and the punch in abundance, but he has not that uncanny plunging and twisting running that distinguished the mighty veterans, Icky Elam and Rats Watson, of the 1921 squad. Bobby Robertson will handle one halfback berth to perfection, but all-southwestern McCallum leaves the other hole open, with Blue Smith of the freshmen, a likely candidate. Billy Gilstrap, 200-pounder from last year, will be another possibility. Long lanky Tynes will be back at fullback, but his companion, the terrific line-smashing Domingues, who made the winning touchdown against the Texas Aggies in 1920, is gone.

Much Switching.

The whole thing revolves into a question of backfield development, for there is where the Texas team is weakest. Charlie Seddon, for the last two years line coach, has made a good job heretofore and with what will be in his hands this month, should be able to snap together a line which can withstand considerable brunt. But that hole at quarterback hurts. The absence of a needy veteran quarterback to guide a green team is grievous to the varsity backers. Abe Curtis, of Fort Worth, may take care of the other end in company with Joe Moore.

But the Longhorns have something brand-new in the way of developing the backfield. Milton Romney, the University of Chicago quarterback, who scored all the points in Chicago's 9 to 0 victory over Princeton last year, will help Whitaker handle the backfield. Whitaker will direct the strategy of the team as a whole, with Seddon in charge of the line. Romney working with Whitaker may slap together a salvation backfield, and on Romney will depend considerable of the work in developing a quarterback to guide the Longhorn machine.

This year's schedule opens the first week in October with Austin college of Sherman, coached by the last year's Longhorn tackle, Dave Pena, playing on Clark field at Austin. Phillips University of Enid, Okla., comes next, followed by Oklahoma A. & M. Vanderbilt is played at Dallas, Oklahoma at Norman, Rice at Houston, Southwestern at Austin, with the Thanksgiving day classic with Texas A. & M. on Clark field. New opposition is provided in the University of Alabama at Austin.

Huge Crowds See Events Staged Under Direction of Legion—Trick Riding and Horse Show Among Other Features.

BY LOY WARWICK, JR.

Reaching long fingers into the grab bag of sporting events which occurred at Lakewood Saturday in conjunction with the St. Mihiel celebration of the American Legion, one must, it seems, snatch out the smashing victory of Fearless Ferns over Joe Kennedy—which was the main excitement in the fight card staged after the reproduction of the western front offensive being commemorated.

And, too, the sham battle seemed rather a tame affair, compared to the slap-bang way in which Joe and Fearless went after each other. Or, rather, compared to the way Fearless punished Joe and the way Joe took it. Both boys seemed to imagine themselves mortal foes after a round or so had run their course, and proceeded with an honest endeavor to blot each other off the face of the map. Ferns' superior attack and strength in the multitudinous clinches, and the fact that he failed to miss a single one of a score or so right uppercuts he directed at Kennedy's jaw account for the fact that he took eight of the ten rounds and had his opponent groggy when the final gong sounded.

Aiken is Winner.

That's a whole lot of space to devote to one scrap, when the day at Lakewood was chockful of automobile races—which Johnny Aiken won from his track Nemesis, Bob Luton; horse races, fancy riding contests and exhibitions of general efficiency aboard the back of horse flesh. But when one is faced with so many possibilities, one must start somewhere, so let's get the fight card over with while we are about it.

As we were about to say when so rudely interrupted by thoughts of all that happened, the fight started off tamely in the first round, but Ferns began to rock Kennedy with an assortment of rights in the second and continued to do so until the fifth, when Kennedy braced and fought his man even. Ferns renewed his attack with vim and violence in the next and pistoned and fisted on to victory.

The fistic program got its start in a bout between Battling Benson and Kid Young, which went to the veteran Young. Benson got off to a whirlwind start, but Young brought him even in the second and advanced a notch in the third, finally taking at least four of the six rounds during which they pummelled each other. In the other preliminary, a six-round go betwixt Jackie Carr and Battling Nick, Carr won another battle. This wasn't much of a battle for the first four rounds, both battlers seemingly suffering from the delusion that they were a couple of masseurs helping each other with their summer training. Carr was awakened in the fifth, however, and lammed his opponent sufficiently to get a decision.

The horse race program did not go through as originally planned, since for some reason Walter T. Candler was not able to have his horses at the park. Quite a bit of excitement and fun was secured, however, from the horses that finally ran—as their typically American Expeditionary Force names will testify in the results that follow somewhere on this page.

The three heats, of 3 miles each, which were run by Bob Luton and Johnny Aiken in their fast-stepping automobiles, were full of thrills for the crowds which packed the stands. At one time a smash-up seemed inevitable, but Aiken took as much of the fence as he could comfortably handle and averted a catastrophy.

Some Trick Riding.

The opening event of the day was given by Sargeant Hicks, who went through some wild-west trick riding, and the next event was the half-mile running races in which five horses were entered. Budweiser ran first, ridden by Kirkland. Barrage was second with Garnes up; Madamemoiselle ran third; time 58 seconds.

The second race, one-quarter mile, was won by Haversack, Anderson up; second, Canteen; third, Puttee; time, 28 seconds.

In the third race, Dugout ran first, Gaines up; Trench, second; third, Vin Blanc; time 27 seconds.

During the intermissions between the races Sergeant Hicks and Sergeant Kirkland gave demonstrations of trick riding and roping in true western style.

Immediately after the last running races the auto races, in which Johnny Aiken defeated Bob Luton, were staged. Bob Luton drove the Essex to victory in the first three-mile heat, doing the three miles in 2:44 2-5 seconds. Johnny Aiken won the second heat, doing it in 2:43 flat. The third heat went to Aiken, 2:43 being the time. The winner of two of the three mile heats was awarded a purse of $1,000.

The Horse Show.

The horse show was the next event on the card, and a number of fine horses and excellent riders participated. In the three-gaited saddle show Miss Doughty Manley won, riding Dixon Manley. "King" ridden by Mrs. Hopping and owned by Hugh Richardson, took second. "Princess," ridden by Bobby Bewhler, was third.

A cup was awarded Miss Josephine Richardson for the best pony under saddle. Jane Morrow, riding "Light Foot," took second and Carl Bernhart, riding "Spot," took third place.

For the five-gaited saddle horses Mrs. Hopping on "King" was awarded the cup for first. Second went to Miss Josephine Richardson, riding "Black Beauty," and third to Mrs. Maude Randall on "Black Diamond."

For the model saddle class the cup was awarded Mrs. Hopping, riding "Dixie Lad." Second was Josephine Richardson riding "Black Beauty," and third Bobby Bewhler on "Princess."

In the jumping contest Budweiser took first with Kirkland up. Queen was second with Bobby Bewhler up, and third was Dixie with Hugh Davidson up.

The judges for the horse show were Ralph Razan, of Atlanta, and C. A. Greene, of Kentucky. The show was under the direction of Mrs. Hill, most of the riders being members of her class.

Oldfield in Wreck.

Centerville, Iowa, September 16.—For the first time in his life, he declares, Barney Oldfield, noted auto racer, wrecked a car while on a pleasure trip, and also was caught without spare tires, when his machine was ditched in attempting to make a turn near here this morning. The former pilot was uninjured, but was worced to remain here a large part of the day for repairs. He was on the way to attend the races at Kansas City.

ARGENTINA IS POLO VICTOR

Philadelphia, September 16.—The dashing young polo team from Argentine headed by Captain Luis L. Lacey, which last week won the American open championship kept up its victorious way by defeating, 13 goals to 8, the strong Shelburne four today on the big field of the Philadelphia County club.

The defeat of Shelburne, which includes Louis E. Stoddard and J. Watson Webb, international players, eliminates that team from further competition in the present tournament. By virtue of their victory the Argentine team will meet the strong Meadowbrook four here on Wednesday.

The Meadowbrooks include Devereaux Milburn and Thomas Hitchcock, Jr., also players of international fame.

The Argentine men today gave one of the finest exhibitions of polo seen on the Philadelphia field in a long time. After Shleburne had made a goal, the Argentine players opened with a dash that carried the fast Shelburne team fairly off its feet, the South Americans leading at the end of the first period by three goals to one. The work of Captain Lacey's men thrilled the crowd as they dashed up and down the field in perfect rythm and scored goals with astonishing speed.

DUNN WANTS TWINS' CLUB

Winston-Salem, September 16.—(Special.)—Although no official statement has been issued by those in authority, the impression seems to prevail that the owners of the Winston-Salem baseball club and Piedmont franchise will secure a playing manager for the 1923 season unless the three owners, E. D. Vaughn, Ned Shore and Clint Miller, should decide to dispose of their interests.

There is another report current that Jack Dunn, owner of the Baltimore Orioles, has been angling for the local ball club and park and that he offered a pretty nice price for them. His purpose, it is presumed, would be to use this as a farm for his Baltimore club. Just how far negotiations have advanced in the proposed deal has not been revealed.

Another interesting question arises is that Charlie Clancy, who has directed the destinies of the Twins and other clubs for several years and who at one time was a star spit ball pitcher in the International league, is exceedingly popular as a citizen, and if he should definitely determine to retire from the game, he should have no trouble in lining up in some good business proposition.

However, it is no secret that the wise "old fox" loves baseball, and that if he desires he will be able to secure a berth as manager of some club in even higher company than this.

Goes in for Boxing.

Several Mexican cities will go in for boxing this winter, according to reports from El Paso, Texas. The padded mittens are becoming quite numerous in those cities close to the American border and any number of young Mexicans may be seen on the road conditioning for preliminary battles. Tillie Kid Herman, welterweight who has been making his home in Houston, Texas, is said to be largely responsible for the popularity of the sport among the Mexicans.

Fight Spirit Back.

Hank O'Day, of the National league umpiring staff, says the New York Giants must watch the Pittsburg Pirates, if the Smoketown crew continues at the pace they are now going. O'Day declares Manager Bill McKenzie has instilled the old fight spirit into his crew and that they will be on edge until the curtain falls.

Broadcasting by FUZ

IN two weeks the football season will get under way. In two weeks and one day there will be discussion on the streets of Atlanta of the possibility of a renewal of athletic relations between the University of Georgia and Georgia Tech.

In two weeks and two days every Atlanta paper will print a yarn to the effect that prospects are bright for a post season scrap between the Bulldogs and the Yellow Jackets.

Followed by interviews with Chip Roberts, Frank Freeman, Harold Hirsch and Warren Moise, that "we love each other dearly, but we'd better not this year."

When Georgia plays Chicago, I'll bet two dollars that the Tech band plays "Glory to Georgia" at Grant field. When Tech plays the Navy at wherever Tech plays the Navy, I'll bet two dollars and a quarter the Georgia band at Athens will play "Ramblin' Wreck." Frank Holland will remark to Harry Harmon "fine spirit, ain't it?" Harry Harmon will remark to Frank Holland "fine spirit, ain't it."

Shortly thereafter, Tech freshmen will remark "to hell with Georgia." Georgia underclassmen will remark "to hell with Tech."

And the world will wag on about as usual.

When Georgia and Tech interchange courtesies, it always reminds me of the message of congratulations and hopes for a successful administration sent by the defeated candidate to the candidate who has won.

Walter Camp isn't going to pick any all-American eleven this year, but that isn't going to hinder us Atlanta sport experts from picking an all-Southern team, composed of four Georgians, four Techs, one Auburn, one Vanderbilt, and one all-Southern football star.

"Got" Hale reached this eminence last year, due to the fact that no Atlanta football expert ever saw him in action.

Why not select an all-Southern eleven by drawing eleven names out of a hat?

Nashville experts have it all over us. They simply pick the entire Vanderbilt football team.

What are we going to do if Oglethorpe should do all the things that Oglethorpe says she is going to do?

An easy way to pick an all-Southern team would be to put John Staton in every position. He has already been put everywhere but waterboy by the experts.

MISSISSIPPI TEAM STRONG

University, Miss., September 16.—(Special.)—Football practice for the 1922 season is now in full swing at "Ole Miss," with nearly all of last year's team and several promising new men on hand. The first meeting of candidates for the team was held on Monday, Smithson, Crain, Suggs, Keaton, Stovall, Leftwich, Aiken, Whittington, Feemster, Hall, Gazelle, Davis and Polk answering roll call. Barbour, Montgomery, Gober and Hill are expected to arrive the middle of the week.

One of the most encouraging circumstances of the beginning of the 1922 season is the appearance of R. L. Cowell as a regular member of the coaching staff. Mr. Cowell made his appearance here last spring for a tryout as a coach in charge of the spring practice. He came with a good record at Illinois, where he had the backing of Zuppke, and he made such a favorable impression in the spring work that he was retained for the 1922-23 session.

Sullivan in Charge.

Coach Sullivan, who has made a splendid five-year record here in the face of discouraging football conditions, has come back to "Ole Miss" this year with a lagful of new tricks which he learned at the Wisconsin coaching school this summer under the tutelage of Tom Jones. With Sullivan's past experience at "Ole Miss" and his knowledge of the capabilities of the old men, and with Cowell's fresh viewpoint, it is believed here that the coaching end of the game is in better hands than it has been since Stauffer's remarkable 1910 and 1911 seasons.

The schedule follows:

September 30, Union university, campus; October 7, Centre college, Danville, Ky.; October 14, Southwestern university, campus; October 28, University of Tennessee, Knoxville; November 4, Birmingham-Southern, Birmingham; November 11, Hendrix college, campus; November 18, University of Tennessee, Doctors Mennis; November 25, Camp Benning, Columbus, Ga.; November 30, Millsaps college, Jackson, Miss.

Coveleski Through.

Cleveland—Sanlye Coveleski, "ace" of the Cleveland Indians pitching staff is out of the game for the remainder of the season. Coveleski has been unable to pitch for several weeks, suffering from intestinal troubles. He has gone to his home in Shamokin, Pa.

Power Company's Strong Team Is Slated to Stop Fair's Winning Streak

Game Between These Rivals Will Be Preceded by McPherson-Federal Encounter. Program Starts at 1:30 O'Clock Today.

BY M. D. GLEASON.

The games at Fort McPherson Sunday, between four well-matched teams, promise to be unusually interesting and will undoubtedly be seen by a much larger crowd if the weather is favorable than saw last Sunday's game.

The first game will be between the Fort McPherson team and the Federal Prison team and will begin at 1:30 o'clock. Both of these teams get stronger every week through the addition of new men and at present they are more powerful than they have been at any time this year.

This insures the fans that they will see a game of ball that will be well worth seeing. In the second game we have the Georgia Railway and Power company's team playing the World's Fair and this promises to be a real battle.

City Champions.

The Power company's team won the pennant in the city league and then beat the Exposition Mills team, which had won the pennant in the Independent league and finally won the city championship from the Fourth National bank team, winning the title of city champions over 31 other clubs.

This is a very strong team under capable management and the 3,600 employees of the company are very strong rooters for their team and a great many of them will be on hand today encouraging their boys.

The grounds at the fort have been put in splendid shape and a score card and a ribbon will be issued for a small fee to those that appreciate the good playing these teams have done all the year.

Those that do not pay will not be excluded from the grounds, but those that do appreciate the efforts of these boys will be rendered every possible courtesy.

Band Will Play.

The big military band at the fort will give its usual Sunday afternoon concert and will render several selections during the game.

The best order always prevails at these games and travelers of wide experience tell us that they have never seen such large crowds in such good humor as go to Fort Mac Sunday after Sunday.

The Georgia Railway and Power company will run extra cars to Fort McPherson during the afternoon.

Local Preps Are Striving Hard To Whip Themselves Into Shape

BY ROY E. WHITE.

Prep football in Atlanta and vicinity is well on its way into another great year and one week already of strenuous work has been passed as a starter.

The coaches realize that the local prep teams will have to travel at top speed all season if they are to come out on the long end of the schedule. Many hard teams will be played here and also on the road.

The Boys' High schedule has already been published and today Tech High and University will be published for the benefit of some of the anxious gridiron fans.

In looking over the Tech High schedule it will be seen that the Junior Golden Tornado will have its hands full all season and especially when it meets the strong Duval High school eleven in Jacksonville on November 11. The Duval High has been recognized as the south's strongest high school eleven and has returned several of its stars from last season for another year of prep football.

To Play Richmond.

Another game that the Tech High eleven will have to go its full limit is when the strong Richmond Military academy of Augusta, Ga., comes here October 14 for a game. The Richmond team has been one of the best prep elevens in the state for the past several years and they are looking forward to a great year the coming season, so the Smithies will have to do its bit and a little more. Then, there is Boys' High, University school and G. M. A., all local schools to be met here, and they will not be setting up exercises.

Tech High has three open dates and one of those is being counted on to result in a game with the Central High eleven from Birmingham, Ala. The game has not been definitely arranged but the manager is working hard on the proposition. Central High will be remembered as the team that beat Tech High out of a southern prep championship two years ago, with Sam Burbage coaching the eleven. Burbage was in the prep league last year but is now assistant coach at Trinity college in N. C.

University Schedule.

The University school schedule draws the attention and it will be some attraction before the season ends for they will be in there on the field every day with a promising bunch of young football material. They have a new coach in Bill Kalisky, and one that will get every ounce of football out of the candidates for the team. He knows boys and their ways and is very popular with the candidates already.

The University schedule will be no bed of roses for the "Bluebird" eleven and some mighty good games will be played. University plays Newnan High in Newnan on the 7th of October as an initial game. They then meet the Boys' High eleven and again hit the rattler for a foreign game. On October 21 the strong Riverside Military academy team will be met in Gainesville and again on November 11 the "Bluebird" eleven will be playing away from home.

The final game on the "Bluebird" schedule will be a Turkey day attraction with the Georgia Military academy team either on Grant field or Ponce de Leon.

October 7, Newnan High, in Newnan.
October 14, Boys' High.
October 21, Riverside, in Gainesville.
October 28, Locust Grove (place not settled.)
November 4, Tech High.
November 11, LaGrange High, in LaGrange.
November 18, open.
November 30, G. A. M.

Tech High Schedule:

September 30, open.
October 7, Locust Grove, here.
October 14, Richmond Military academy, here.
October 21, open (probably Central High, in Birmingham.)
October 28, open.
November 4, University school.
November 11, Duval High, in Jacksonville.
November 18, G. M. A.
November 30, Boys' High.

Petrels Go Through Scrimmage And Look Fine for Big Campaign

Russell Stein, Oglethorpe Coach, Is Driving His Charges Through Hard Grind for Tech Battle.

BY ABE NISSENBAUM.

With Russell Stein, all-American tackle at W. & J. last season, in charge, the Stormy Petrels of Oglethorpe university were put through their first scrimmage of the year yesterday afternoon at Hermance field.

Although this is a very early time in the season to make predictions it is very safe to say that the Petrels will be a more formidable aggregation during the coming season than they have been since the founding of the institution.

The Petrels have been going through strenuous morning workouts in addition to the regular afternoon matinees. Before the scrimmage began yesterday afternoon the pigskin warriors were put through the setting up exercise, tackling the dummy, catching forward passes and a snappy signal drill.

It would not be fair to say that any man showed up any better than the other during the trying festivities, but the work of "Red" Ivy and Clyde Wallace among the backs could not be overlooked, especially from a defensive standpoint.

Places Unsettled.

As has been stated before, it would be hard to make any predictions about the team as a whole; also it would be hard to make any guesses as to who will hold down the individual berths. For instance there is the pivot position, Whithead, Corliss, Fraser and Hogan are all putting up a desperate battle for the berth with no one having an edge except Whitehead, who gets same on account of his previous experience on a Petrel eleven.

The men looming up as possible guards are Crowe, the Hambrick brothers and Wyatt. The promising tackles are Lunsford, Tiny Roberts, noted for his lack of flesh; Rube Bartenfield, who held down the pivot position on last year's eleven, and Tilly Haley, the fighting piece of plunder from Hartwell, Ga.

The ends will probably be taken care of by Captain Ed David on one flank and Campbell, Hopkins, Nix or Haefle on the other. The latter played the position last year but is out of the game at present on account of a very bad charley horse.

Among the many backs who are out, Stephens, Morris, Varnadoe, Turner, Morrow, Gordy, Wallace, Ivy, Porter, Vickers, and Bradscomb, a youth weighing hardly over the poundage of a flower sack but with a very good head as a field general, looks best.

Coach Stein announces that he will put his charges through the same double pace for the coming week in preparation for the Tech-Oglethorpe game on September 30.

U. S. YACHTS WINS TROPHY

Oyster Bay, N. Y.—September 16—(By the Associated Press.)—Although defeated by British six metre yachts in the sixth and final race of the international series off here today, the American craft finished ahead in the team score 111 to 104, and took possession of the British-American cup, emblematic of the world's six metre yacht championship.

Taking today's race by a score of 22 to 14, twice around a six mile triangular course, the British yachts scored their fourth individual as well as fourth team triumph out of the six contests. Their margins of victory each time, however, were not sufficient to overcome the big lead gained by the United States in making a clean sweep of the first race. The other American victory was scored in the third race.

The Lea, sailed by J. F. Bermingham, was the only American individual winner, finishing first in the first two races. The British craft led the way in the other four, Jean finishing first in the third race. Rag in the first and Colla third in the fourth and today in the sixth.

Cubs-Dodgers Split.

Brooklyn, September 16—Chicago and Brooklyn divided today's double-header, the Cubs taking the first game, 7 to 5, and the Dodgers winning the second in ten innings, by 1 to 0. Miller's home run with the bases full gave Jones a four-run lead in the first game, but he could not hold it, being knocked out of the box in the third inning. The Dodgers tied the score with Aldridge in the box in the fourth, but the latter held them down to one hit. Ruether lost out in the ninth when the Cubs scored two runs on a pass, two errors and Terry's single. Shriver and Keen, two rookies, had a pitcher's duel in the second game, the only run being scored by High in the tenth on his single, two sacrifice bunts which the base runners beat out, and Olson's long drive to center.

Twin Bill Divided.

Philadelphia, September 16.—Pittsburgh and Philadelphia divided a double-header here today, the former winning the first game 11 to 6, and losing the second 8 to 6. Opportune hitting enabled the Pirates to defeat Philadelphia in the first game, but Leslie's home run in the fifth inning of the second game with a man on base and a double by Benton with two men on in the seventh gave Philadelphia the second game.

Wills to Be Ready.

Yale Outfit Hard at Work

New Haven, Conn., September 16.—The first football practice at Yale took place recently, a large number of candidates taking part The schedule, including games with Iowa, Army, Princeton and Harvard, is an especially hard one, and the Blue mentor is anxious to get his men in good physical shape for the long grind.

An interesting feature of the schedule is the fact that both Williams and Army use Harvard systems. So the Elis will have an opportunity of getting a line on their deadly enemy's tactics in these early season games.

The prospects for a winning eleven at Yale are bright this year. Only a few men have been lost through graduation—the chief offender in this line being Malcolm Aldrich, the Blue's brilliant leader last fall. His loss will be keenly felt, but will be made up for to a certain degree by the fact he will be back there coaching for others in the running, kicking and passing plays for which he was famous.

In the backfield it looks as if Captain Doc Jordan, Charlie O'Hearn, a quarterback, and Mallory, halfback, were reasonably certain of holding down their positions, although George Bennett, the blonde-haired youngster who called the signals in most of Yale's games last year, will give O'Hearn a struggle for the quarterback's job, as will also Pond, the brilliant quarter on the champion 1922 outfit.

Neidlinger seems to have the edge on the other candidates for Aldrich's position, but Wight, Knapp, Pond, Bench, Thomas and Adams will run him a close race.

It is expected that Tad Jones will develop a second backfield to run along with the first one, as he did last year. In this way, he provides for a couple of good backfields, each able to replace the other at a moment's notice, and also gives the newcomers an opportunity to get a lot of seasoning. Right now, however, the choice for the final backfield line-up will be O'Hearn, Jordan, Neidlinger and Mallory.

At center Yale has two good men in Landis and Norris from last year's team and a promising freshman in Lovejoy. Gross, Cruikshank and Herr, three husky veterans, will fight it out for the guard positions. Eckhardt, a fast charging freshman, will provide competition for these three Quaile, if his knee is in shape, would fit in nicely at guard.

Weak at Tackles.

The tackles seem to be Yale's real weak spot, but two good ones may be developed from Diller, last year's regular, who looked better in every start; Miller, Eckstein and the freshmen from last year's 1925 championship team. Much has to be done here, though, and it will be interesting to see what Myron Fuller, Yale's new line coach, produces.

There is plenty of good material at the end. Blair, Deaver, Hulman, and Eddy of the 1921 eleven are back, and Eli Cutler, the reliable wing man of the 1920 team, is reported in good shape once more. An exceptionally fine pair of ends, Luman and Joss, are coming up from the freshmen, and two or three equally fast combinations are looked for.

NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 16.—If the Yanks are nosed out for this season's pennant they may lay the blame to the feudal ferocity which rankles deep in the diaphragm of the outcast. The Yankees have been knocked for a stretch on twelve unhappy occasions this season by the near-great and former-great performers whom they sent away to Boston.

IT IS THE right of every other club in the league to trample the restless inmates of Harry Frazee's auction corral. But when Boston plays the Yankees form is at a discount and the mathematical dope is honored only in the breach. Those losses to the Red Sox will fully account for the losing of the pennant if the Yanks are beaten in the driving finish now transpiring in the west.

BUT IF THE owners of the New York team had it to do again, they'd do it again. The players they have bought from Boston have made the Yankees. The arrival of Joe Dugan at the far corner of the infield gave the team an inner works which is second to no other in the game.

BOOK REVIEWS IN TABLOID

ARTHUR STRINGER

One of the best and truest of the up-to-date stories that have been written comes from the pen of Arthur Stringer—it is entitled "Are All Men Alike?"

It is a good story and the author is a good story-teller. The story is full of life, charm, amusement and is written in Mr. Stringer's usual versatile style.

The reader will find comedy and tragedy walking hand in hand in these twin tales—as they do all through life—for "The Lost Titian" is the other story which the reader will find full of pathos as well as interest.

The author really enjoys writing a clever story like this—he doesn't mind the least bit poking fun at the modern girl's demand for freedom—he tells it as he sees it with his humorous eyes and experienced pen. Read it some September day—some gray day when you feel like it must be November—for with the skill of the literary artist "he makes the tragedy of the lost picture roseate with romance."

"Twin Tales" have been very enjoyable and may it prove of equal pleasure to the new readers. (Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis.)

Etiquette—The Blue Blood of Social Usage, written by Emily Post, covers everything that we should know in society, in business, in politics and at home.

Mrs. Price Post, who is very popular in society, both in America and Europe, should indeed be an authority on the customs and manners of polite society.

She is the author of that popular book, "Purple and Fine Linen," "Letters of a Worldly Godmother" and several other books which have been widely read with favorable comments.

The New York Tribune declares that "not since Mrs. Sherwood sponsored her book on 'Etiquette' some fifty years years ago has any one been so well equipped to write as an authority on this subject."

As the reader knows there are books and books published yearly on this subject—but no book as yet tells you all the little things of polite society. While it does not tell you in which hand to hold your fork and the real use of the knife, but it does tell you about the mystery of eating corn on the cob in a careful and nice way, this being pleasantly revealed by Mrs. Post.

Of course she explains explicitly matters relating to clothes for men and women, as well as the furnishing of your home, the attractive features of the outside, and above everything else, the training of the household from the hostess down to the smallest member—as to manner, style and the real commonsense and propriety as to social intercourse. For instance, a first rule for behavior in society is, "Try to do and say things only which will be agreeable to others."

Another very attractive feature of the book is the "Don'ts:" As, for instance, "Do not attract attention to yourself in public"—"Do not expose your private affairs. You are knocking down the walls of your house when you do."

NEW BOOKS.

The Mother of All Living. By Robert Keable, author of "Simon Called Peter." While the story has the same vivid quality of word painting—there is a difference. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.)

Omar, the Tentmaker, is a new edition of Nathan Haskell Dole's romantic story of the Persian poet, philosopher, statesman and man-of-affairs. Mr. Dole, as is well known, is the editor of our most authoritative and complete editions of the "Rubaiyat of Oma Khayyam," (The Page Company, Boston.)

Three Men and a Maid. By P. G. Wodehouse, and it is in every sense of the word—a Wodehouse novel—ridiculous, amusing and delightfully foolish, for it is out of the question for the author not to indulge in funny things and sayings. He has the genius for complicated situations in his plots and they are nothing, after all, but foolishness. He indulges in that same repartee that makes his musical comedies "hits" and his stories "fine."

While the author was born in England, he says he is American-made, for upon his first visit to America he happened to sell eight stories and a musical comedy—he immediately sent for his trunk.(George H. Doran Company, New York.)

Lady Bountiful, in which G. A. Birmingham, the author, clearly demonstrates that Ireland has not lost all of its humor, and while he writes of a new Ireland, he is still true to the old.

He tells the story of Lady Corless, nee Bridie Malone, the blacksmith's daughter, who by employing and discharging a whole village kept everybody prosperous and happy on the government's "out of work" benefit. And, of course, it was Molly who stopped the railroad strike, etc. (Doran's book.)

Silver Cross. By Mary Johnston, author of "To Have and to Hold" and other very interesting books with which all readers of history or fiction are familiar.

"Henry the VII. sat upon his throne!"

The time is the sixteenth century and the place is located in England—a market town whose spiritual life is well guarded by the friary of Saint Leofric on the one side of the river and the Abbey of Silver Cross on the other.

Middle Forest is the name of the town, and it is here that we locate one of the characters who plays a leading part in the tragedy and who, being driven from her home, finds refuge in a nearby farm house.

The Abbey of Silver Cross contains a monk—Brother Richard—who is seeking a contented mind, etc.

This is a story of old-time English life and around Middle Forest and Silver Cross Miss Johnston has woven a story that is both thrilling and romantic. She has made a true portrayal of the time, the people and the atmosphere—so much so that the reader becomes thoroughly enthused as well as deeply impressed with the color of the story. Little Brown, & Co.)

The Garden of Memories. The story of a charming love affair which would not stay the past. Henry St. John Cooper, the author, has written a delightful love story of an old house, an old garden, an old love and a past that will not stay in the past, but looms up into the lives of three charming young people.

It was Allan who dreamed he was in a beautiful garden with flowers of all kinds blooming in a riot of color such as would have been popular more than two hundred years ago—but the dream was not complete without the picture of a little lass dressed in blue with the bluest eyes ever seen.

"Allan," she said, "Allan, are you still angry with your Betty, now dear?"

And then the dream vanished and he was standing in an old neglected garden full of weeds and desolation—and he realized that he was not dreaming and that it was the twentieth century.

We will skip a few years—golden years—and what pleasure it brings to watch a picture of a young couple surrounded by those who love them and those whom they love as they sat in an old-fashioned garden "filled with the sunshine and the glory of the flowers in bloom, of the little pool at their feet shimmering like molten gold and in their midst was the slim white figure of the stone maiden." (George H. Doran Company, New York.)

The Shadow of the East. By E. M. Hull, author of "The Sheik." The author has written a novel full of pathos—tragedy. It is located in the Far East with its beautiful gardens, bamboo and cherry blossoms. It is here that a young daughter of Japan learns to love a young man who landed in Yokahama on an American yacht—he was the second Barry Craven to visit this land, his father having many years before spent some time in the same country.

It is a story that will be widely read. (Small, Maynard & Co., Boston.)

Heartbeat is a new novel by the author of "The Querrils," who is regarded as one of the foremost young English novelists of today. He has written several stories, but this, his latest, seems to have touched upon a key that has been entirely unused in his other stories.

He has written a psychological study of "a more or less average woman," and of which some critic says with reference to its touch of the melodrama—"Melodrama! Melodrama only as life is melodramatic—only as the astounding events in our daily newspapers are melodramatic!" (Boni & Liveright, New York.)

The First Person, Singular. By William Rose Benet, who has written a romance of very modern young people against a mellow background of old-fashioned family life. Mr. Benet wrote "Moons of Grandeur," etc. He is also associate editor of The New York Evening Post Literary Review and is considered one of the ablest of the younger writers of today. (George H. Doran Company, New York.)

BALDY OF NOME.

Since the days of "The Call of the Wild," "Prince" and many other well-known canine stories, the dog whose faithfulness to man has been one of unfading honor and admiration since Byron's famous ode, seems to be coming into his own, whether he is a little stray cur or a dignified German police dog, or the well-known brave Alaskan dogs. "Baldy of Nome" is the title of a very handsome book which contains an interesting story by Esther Birdsall; the decorations, which are very attractive, are by Hattie Longstreet.

Baldy is the name of a real Alaskan dog who was a very popular dog, too, as he was the leader of a famous racing sled team, but Little Ben had to give up his best friend and he became the property of the Allen & Darling kennels. He did not make much of an impression on his new owners, but his little friend knew that his heart was in the right place and that he possessed all the qualities that make men brave and courageous as well as dogs.

So Baldy was finally given his test, and the story of Baldy of Nome, who became well known from every corner of Alaska, is one of the best dog stories recently published. There was never a trip in view but what he was expected to be leader.

"We want Baldy to lead the team one more time?" "I cannot give Baldy up," was the firm reply. "He did not desert me when I lay freezing and helpless in the snow. He is a wonderful leader and my faithful friend." said Scotty.

"Sometimes the captains have great tales to tell us of the war dogs of the north, but never, Ben, will there be greater tales than we can tell of the old guard, Baldy of Nome—our immortals of the trail!" (The Penn Publishing Company.)

"SAFETY FIRST" WEEK.

Atlantans generally, irrespective of age, sex or occupation, should lend all possible encouragement to the "safety first" movement that is being directed in this city by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The week of September 17-24 has been officially designated "Safety First Week," during which the junior chamber will intensify its activities to promote the spirit of prudence and precaution among the people of Atlanta, the object being to minimize the hazard to life and limb in our industrial plants and other places of employment, and on the streets and highways.

Atlanta suffers deplorably from accidents that are of daily occurrence, especially on our streets.

Hardly a day passes without its gruesome accident toll, too often involving the loss of human life; and in every instance the accident is directly attributable to carelessness or ignorance on the part of somebody and might have been prevented.

To direct the attention of the masses to the enormity of the accident hazard; to educate the people—old and young—in the simple art of avoiding mishaps, and, above all, to inspire the public with the spirit of respect for the rights of others and for the traffic rules and other safety regulations that are designed to protect the users of the streets, are the chief purposes the junior chamber has in view in sponsoring and promoting the "safety first" movement.

This is an unselfish, enterprising and an altogether humanitarian undertaking that merits the utmost measure of co-operation between the public, our various civic, religious, commercial and social organizations of Atlanta, and the police, fire, education and all other departments and branches of the city government.

The public will be benefited much or little, in accordance with the support it gives to the splendid efforts of the young business men of Atlanta who are promoting this praiseworthy movement in behalf of safety.

SPOILS AND THE MAILS.

During his tenure in the white house President Wilson issued an executive order requiring that all first, second and third-class postmasterships, of which there are 13,000 in the United States, be filled in each instance by the appointment of one of the three candidates ranking highest after a strictly impartial and non-partisan competitive examination to determine their qualifications and fitness.

This order is still in effect, though slightly modified by President Harding.

The National Civil Service Reform league, discovering that more than one-half of the postmastership appointments that have been made during the Harding administration went to candidates ranking second or third on the examination lists, recently asked Postmaster General Work for an explanation.

With refreshing and commendable frankness Dr. Work replied that, "other things being equal, we send to the president the name of a republican if there is one on the list."

In view of this policy, therefore, the public is left to infer from the appointment records that more than half of the candidates ranking first are democrats, socialists or non-partisans, because more than half of the appointments have gone to applicants ranking second or third, and that the best qualified men in more than one-half of the cases failed of appointment for no other reason than that they were not republicans.

of Dr. Work that in his opinion the fact that a non-republican may rank first in the examination does not place a second or third-ranking republican competitor in an unequal position, for, "other things being equal, we send to the president the name of a republican!"

This policy simply puts the office of postmaster straight back into partisan politics, from which the policy introduced by President Wilson was designed to remove it.

If there is any branch of the public service in which politics and partisan considerations should have no place, that having to do with the handling of the mails is one.

The public interest demands that the lofty non-partisan principle that was injected into the postal service by President Wilson must be respected and observed, to the end that the mail-handling processes may be kept as free as possible from the taint of partisan politics and political manipulation.

"THE TIGER" COMING.

It has been definitely announced that former Premier Georges Clemenceau is to visit America in November.

In the list of distinguished statesmen from Europe who have visited this country since the world war there is not one who ranks ahead of Clemenceau; and with the single exception of Premier Lloyd George there is probably no personage from the other side whose visit to the United States would create more general interest, or call for a heartier reception. Lloyd George, of course, has the distinction of being actively in service at this time, and to that extent is a power in world affairs of today, and not merely as recorded in history.

In the critical stages of the late war the conflict resolved itself into a struggle between two wills, Clemenceau's and Ludendorff's. The American mind naturally followed the will of the former. Before this country entered the struggle the great problem of continuing it did not rest with Great Britain or Italy, but with France—already war-torn and weary from three years of fighting and destruction on her own territory. It was "the Tiger's" will to victory that kept the French morale up, and with the constant taunt "the Boche is still at Noyon," he rallied the French people, civilians and soldiers, to a new purpose and to an immutable determination to win or die. Therein he succeeded where his immediate predecessor failed. And then it was, with a morale raised in the face of defeat, that the war was kept going against desperate odds until the United States entered, and the tide was turned at Chateau-Thierry.

Following the armistice, however, it cannot be forgotten that Clemenceau's attitude was as unyielding to his allies as it had been in war to the German commander.

His thought was for France and apparently only for France; and it became necessary for a broader visioned diplomat to conclude the peace negotiations that he could not do in reason because of his intense partisanship.

It can be said for him, nevertheless, that during his premiership he represented America's cause as truly as he did that of his own France, and he never did or suggested a movement to disturb an international relationship that had been sealed in blood.

"The Tiger's" personality has been the subject of much comment throughout the world. It has gripped the imagination as possibly that of no other world character made by the war.

Here's hoping that he may strike Georgia in his itinerary.

THE NEW "GREEN LINE."

Roy LeCraw, president of the enterprising Junior Chamber of Commerce, announces that this organization intends during "Safety-First Week," September 17-24, to mark the down-town sidewalks with a conspicuous green central dividing line parallel with the curb, the object being to encourage pedestrians to form the habit of walking on the right side of the walks, facing forward, thus to speed up foot traffic and minimize congestion.

The idea is a good one, practical, and, put into operation, will be productive of much benefit if the public will only observe the purpose of the green lines.

But unless this proposed rule is observed with greater regard than the general public of Atlanta has manifested for similar rules in the past it will not amount to much after the first few days of its operation.

For instance, the rule intended to govern traffic at congested street intersections by means of white crossing lines and signal lights is a good thing, and when it was first invoked and so long as policemen were kept on hand to enforce it, the public generally obeyed it, and it proved "one hundred per cent" effective.

But, as is too frequently the case, the public refused to be "educated" to the point of forming the observance habit, and this splendid rule, designed to prevent accidents and facilitate traffic, is rapidly declining to the status of a dead letter.

Especially, so far as pedestrian traffic is concerned, is this true as to the signal lights.

Even at the Five Points congestion center the lights are disregarded by streets back and forth irrespective of whether the signal light is green or red, unless a traffic officer is there to enforce the rule of "go" when the light is green and "stop" when it is red.

So it is at other street intersections where the signaling device has been installed.

As a rule the drivers of vehicles are painstaking in obedience to this regulation; but it is impossible for them to avoid danger of accidents unless pedestrians on the streets will co-operate with them in the observance of the rules that are designed to prevent accidents.

It is unfair to the motor vehicle drivers to subject them to the hazard of colliding with pedestrians who persist in violating the simple rules of traffic.

Assuming that the walking public can and will be induced to respect and observe the "green line" regulation rule, the movement in its behalf merits city-wide encouragement and co-operation.

FORD AND PROHIBITION.

Henry Ford has served notice upon the 70,000 employees in his Detroit automobile factory that they must leave intoxicants alone or seek employment elsewhere than in his plant.

Asserting that indulgence in alcoholic liquors by employees recently had been the cause of accidents in the Ford plant, the proprietor issued a statement to his men the other day declaring that any of them whose breath may betray the presence of liquor within, who are found to be carrying liquor or who may be known to have it in their homes, will be dismissed without further ado.

In his formal notice to his workmen Mr. Ford said in part:

"The eighteenth amendment is a part of the fundamental law of this country. It was meant to be enforced. Politics has interfered with enforcement of this law, but so far as our organization is concerned it is going to be enforced to the letter."

Mr. Ford knows that he cannot reasonably expect an honest and efficient day's work from a man whose vitality is drained and whose brain is addled by booze; and he is too good a business man to be willing to tolerate the constant hazard of damage claims arising out of accidents caused by men made irresponsible through drink.

His position on the eighteenth amendment is right—that is, the amendment is "a part of the fundamental law of this country," and, being such, "it was meant to be enforced!"

DIABETES OR ALCOHOL.

Prohibition is held responsible for the necessity which has impelled the Mt. Sinai hospital authorities to inaugurate a new department exclusively for the treatment of diabetics, according to an announcement a few days ago by the New York Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, which quoted Dr. Emanuel Bonheiser as saying that the withdrawal of alcoholic drinks has caused former liquor addicts to turn to sweets as a substitute, thus producing "an enormous increase" in diabetes.

"Take drink away from man," said this alarmist doctor—

"and he will naturally turn to something else as a substitute. His craving for sweets is thus intensified. He becomes an inveterate candy eater and a constant muncher of pastries. A person is harmed more physically by patronizing a French pastry shop than he ever was by going in a saloon and drinking a glass of beer or light wine. Leaving out the selling of whisky, French pastry shops do more harm than the saloons ever did. Continued use of heavy sweets between meals will soon make a healthy, normal man a diabetic subject."

This is all very sad, of course, if true, and, at first blush, it suggests the conclusion that, with the alcoholic menace on the one side and the peril of diabetes on the other, the American people are figuratively between two horns of a grave dilemma.

The prohibitionists tell us that we are in danger of becoming a nation of alcoholics unless the eighteenth amendment is rigidly enforced, and, on the other hand, there are those who look dismally upon the professed possibility of our degenerating into a race of diabetics because of excessive consumption of sweets due to the withdrawal of alcohol.

It is too bad that the American public cannot be temperate, curbing its appetite, for confections as well as for alcohol, at the danger line.

It is unfortunate if those who were rescued—theoretically, at least, by legal enactment—from the peril of alcoholism, are now confronted with the danger of diabetes because of an excessive consumption of sugar.

It may be necessary in the course of time to do something about it; but it is safe to say that, as between the two extremes, public sentiment will be tolerant of excessive use of sweets in preference to an excessive consumption of alcohol.

There is no instance on record, so far as we know, wherein a craving for bonbons was responsible for the mortgaging of a home or the pilfering of a baby's bank, nor in which overindulgence in French pastry caused a man to commit murder or go home and brutalize his wife and children.

So long as that remains true the likelihood of any great popular clamor for a lifting of the ban upon the liquor saloon in preference to the open pastry shop is extremely remote.

Everybody concedes that.

The problem may be solved along more rational lines than expressed in the Volstead act, but the saloon will never be brought back.

THE SULGRAVE TOUR.

The visit of a party of British representatives of the Sulgrave Institution to Atlanta on Tuesday, is an occasion of unusual significance, challenging the best that this community has to offer in the way of hospitality and a demonstration of the spirit of international good will and cordiality.

The Sulgrave Institution was founded eight years ago by a group of public-spirited English men and women who purchased the ancestral home of the forbears of George Washington, in Northamptonshire, England, and turned it over to a board of trustees with the understanding that the estate is to be maintained forever as "a place of pilgrimage" for Americans and in the interest of perpetuating the spirit of fraternity and friendship between the English-speaking peoples of the two hemispheres.

For the purpose of familiarizing the American people with this praiseworthy plan, and of initiating it by a demonstration of the friendly sentiment back of it, the institution commissioned this group of distinguished citizens of the mother country to pay the United States a visit and come in personal contact with as many as possible of the citizens of this nation.

The fact that Atlanta has been selected as one of the fifteen leading American cities included in the official itinerary of the party, whose tour is limited to one month, represents a mark of recognition and courtesy that our citizens should—and do—appreciate with warm hearts.

But transacting all other considerations is the basic purpose of the Sulgrave movement to bring the peoples of the two great Anglo-Saxon and English-speaking nations of the world closer together in spirit and sentiment and personal relationship.

And any movement directed to that objective is commendable and deserving of encouragement and co-operation.

BALLOT THE REMEDY.

The proposed high duty on dye stuffs carried in the tariff bill—a practical embargo in the interest of the DuPont interests who own the old German formulas—has created a revolt even among the republicans, the proposed potash embargo having been incorporated in the revolt "code of exceptions" in order to win the support of the members from the agricultural states. Thus it appears that the tariff football is back on the gridiron with the evident purpose of keeping the voters fooled as long as possible so that the congressional seats of the overwhelming republican majority in the house may not be jeopardized any more than possible before the fall elections.

The bare truth is the republican leaders are being pressed to pay the political debts of 1920 to the monopoly manufacturers of this country, and yet they are approaching the settlement with fear and trembling because of its direct and inexcusable levy upon the American consumers, who constitute the voting strength of the country.

Anyway, the question of impending high priced dyes has again aroused speculation as to whether or not cotton can be grown in colors.

A correspondent in The Philadelphia Public Ledger makes the following observation:

"A farmer, C. F. O'Briant, near Dalton, Ga., reports having grown green cotton of fiber. A planter in the interior of Louisiana is known to have experimented along similar lines. The scarcity and high price of dyes are said to have inspired these color experiments. When German dyes were cut off from this country there was a need of a revolution in dyeing processes. A cotton grower conceived the idea of 'breeding' color into the cotton palnt. Instead of white, he said it could be grown to green or pink or brown or blue."

The fact that a rose is a rose, whether white or red or pink, does not apply to cotton. The value of the staple in the market, its grading and scaling, depends as much upon its whiteness as it does upon the length of the staple. That is because any color can be developed from the basic white, whereas it is impossible in stained or discolored cotton to do so.

Various experiments have been made along the lines suggested, but without commercial success. Nankeen cotton has a brownish tint, but it has no fixed place in the markets. Red cotton has been produced in Africa, but it quickly faded. Some green cotton has been produced, but it failed to hold its color, and even had it done so, who wants all green cloths and fabrics?

It is not scientifically impracticable to breed and grow colored cotton, but it is commercially foolish to think of it.

Three Friends

I.

Two friends there, with the dark on their faces,
Dreaming the dark away;
One left lonely, in lonesome places,

II.

Three friends stood where the life-ways parted—
There, on the verge of years;
One was left with the broken-hearted,
Deep in the Night of Tears.

III.

Memory now like a ghost is flitting
Here—where the shadows throng:
Three friends still at a fireside sitting;
Silence—and never song.

IV.

Three friends still! . . . But the world will never Bloom with the old-time light:
Do we go where they dream in the dark forever,
Glad to say, "Goodnight?"

LIBRARY LITERARY NOTES

By Frances Newman, of the Carnegie Library

POLISHED AND ROUGH

Admittedly, no one looks at the publisher's name on a book, but something may be gathered from the fact that Mr. Milne's third plays have beaten a retreat from Mr. Knopf to old Major Putnam and the other fact that Mr. O'Neill's fifth volume is still presented by Messers. Boni and Liveright—a house which is not averse from being the first by whom the new is tried. Perhaps Mr. Milne and Mr. O'Neill are good antidotes for each other, but jumping from "The Great Broxopp" to "The Hairy Ape" is rather too much like jumping from a boiling bath into a freezing one—a choice between them, however, is not quite so simple as a mere preference for hot or cold baths, and of course, it isn't really necessary to choose. There is no reason why one can't like them both immensly or calmly await the annihilation of time, except that people can't like them both any more than worshippers of the Venerable Hardy can put up with having Sir James Barrie become his unique literary peer in the Order of Merit. After protesting for two or three years against the contemporary reverence for gloom, it is both shocking and justifying to have a lady innocently remark to one's astounded face that great books are always dull—apropos of Miss Willa Cather and "One of Ours." There seems also to be an idea very generally prevalent that crudity is another mark of greatness—that a man who can't express himself correctly, much less charmingly, is probably a stark genius.

Product of Cambridge.

Mr. Milne, being a product of Westminster and Trinity college, Cambrige, can undoubtedly express himself correctly and he can also express himself charmingly; but he hasn't a thing to say for himself except his very sincere admiration for this same Sir James Barrie, O. M.—and that is written more or less between the lines, except in one of his endearingly disarming prefaces. Still, it seems improbable that the process of education has entirely destroyed a man who might otherwise have been one of those stark geniuses—even a polished diamond is still a diamond; it is much more likely that Mr. Milne's life and his environment have supplied him with whatsoever he does say, except that they haven't, of course, supplied him with his wit. "The Great Broxopp" is very dull, though it has its lines, and one may safely neglect it just as play-going New York did. But "The Dover Road" has been a notable success in the theaters, probably with brows of the middle height. No doubt all of the possibly astute and undoubtedly experienced dramatic critics pointed out, when the play was produced months ago, that the philantrophic Mr. Latimer is very likely the puckish Lob of "Dear Brutus," only not so Puckish. Everything about Mr. Milne's plays is like something in Barrie, only not so Barrieish; his young girls, lovely young girls, are very like all of those young girls whom Sir James, that magnificent example of the Oedipus complex, goes on fashioning in the image of Margaret Ogilvy, Anne, whom Mr. Latimer saved from the broad way that leads to destruction—by way of Dover and Calais and the easy-going continent—was certainly far too good for the wicked Leonard who had lured her into an elopement with a married man, or of Nicholas who had been lured into an elopement with Leonard's Eustacia—a ministering angel when pain and anguish wring the brow. She was, it appears from the printed page, even too good for Mr. Latimer himself, with whom audiences at the Bijou theater leave her practically at the church door, and Mr. Milne is going to keep her for himself. He may be a gentleman so amiable and so superior to colds and lost baggage that Anne will still be faithful to him after a week of seclusion with him at Mr. Latimer's.

But "The Truth about Blayds" is really quite a play. It is amusing to people who are most amused by literary reflections, because Oliver and Septima, who are so painfully fed up with being granchildren to genius, are so reminiscent of Mr. Ford Madox Hueffer and his sufferings from being grandchild to the Pre-Raphaelites and a potential (though unrealized) genius himself. They are also a tiny bit like Kay and Gerda, the youngest of Miss Rose Macaulay's dangerous ages. But "The Truth About Blayds" is a good deal more than amusing—almost enough to make one take back that impolite statement that Mr. Milne hasn't much to say for himself.

O'Neill Without Humor.

It is not, at this day, necessary to say that "Anna Christie" and "The Hairy Ape" aren't amusing. Probably one of the reasons why Mr. O'Neill writes so badly is that he is absolutely without a sense of humor—only a Walter Pater can write so beautifully that one is unconscious of that pleasant quality's absence; the other reason is that he has suffered much less than Mr. Milne from this suspected process of education. A dramatist, of course, can do much better than a novelist without the ability to write well, and even a man so partial to all the the dialects of the earth will stand or fall with the actor whom chance or Mr. Arthur Hopkins puts on the cothurns of his characters. Not many dramatic critics are likely to have enjoyed much conversation with Swedish barge-captains or even with Irish or American stokers, but it does seem a little odd that the Swedish barge-captain should converse so remarkably like the Swedes in the comic strips and that the Irish stoker should converse so much like the playboy of the western world—with the unfortunate difference that the Irish rhythm drops now and then with some such fearful thud as "And only for me, I'm telling you and the great strength and guts is in me, we'd be being scoffed by the fishes this minute." Apparently Mr. O'Neill accepts dialects and phrases just as he might accept cards which were dealt him and plays them out without much regard to aces and two-spots; the only ace is a beautiful swear, and even that may lack the beauty of freshness to people who are not well protected from wicked language by the white marble walls of libraries.

The technique and the intention of "The Hairy Ape" have been a matter of much discussion, but in print it is hardly comparable as an example of expressionism with "From Morn to Midnight;" and in print it certaintly reads like very poor propaganda for the I. W. W., whose cause is not likely to be much advanced by the rousing of poor Yank's class consciousness—it is obvious to the meanest Freudian and even to the few non-Freudians who may still exist, that Paddy was right and that 'twas love at first sight for the imbecile daughter of Nazareth Steel, whose conversation leads one to suspect that young ladies even two generations removed from steel-puddlers are almost as strange to Mr. O'Neill as to Yank. "The First Man" is even more negligible than "The Great Broxopp" but "Anna Christie" is not negligible, for one reason, because it has been selected by a jury of its peers to be presented in Paris as the best American play—the American drama is not exactly something to boast of, but surely this is taking a dark view of it. The theme is certainly the best one that Mr. O'Neill has hit upon yet—the woman with a past which neither her father nor her lover suspects is far from new, indeed, but the situation somehow has a freshness. But that fourth act, in which she is forgiven, does not become good either psychologically or technically for all Mr. O'Neill's efforts to show Mat Burke's moral metamorphosis or for all his denial that a marriage in the offing is that unforgivable thing, "a happy ending"—he has never suggested that they will live happy ever after. But all that would not really matter if Mr. O'Neill had any more to say than Mr. Milne has; given his time and country, however, he probably has the best of it with the intellectuals because he says his nothing so badly.

CHRIST OR MAHOMET?

One need not be accused of being a cynic because he seriously raises the question whether Christ or Mohamet has the most influence in the politics of Christendom today. The question may be answered by raising the practical inquiry whether the statesmen of Europe are looking to the east or the west for guidance in the present Turkish crisis.

The news dispatches have just told of the triumphant entry of Mustapha Kemal into Smyrna, after his sweeping victory over the Greeks. The eyes of the world are once again turned toward Constantinople. Only a few weeks ago Constantine of Greece turned the faces of his army toward this fateful city and asked the Christian allies if he could advance. These Christian statesmen scanned the gathering storm-clouds upon the horizon of the Mohammedan world, and said no. Now the sword of Mustapha Kemal is pointed toward Constantinople. Once again British, French, and Italian eyes examine the east. What will they do? What will the Mohammedan world do?

"The Unspeakable Turk."

Many of us can remember the thrill of joyous satisfaction which went through our hearts when in 1915, after the Turks had entered the war in alliance with the Germans, the allied powers solemnly declared to the world that the Turk should never again rule in Europe. That meant that Armenia, the martyred nation, whose minor tones had filled the corridors of modern history with the wail of "Rachel weeping for her children," was at last to be delivered from her persecutors. It meant that the "unspeakable Turk," the marplot of European politics, was no longer to entangle the nations in his diabolical deeds, playing with the ambitions of statesmen, and tempting the greed and selfishness of Christian peoples to become particeps criminis in his brutal massacres. When we think of that hope, and then look today at the triumphant sword of Kemal pointed at the Dardanelles, one is tempted to ask once again in sickening digust, why did our boys fight in Europe?

As one looks back upon the past, it does look as if God has chosen Constantinople as the test of the character of Christian nations. For a century British statesmen were haunted with the fear, nothing less than an obsession, of a Russian advance on Constantinople. Because of this fear, at one time or another, she sacrificed every standard of Anglo-Saxon civilization to keep the Turk as a defense against the Russian advance. Then Germany, France, and Italy, with the growth of their Mohammedan possessions in Africa, learned the political art of carrying gifts to the mosque at Constantinople. With every question of policy which arises in regard to European Turkey the world hears the perennial rumor of the threat of a "holy war" to be waged by the Mohammedans of the world, and Europe trembles for fear of the loss of her Mohammedan possessions. Over and over again the question arises, what effect will this or that international policy have upon the religious feelings of the Mohammedan world? And today the question of the future position of the Turk in Europe seems about to be determined by the religious sentiment of the followers of the great prophet.

Christian Conscience?

And now in contrast one is forced to ask the significant question, what has been the effect in the great past, and what will be the influence in the future, of the sentiment of the Christian world upon Christian governments in their dealing with the Turk? Certainly there has been no fear on the part of the Turk that anything which he might do would offend the Christian conscience. He has not hesitated to pillage, plunder, and murder Christian men, women and children, for fear of arousing against himself a holy war among Christians. Thus far the Turk has proceeded upon the policy, which seems to have been justified by the events, that, so long as he does not attempt to seize the lands and properties held by Christian nations, he may violate all the laws and codes of Christian peoples within the jurisdiction of his own government, and do it with impunity. It seems impossible to create a united Christian sentiment among Christian peoples which will force their governments to bring the Turk to the bar of Christian conscience, and compel him to withhold his murderous hand from the helpless people who call themselves after the name of Christ. For this reason Christian statesmen are influenced, not by Christian, but by Mohammedan sentiment and faith.

This is only a striking illustration of a deeper truth, which has a far wider application in the life of nations. The idea has been far too prevalent that Christianity is a religion for the individual and not for the nation. It would be terrible for a priest or a merchant to pass by without aiding a poor fellow robbed and beaten on the Jericho road. But there seems to be no national Christian conscience which will condemn a nation for leading bleeding Armenia to suffer for centuries without raising a hand in her defense. When the United States was offered a mandate for Armenia—a golden opportunity to perform the most splendid act of national chivalry which history has ever presented—there was not sentiment enough among the Christian people of America to make it even an interesting question for public discussion. It will not be denied by any thoughtful man today that the entrance of the United States into the league of nations offers the only solution for the vexed and vital economic problems of many bankrupt nations, and the only hope for the peace of a war-worn world. And yet the vast majority of the Christian people of this country refuse to discuss this question in terms of the religion of Christ, and only speak of it in terms of a short-sighted, provincial, political economy. Is it not startlingly significant that the religious sentiment of the Mohammedan world is practically and vitally potent in the policies of Christian governments, while the religious sentiment of the Christian peoples plays no part in their deliberations?

Tobacco a Staple Crop in Georgia

BY MARTIN V. CALVIN,
Statistician Georgia Department of Agriculture.

Tobacco may be profitably produced in Georgia. That is an established fact. Observe, I said "may" be produced, etc. The meaning is, one must comply with the requirements in the preparation of the soil, in the use per acre of a liberal quantity of fertilizer adapted to the plants, in following the most approved cultural methods, in harvesting and in curing the crop. Of course, particular attention must be given to the seed to which you will look for a fine crop that will grade excellent—certainly, good.

The fertilizer requirement is of supreme importance. You may set the plants on an area treated to stable manure the year previous. Note that fact; stick to it. The plants demand a good supply of potash. It has been demonstrated that muriate of potash should not be used as a component part of the formula for tobacco; for the reason that muriate carries an element called "chlorine" which is injurious to the quality of the weed when called into use. Use sulphate of potash in your formula. Here is an excellent one. If you mix your own purchases of fertilizer material, you should make what is termed 6-4-10 goods, that is, material that will analyze 6 per cent phosphoric acid, 4 per cent nitrogen and 10 per cent potash. Having the material at hand, is as follows:

400 pounds of sulphate of potash.

Use top soil as filler or dryer; it aids in the distribution of fertilizer as a whole. The finest tobacco is produced on light, sandy soil; it is therefore necessary that fertilizer should be applied with "an open hand," 1,000 to 1,500 pounds per acre. I notice that you wince at that suggestion. Remember that true economy is the vigorous use of money—winning satisfactory results.

Fortunately, the cotton states are adapted to tobacco culture. In 1860—I love to turn back to 1860 because it stands for the great agricultural achievements of the 50s when diversification of crops and live stock farming were successfully practiced in every cotton producing state, and cotton was a surplus, money crop—the southern states produced 46.8 per cent of the tobacco of the United States and territories. I mention this fact because we have resumed the practice of growing tobacco; it is not an experiment. We may turn it to splendid financial account if we pursue the right course.

The foregoing is an introduction to a bunch of facts which I place at your service. During the month of August, just past, Georgia leaf tobacco was sold on the floor of warehouses at a number of points in the state. Here is a table that may interest you:

	No. lbs. Sold	Price Per Cwt.
Abbeville	90,952	$12.32
Blackshear	1,368,560	23.15
Douglas	771,921	21.18
Fitzgerald	52,574	14.66
Hazelhurst	204,360	20.56
Nashville	602,607	22.70
Tifton	1,302,202	21.61
Total No. lbs	4,393,176
General average		$19.45

There are seven counties which produced in 1919 from 127,000 to 783,000 pounds of tobacco, but had no public sales the past month. In 1919, when the crop amounted to 13,200,000 pounds, tobacco was produced, to a greater or less extent, in every county in the state except 37. All those are in middle Georgia except four which are in south Georgia.

It is probable that there will be in operation a great many more tobacco warehouses in this state in 1923. Of course, the tobacco acreage will be largely increased next year.

Limerick: City of Fishhooks and Rhymed Quips

The town that named a rhyme presents another case in evidence that "history repeats itself" for dispatches state that opposing forces in Ireland are contending for possession of Limerick.

"Limerick has always been considered a point of great importance in most of the wars that have swept over the storm-ridden Emerald Isle," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its Washington, D. C., headquarters. "It is located where the River Shannon flows near the head of the unbroken stretches of the green vale of Tipperary," continues the bulletin. "The portion of the river immediately above the city is without navigation, for fifteen miles of rushing torrents, of falls and rapids, make the passage of any kind of boat impossible. Above these obstructions, however, the river flows from its origin, far to the north, through ten counties, widening into stretches of placid lake along which boats sail as far as the ford of historic Athlone.

Nonesense Verse Made City Famous.

"That five-line stanza which most of us are guilty of attempting to compose at various times in our careers made the town as well as Edward Lear famous. And many notables, such as Rudyard Kipling, George du Maurier, Gelett Burgess and Carolyn Wells, have tried their hands at penning it. It is said that the composition of limericks originated as a form of amusement when a crowd of people gathered together for a pleasant evening in the Irish town. Each person was supposed to compose a stanza in turn, and the following chorus was sung after each new rhyme in order to give the next contributor time to get his limerick ready:

"'Oh, won't you come up, come up, come up,
Oh, won't you come up to Limerick?
Oh, won't you come, come all the way up,
Come all the way up to Limerick?'

"The town, which occupies both sides of the river as well as King's island, is about 130 miles from Dublin. Its bacon-curing industry, its creameries, its condensed milk factories, and its salmon fisheries keep busy its Rory O'Mores and its pretty little Irish colleens, the glances of whose beautiful eyes are like to prove as fatal as those of Kate Kearney. Limerick fishhooks are celebrated, and though the Limerick lace worked upon a fine quality of net derived its name from the city, it is mostly made in other portions of the island at the present time.

Old as Days of Ptolemy.

"Limerick has had a past. It was the ancient Regia of Ptolemy; the Danes desired it for a long while before they finally occupied it in the ninth century; and in 1210 King John visited it and built forts upon its coveted soil. The dethroned James II., of England, made it his last stronghold. On the island in the river the ancient Limerick had its beginnings, and today its maze of crooked streets, and its old cathedral, dating from 1170, are important points of interest.

"Limerick also has her romance and poetry. All Irishmen may well be proud of Gerald Griffin, whose 'Eileen Aroon' is a lyric of the tenderest and most musical quality. The bells of Limerick are famous for their beautiful tone. The story runs that they were made many years ago in Italy by a young bellmaker, who, after years of toil, perfected a set of bells the purity of whose tone satisfied his critical ear. They were hung in a nearby convent, but during a war the bells were carried away and no one knew of their whereabouts.

"Misfortune fell upon the bellmaker and he wandered far from home, always with the hope that he would find his beloved bell again. Hearing that they had been taken to Limerick, he set out for the city. While sitting on the deck of the vessel as it made its way up the River Shannon, he heard the sweet, pure tones of his bells once again. He fixed his eyes on the distant cathedral whence the music came, but when they came to tell him that he might enter the city, he was dead."

AGREEMENT BETWEEN FRANCE AND GERMANY HALTS DRASTIC ACTION

New Understanding Whereby Material for Home Building Will Be Given and Cash Payments Postponed Will Prevent Carrying Out of French Threats.

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS.

Washington, September 16.—With the passing of two weeks the real explanation of the sudden and surprising compromise over reparations becomes clear. In reality there were several circumstances which contributed to the result but the most important is patently the agreement between Stinnes and M. Lubersac, the latter representing the French government, which seems likely to lead to an actual contribution by Germany to the rebuilding of northern France.

Actually the situation in this respect is as follows: France has herself, while relying upon ultimate German repayment, raised and expended rather more than $7,000,000,000 upon the work of restoring her devastated regions and caring for the victims of the war. This effort has enabled her to rebuild her roads, railways, canals, to clear her war-torn fields and put them back into production. It has also permitted her to rebuild her more important industrial establishments, wrecked by the war.

But there remains the gigantic task of building houses for many hundreds of thousands of inhabitants of ten ravaged departments. This work has been postponed or rather has waited upon the completion of the more vital labor of getting the plant, agricultural as well as mechanical, into shape. There was not enough money for both and the peasant farmers, while clearing and sowing their fields have continued to live in dugouts in concrete block-houses, in the ruins of their old homes.

The work of clearing the fields was obviously one which the Germans could not perform, without displacing French labor; the task of restoring the mechanical plants was as clearly one in which there was little room for German co-operation. But when it comes to supplying the vast amount of material essential for reconstructing homes, Germany can make contributions almost without limit.

The first step in this direction was made when Louis Loucheur, then minister of finance, and the late Walter Rathenau signed the famous Weisbaden agreement, which provided for an elaborate system of German production and delivery of the materials for rebuilding the homes of the inhabitants of the devastated area. When I went through the liberated regions last year a number of wooden houses, made by German firms, had been erected, not for use, but as an example of what Germany would deliver, provided the inhabitants of the area would accept them.

But the Loucheur-Rathenau agreement of Wiesbaden was never put into operation, partly at least as a result of British opposition, the British seeing in the totals provided for an impairment of their own claims against Germany, not for reparations but for war pensions. And as a consequence, since Germany has reached the point where there is no likelihood of money payments, the situation which followed the London conference was one in which the French, having restored their fields and factories at their own expense, were threatened with the task of rebuilding their homes.

In this state of affairs it was certain beyond any debate that, so far from agreeing to any moratorium for the Germans, the French were prepared to set their armies in motion and seize the Ruhr and such other German possessions as might have at least a small value. The fact that France had raised $7,000,000,000 and must raise at least $5,000,000,000 more for reconstruction while Germany which had escaped invasion, contributed nothing and meant to contribute nothing, produced such a feeling in France that Poincare would have fallen, had he agreed to a moratorium.

At the eleventh hour, however, the situation was saved by two things. In the first place all that Germany is required to pay during the balance of the present year amounts to little more than $50,000,000, and all of it is allotted to Belgium, which has priority for payment up to a certain point in recognition of her peculiar services to her allies in the first days of the conflict. Therefore, while the consent of France was nominally required before there could be a moratorium, France was not concerned financially, provided Belgium and Germany could reach an agreement as to the matter of the $50,000,000. If Germany could get Belgium to extend the time or take something beside cash, France stood to lose nothing.

On the other hand, if a moratorium were established this would set up a precedent and might affect the French position after the end of the year, when the larger portion of later Germany payments would go to the French. France, therefore, opposed the moratorium, which Britain advocated, but she listened to her Belgian ally's request that the German-Belgian account might be settled on terms satisfactory to Belgium even if these terms postponed German payments and thus technically put Germany in default and made her liable to military or other constraint.

So bitter had French opinion become, however, that even this limited postponement of action on the part of France would have been totally impossible if it had not been accompanied by a very clear and definite proposal such as the Stinnes offer constitutes. As it stands now we are to have something like six months of peace from reparations crises. Provided Germany satisfied Belgium's conditions, and there is every sign that she will, there will be no legal warrant for proceeding against her for failure to meet the payments contracted for in the financial settlement between Germany and her conquerors.

In this six months Germany will have, first of all, to reorganize her finances, her inflation and set her house in order against the payments she will have to make France next year. If in this time the Lubersac-Stinnes agreement is put in force and by the end of the respite Germany is actually sending huge amounts of materials to France and thus making possible the reconstruction of the homes of the French inhabitants of the devastated area, then neither Poincare nor any other French statesman is likely to have reason for drastic action against Germany.

If, on the contrary, Germany does not meet the French expectations, if she discloses the same spirit which has hitherto marked all of her manoeuvers since the signing of the treaty of Versailles, France can act, and she will have lost nothing actually, because all that Germany could have paid in money, would have been paid to Belgium in any event.

Of course this compromise settles nothing. It only offers Germany one more chance to do that without which any settlement is impossible and postpones the doing of what would make all settlements unlikely forever. Assuming that Germany, under the Stinnes-Lubersac agreement, should now furnish all of the material and some of the labor necessary for reconstruction, this would not reimburse the French for the $7,000,000,000 which they have already spent, having borrowed it from themselves and it would not meet the problem of interallied debts.

On the other hand the way is now open again for an effort to reach an agreement between allies as to debts. This is what the proposal for a November conference envisages. No consideration of this question was possible at London because of the Balfour note. But the history of the London conference demonstrated that there can be no settlement of reparations which does not dispose of interallied debts.

The reception of the Balfour note, particularly in the United States, has unquestionably had a profound effect upon its joint authors, the Earl of Balfour and the prime minister. Neither can longer cherish any illusion as to the American point of view and both have come in for pretty sharp criticism at home, where the comment of Lord Grey, of Fallodon, has been generally accepted.

Grey said with great directness that the Balfour note represented a little thing done when the situation called for a big one and what was done in a little way. He advocated the cancellation of the debts owed Britain without regard to the course of the United States. Poincare's caustic response to the Balfour note indicated perfectly plainly that France would not pay her allies until Germany had paid her. And Poincare was quite as plain in his indication that France would hold Germany precisely as her creditors held her.

BRITISH LINE OF ACTION.

Assuming that there will be a conference in November, what will be the British line of action? The necessity to obtain a reduction of the total of German reparations as the first step in solution remains patent. It is transparent now that nothing can be accomplished on this line, save as the British claims upon her old allies are cut down and it is certainly just as manifest that the United States is not prepared to make things easy for Britain by cancelling British debts to us.

In the November conference, then, the British will have to use their claims upon their allies as a basis for obtaining a reduction of the claims upon Germany and chiefly of the French claims. Now, in the first place, there is not the smallest objection on the French part to writing off precisely as many shillings of money owed them by Germany as Britain will write off of French money owed her. In the second place there is no French objection to a British renunciation of the $7,000,000,000 which is the British share in the total of German reparations. Such transactions would at once eliminate nearly half of the whole reparations figure, assuming that Belgium and Italy would also make cancellations to the amount represented by British cancellations of their own indebtedness.

But this reduction would not meet the necessities. Assuming that German liabilities were left at $17,000,000,000 it is still a fact that the majority of competent witnesses agree that Germany cannot pay more than $12,500,000,000, whereas the French claims, after cancellations to balance the British cancellations, would still exceed this total materially.

France would still be in the position of having expended $7,000,000,000, of owing the United States nearly $4,000,000,000 and of having a portion of the reconstruction work to pay for, even if German payments in kind were as large as anyone could reasonably expect. It is at this point that a clash between British and French policy must be expected, again, for the British are certain to insist upon French concessions and a material reduction of French claims.

On the whole, however, it seems to me that if Germany were actually living up to the Lubersac-Stinnes agreement, six months hence French concessions in the matter of the sum total of reparations would be not only possible but likely, if it were not for a single circumstance. Lloyd George has a fixed determination to use British control of the French financial situation, that is to employ his power of cancellation to compel France to meet British ideas of disarmament. He is likely to attach to any proposal of British cancellation of French indebtedness certain conditions which neither Poincare nor any other Frenchman can for a long time to come agree to. Here, after all, will be the central point in the next Anglo-French battle.

Dispatches from London and Paris alike demonstrate that the French public is at last awakening to the fact that there must be a reduction of the sum of reparations if there is to be any payment. Always, however, an antecedent condition to such reduction with French consent has been the evidence of good faith on the German side. The Lubersac-Stinnes agreement does actually suggest such good faith; if it is lived up to it will do much to quiet French resentment and suspicion.

But whether the Lubersac-Stinnes agreement is carried out or not, France will continue to suspect Germany of planning revenge and until that suspicion has vanished, all effort in London to reduce French armies will be without avail. Ultimately each maneuver will be met with the stock response that France will reduce provided Britain offers a hard and fast treaty of alliance against any later German attack.

Lloyd George would like to use the British financial concessions as a means to obtain a political end, but the French will not see in the disarmament maneuver anything but the political. They will reduce their armies, if they have the military guarantee of a British alliance and not otherwise. They will reduce their claims against France, but not otherwise. If Britain agrees to cancel, France may very well agree to reduction beyond the total of the British cancellation, but not until the first move has been made by the British.

ALL ADVANTAGES WITH POINCARE.

So far in the great duel between Poincare and Lloyd George, all the real advantage has lain with the Frenchman. His course brought to nothing all the elaborate plans of Lloyd George for the Genoa conference. His stand on reparations and allied debts led Lloyd George into the supreme miscalculation of the Balfour note which not only wrecked the London conference but alienated American opinion to an extent which is now appreciated in Britain.

Unquestionably the compromise adopted by the reparations commission and accepted by Poincare represents British quite as much as Belgian effort. Not impossibly the Stinnes proposal also represents in some measure British prompting and it is a gain, or, more exactly, a fortunate escape for George that the failure of London was not followed by a French military march across the Rhine. But postponement does not in the least remedy the situation, that relief which is vital to British prosperity must now be sought by an agreement with France, and agreement is conditioned upon concessions.

George has, in a word, either to eat the words of the Balfour note or make some theatrical demonstration which will distract attention from what will in reality amount to mastication. In that note he announced that Britain would not cancel her claims against her allies unless the United States cancelled its claims against Britain. But the United States has said in response that it would not cancel and all of the allies have indicated that they would not pay. Moreover British comment now shows that no sensible Englishman ever expected that the allies would pay.

In reality the French situation before the world has materially improved because the French agreement to the Belgian proposal demonstrates a spirit which measureably refutes the allegation that French policy was dictated by sheer chauvinism, while the French approval of the Lubersac-Stinnes agreement tends to lend support to the idea that France really does desire to rebuild her own destroyed cities and towns rather than to ravage or annex Germany.

The gravest peril in the pathway of any adjustment remains the ambition of Lloyd George himself to achieve some shining solution, some Pan-European association, not wholly dissimilar from the league of nations of Mr. Wilson. To any such plan he finds French opposition absolutely immutable, for France demands that before Germany and her old associates shall be restored into full standing in the European family, they shall give evidence of a real change of purpose.

Lloyd George's home political situation would be greatly improved if he could score a foreign success along the lines which are advocated by his warmest supporters, many of whom are frankly Germanophile and even more of whom are by instinct and habit anti-French. Such a success would make Britain arbiter of Europe, occupying the central position in a European league and able by its vote to decide the disputes between all continental states. And it is for the mastery of Europe that Lloyd George and his associates have been playing for the past three years.

The difficulty which they have so far been unable to surmount lies in the resistance of France to a British supremacy which totally ignored French rights and interests. Little by little, too, the French have been reinforced by the little entente states, by Poland and by Belgium, all of whom have looked with apprehension at the development of British policy which quite openly envisaged the sacrifice of the interests and even the integrity of the smaller states to the larger scheme of Pan-Europeanism, with Britain the master of the situation.

So far France has brought the whole Lloyd Georgian plan to a standstill and there can be no solution of the sort Lloyd George seeks unless some compulsion can be brought upon France, and the sole obvious weapon of constraint is financial. All along George has calculated that in the end he would have American financial strength back of him in his campaign to force French military reduction. He has, both during the Washington conference and before endeavored to enlist American public opinion and rouse American criticism of what he and his associates call French militarism.

As I have said his end and aim are to reduce the French army to the point where France will no longer be able to resist British pressure or find allies in the insistence upon a continental as opposed to a British policy. So far Lloyd George has failed, but he has by no means abandoned his campaign and we are likely to have striking examples of his tenacity in the next few months before the new conference. His first and best chance lies in enlisting America. This he has always perceived and ever sough to accomplish.

MASTER OF EUROPE IF SUCCESSFUL.

Failing such assistance, however, George has still the financial weapon, from now until the conference assembles. In that time he is bound to make every effort to persuade and coerce the French to agree to reduction of armament and evacuation of German territory in return for cancellation by the British of the French debts. If he succeeds he will in fact be master of Europe, the influence of his country will once more be supreme and he can go before the British people in a general election almost certain of return to office and to power.

But it must be obvious that, this success depends almost wholly upon subordinating French views of French necessities to Lloyd George's own political interests and the fact is also obvious that any surrender by Poincare would be suicidal and his elimination from office would be even more sudden and humiliating than was that of Briand. Therefore one may expect the same obstinate resistance which has in recent months completely blocked the whole Georgian campaign and by so doing provoked the Lloyd Georgian press in London to a campaign of bitterness against France almost as pronounced as that against Germany during the war itself.

Were the case of Britain in the hands of Lord Grey, or Lord Lansdowne, even of the Earl of Balfour, assuming that he would follow the course he adopted when last in power, a settlement would be possible, a settlement between France and Britain which would preserve the entente and save the European situation. In my judgment no such settlement is possible while Lloyd George remains in control, because with the present premier foreign policy is always at the mercy of the changing emotions of an electorate. In the long debate with France and Germany, Lloyd George has been on all sides of the reparations question and of every other question. And his lightning changes have not been due to any conversion based upon the merits of the discussion but upon his reading of English public opinion.

As a consequence, British policy has lacked continuity and those who have had to deal with Britain have been unable to reach a lasting basis of adjustment. In the immediate present George has not been an unsuccessful representative of his country, on the contrary he has at Paris and since acquired for Britain the maximum of profit in every transaction where profit has been involved. The difficulty has been that on all occasions he has shown himself ready to sacrifice principle and even the legitimate interests of the other fellow and thus he has established a reputation for selfishness and even trickery which have steadily injured British prestige on the continent and in the end aroused the apprehensions of most of smaller states, who have seen George quite ready to traffic in their security and their territory to gain for himself a passing success. No better example of Georgian methods can be found than is supplied by the Balfour note, which, to serve a temporary end, deliberately undetrook to put upon American shoulders the responsibility for world chaos.

Whatever temporary advantages came to George by this manoeuvre, the resentment aroused in the United States is bound to prove an obstacle of American co-operation later. However much he strengthened his personal political fortunes in England, he certainly injured British standing in America far more. Today on the Continent, not in France alone but everywhere, there is a profound distrust of Lloyd George, which makes for trouble and prevents adjustment. No one can guess in advance what side of a question he will champion or how long he will stay with the side he first elects to support.

Now, for the moment we have escaped the obvious peril of French military action, but only for the moment. All depends now upon whether the revelations of French determination in the last crisis was sufficiently impressive to persuade German leadership that German ruin can only be avoided by German payment. So far Germany has relied upon Lloyd George to save Germany from French wrath. But Poincare is his brief tenure of office has pretty clearly demonstrated that not even British opposition can hold him back in the end, if there is no German payment.

The latest compromise settles nothing, it postpones a little the day of German destruction, which would probably involve the ruin of most of Europe. But German salvation lies in payment and nowhere else. The Lubersac-Stinnes agreement opens a way for payment, but one has to remember that the Loucheur-Rathenau agreement opened the same door, only to have it barred again by British protest. In the same way the forthcoming financial compromise reopenes the way to an ultimate disposition of inter-allied debts, but this way will also be closed, if Lloyd George endeavors to make the cancellation contingent upon French surrender to British views in the matter of armaments, or continental sacrifices of territories either to Russia or to Germany to forward Lloyd George's dream of a Pan-European association of nations, in which he retains the hope that the American proxy would be exercised by Britain at the expense of France.

Ludendorff said the other day that the German people must make up their mind that France would not suffer bankruptcy while Germany remained intact and the French army retained its present irresistible superiority. Conceivably the Lubersac-Stinnes agreement is a tardy recognition in Germany of this obvious truth. In that case the situation is hopeful, but not othewise. In the end only Germany can save herself and up to the present hour evidence of a recognition of this fundamental face in the German nation has been lacking.

Meantime the duel between Poincare and Lloyd George goes to another round and has already become the most spectacular conflict in the last half century at least. Moreover the financial conference promises even more exciting encounters and in this struggle both men will fight with their own political fortunes at stake.

The Atlanta National Bank

Atlanta as a Manufacturing Center

THE ATLANTA MANUFACTURERS' EXPOSITION to be held at the Auditorium all of this week will give the people of Atlanta an opportunity to see something of the WONDERFUL PROGRESS INDUSTRIAL ATLANTA HAS MADE.

Atlanta, unlike many industrial centers, is not dependent upon one or two lines of manufacturing that overshadow all the others, but has more than 500 factories that manufacture more than 1,000 different articles valued at $178,000,000 each year. These factories employ more than 25,000 people, who are paid in excess of $25,000,000 for each year's work.

These factories are the backbone of Atlanta's Industrial Life. Their salesmen carry THE STORY OF ATLANTA INTO HUNDREDS OF TOWNS EACH DAY, and do much more than their share toward making ATLANTA THE MARKET PLACE OF THE SOUTH, with a population of 250,000 in its metropolitan area.

Atlanta had no factories when the Atlanta National Bank was established in 1865.

Many of those doing business today have been customers of this bank from the day they opened their doors. It has been our privilege to advise and consult with them in regard to almost every phase of their business. And a most significant fact is that the ones who have made the most use of our service are the ones whose business is most successful.

DON'T FAIL TO GIVE THE MANUFACTURERS OF ATLANTA THE PLEASURE OF SHOWING YOU THE VARIETY AND THE QUALITY OF THEIR PRODUCTS.

We cordially extend the services of The Atlanta National Bank to those contemplating opening a new account, or making a change in their banking connections

MITZI IS COMING TO THE ATLANTA THEATER

Stars in "Lady Billy," Her Latest Musical Comedy Success.

An old Rumanian castle, with its haunting love story of the long ago, is the setting for "Lady Billy," the new musical comedy in which Henry W. Savage is now presenting Mitzi on tour to San Francisco. She comes to the Atlanta theater for three nights and a Saturday matinee, starting Thursday, September 21.

Mitzi's singular charm, sprightliness and drollery, which have captivated American audiences in "Sari," "Pom Pom" and "Head Over Heels," are intensified in her newest character conception—the irresistible "Lady Billy," a young Rumanian countess whose adventures take her from an old world castle to American city life, in an amazing and amusing series of guises and disguises.

"Lady Billy," which is Mr. Savage's most pretentious musical offering for the season, is an original story by Zelda Sears, who is also the author of the lyrics. The composer, Harold Levey, a young American and the protege of Victor Herbert, may also be hailed as a "Savage discovery." The sumptuous staging of "Lady Billy" is the achievement of John McKee, remembered for his novel stagings of "Madame X," "See Saw" and "Shavings." In the arrangement of dance numbers for "Lady Billy," he was aided by Julian Alfred.

According to the new Savage experiment, the "chorus girls" are superseded by an octette of girls who qualify as actresses, dancers and singers, and a quintette of special dancers. There is also a stirring male quartette. Sparkling through every scene and setting of "Lady Billy" is Mitzi. A special orchestra is carried by the company. Seats go on sale Monday morning.

De Wolf Hopper Coming.

Gilbert and Sullivan, like Shakespeare, are perennial. Throughout the world their famous light operas continue to command attention, and although forty or more years have elapsed since their creation, they are as bright and fresh and timely as though they were written yesterday. In England the outstanding success of the theatrical season is the Gilbert & Sullivan Opera company. The same condition prevails here with the added interest that the American company has at its head the distinguished comedian, De Wolf Hopper.

Carl Van Vechten, the eminent musical critic, devotes a chapter of his book, "In the Garret," to the works of Gilbert & Sullivan, and states that without doubt De Wolf Hopper is the foremost exponent of these works. His characterizations are each as clean-cut as a cameo, and as carefully drawn as a steel engraving. They are masterpieces of the theater. His Koko in the "Mikado" is a fine artistic performance; his Lord Chancellor in "Iolanthe" is a sketch of purest ray serene; his Dick Deadeye in "Pinafore," a low comedy gem; his policeman in "The Pirates of Penzance," the last word in the expression of stoicism; and his Jack Point in "Yeoman of the Guard" is a piece of acting declared by the critics to be worthy of the Mansfield.

Mr. Hopper is pleased to consider these portrayals the high-water mark of his long and eminent career and feels his greatest achievement in his leadership of a distinctively Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera company. He has distinguished associates for his company including Herbert Waterous, J. Humbird Duffey, Arthur Cunningham, Henry Kelly, Alice MacKenzie, Mernice Mershon and Winifred Anglin. They will appear in the following repertoire during their week at the Atlanta beginning a week from Monday: "The Mikado," "Iolanthe," "Pinafore," "The Yeoman of the Guard" and "The Pirates of Penzance." There is a chorus of thirty and the company carries its own orchestra, under the direction of Max Fishandler. There is a special production for each opera.

Mr. Hopper is of the belief that there is a new generation eager to learn the charm and beauty of these comic operas and that the older people will enthuse at the prospect of being able to hear this delightful music and charming humor again.

"DANCING SHOES" IS TOPLINER AT LOEW'S

Six Syncopated Dancers in Brilliant Dance Revue Head Excellent Bill.

The management of Loew's Grand theater, in opening the second week of the fall season, have selected from the many successful vaudeville acts now playing the Loew's eastern circuit, offerings of the better class for the Atlanta house and other cities in the southern group. Two long programs of vaudeville and motion pictures have been provided, an entire change of every number on the bill taking effect on Thursday.

As the headliner of the vaudeville bill for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday there will be offered "Dancing Shoes," a sextet of dancers in syncopated steps. It will be found a delightful revue, sparkling with tuneful music and with artists of a high-class executing snappy dances with grace and abandom. The act is beautifully costumed and is presented with a most elaborate display of scenery.

Dan Downing, assisted by "Buddy," is another act on the same bill that is worthy of headline honors. Dan Downing is known as "The Cheerful Pessimist" and this season is offering a skit that contains a decided surprise, one that has been most favorably commented upon by newspapers wherever he has appeared. Comedy talk, dances, songs and violin selections make a delightful fifteen minutes of entertainment.

Another novelty on the program is the offering of "Rudinoff." This accomplished artist is the creator of what is termed smoke painting and also the originator of the whistling bird pantomime. Here are two features unique in vaudeville and absolutely new on the stage at Loew's. Something different in the way of entertainment is rare in theatrical circles which, of course, makes Rudinoff's performance a valuable addition to the bill.

The balance of the bill includes Dunlevy and Chesleigh in a sparkling comedy skit and Gibson and Price in a variety of original bits, object juggling, drawing and painting are their principal means of winning applause.

Featured on the screen for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday is Alice Lake in "Kisses."

Betty's kisses had a secret ingredient, and it was this in them that brought her love and no inconsiderable worldly reward.

Mary Alden.

Steadily becoming confirmed as the "great American mother" of the screen, Mary Alden has had a rise based on artistry. Her characterizations of middle-aged women in big successful photoplays prove her versatility, she being in real life a most attractive young woman. Miss Alden came to the screen from a newspaper writer's profession in New York and San Francisco, appearing on the stage, however, before entering the films. She was first cast for a picture by D. W. Griffith to play the role of the mulatto housekeeper in "The Birth of a Nation." That built to many roles in photoplays for a large list of companies; her advance being gradual until in 1920, she supported Will Rogers in a picture. It was after this that she was more in demand than ever, and her genius consistently asserted itself. Richard Barthelmess summoned her across the continent to play the mother role in his "The Bond Boy," following her remarkably outstanding work in such films as "The Unpardonable Sin," and in "The Old Nest" in which hers was the featured role. Miss Alden is also remembered in "Milestones," and is in the cast of "The Man With Two Mothers," and recently completed work as a principal in "Notoriety," and in a production that is filmed in Porto Rico. But it is as a star in her own right that she is being presented currently in "A Woman's Woman," a Charles Giblyn production, in which her emotional ability gains its most significant opportunity.

Harry S. Northrup, who is playing the "Faro King" in the Goldwyn production of Sir Hall Caine's "The Christian," under the direction of Maurice Tourneur, had to wear nine different suits of clothes during the filming of the picture. The result is that every time Mr. Northrup passes a tailor shop he gives it a "dirty look."

Attractions at Atlanta Theater

Vaudeville and Comedy Drama

Arliss' New Role.

Versatility is the middle name of George Arliss, as all admirers of the distinguished stage and screen star agree, and consequently it will be no surprise to them to learn that his next screen offering will present him in a mood different from any of his former film characterizations. In "The Man Who Played God" from a play by Jules Eckert Goodman based on a story by Gouverneur Morris, the role is intensely emotional and at the same time more sympathetic than in any former picture presented by Arliss. The light comedy mood which was so effectively done in "The Ruling Passion" is absent except in some of the scenes, but gains force by being contrasted to extremely dramatic acting and situations. "The Man Who Played God" promises to be the most powerful story in which Arliss has worked before the camera. Advance reports say that it has a range of opportunities wider than even the best of his stage plays. In brief the story depicts the crises undergone by a man of strong character in a battle against disastrous fate, and how he gradually wins himself back to a love of life and his fellow man by the interest he discovers in the performing of kind deeds. The story is a modern one, and its action is laid in Paris and New York.

Hallowe'en Sports.

There is one town in the United States where not a single gate is found hanging in the tree-tops of the public square on the morning after Hallowe'en.

This town is Phoenixville, Pennsylvania. Hallowe'en has become the legitimate orgy day of the whole year.

Last year, for instance, more than two thousand people participated in the revels, which began soon after nightfall and lasted till midnight. The grand event of the occasion was as it is every year, a masquerade parade literally miles long which was witnessed by about seven thousand people.

There were vamps and Gipsies and Indians; there were hoboes and clowns and historical characters galore. Jeanne d'Arc was there, and it seemed to the spectators that George Washinton came by every few minutes.

A regular old-time cake-walk was given by some colored citizens. This was followed by other brilliant fancy dances, and then the street dancing became general, the seven thousand participants mingling together in the brightly lighted and decorated block which had been roped off for the occasion.

Passenger airplanes made in Holland and equipped with English motors are being operated by a German company over a distance of 780 miles, between Konigsberg, East Germany, and Moscow, Russia.

"Java Head."

"Java Head", generally conceded to be one of Joseph Hergesheimer's best stories, is to be produced as a Paramount picture by George Melford. Announcement to this effect was made this week by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president in charge of production of the Famous Players-Lasky corporation.

Mr. Hergesheimer was author of "Tol'able David," in which Richard Barthelmess scored a success. It is largely a sea picture done by Mr. Melford, in recent months lie having lately produced "Moran of the Lady Letty" and Robert Louis Stevenson's "Ebb Tide." Mr. Medford also produced "The Sheik" and "Burning Sands."

The production will be made in the east, the exteriors at Salem, Mass., and other locations and the interiors at the Paramount studios at Long Island City. Mr. Melford will take his entire producing unit to New York. Beatrice Joy, Jacqueline Logan and Raymond Hatton are among the players who will be featured. Arrangements have been made for Mr. Hergesheimer to collaborate on the continuity with Waldemar Young, who is already on his way to New York.

Does a Business Girl Make the Best Wife?

She will be able to understand her husband's attitude toward a great many things and to recognize the relation his "business" bears to his whole life far better than the wife to whom "John's office" is a rarely visited and little-known sanctum, existing principally as a place to write checks in.

Jill will sympathize with her husband's need for relaxation and appreciate the thoughtlessness of burdening him with small household worries, but she will not have a foolish awe of "John's business" as an idol to which every home interest must give way. Her own business training has given her a sane perspective, which will keep her frrom either minimizing or exaggerating the importance of "the office."

The actual business training which Jill receives should be of inestimable value when she becomes a housewife. The professions are waking up to the value of business methods, even the farmer is admitting the importance of bookkeeping, but many a home is still considered a sanctum whose shrine would be desecrated by the invasion of an account-book or a filing system. A "budget system" will have no terrors for Jill—it will seem natural.

Moreover, having had a taste of her own money, she will not be willing to accept just "what John can afford to give her" or even "a regular allowance."

Such a process certainly will not appeal to Jill. She will expect a partnership basis, and an equal knowledge, responsibility and share in all money matters from the very start.

The offering at the Forsyth this week is the Broadway success, "Scrambled Wives." A brief synopsis of the story follows:

Mary Lucile Smith is the heroine, a young girl who thinks she has a "dark and terrible past" to hide. That secret in her life is that, as a result of a perfectly innocent boarding school escapade, she had been rushed into a marriage with a boy whom she scarcely knew. Luckily, she was rescued from this embarrassing situation almost before the ceremony was completed. The marriage was quietly annulled, and Mary Lucile packed off to Europe to forget her mad prank. Coming back, she falls in love with Larry McLeod. It is a desperate case of love at first sight on both sides. Mary Lucile conceals her past from Larry and accepts an invitation to a house party at her sister's house. Who should turn up among the guests but her ex-husband, now more or less happily married to a pretty and jealous young woman. Complications begin the moment Mary Lucile crosses the threshold of the country house, and the tangle of misunderstandings goes on from one laughable scene to another, ending in a climax of rapid-fire comedy.

It is the kind of play in which the Forsyth players have made their greatest success and endeared themselves to the people of Atlanta.

Sherlock Holmes Film.

The famous Sherlock Holmes story, "The Hound of the Baskervilles," will reach the screen via the film booking offices of America. This story is one of the three which has been published in full-sized novel form and the grim mystery of the supernatural hound who appeared on the moor to herald the death of a member of the Baskerville family has delighted hundreds of thousands of readers since the first publication of Sir A. Conan Doyle's book. On the screen it is a five-reel picture.

Eille Norwood plays the role of the great detective, who in this picture remains the Sherlock of Doyle's story. No attempt is made to make him appear sentimental or involved in romance. His character is kept intact—he is always the scientist, the keen-minded criminologist, whose one subject is the ferreting out of crime. The love interest of the picture, which is regarded as essential, is supplied by a secondary couple—the young Sir Henry Baskerville and his mysterious but pretty neighbor. The story has been followed in every detail in the screen version.

Louis Wolheim, who appears briefly in "Sherlock Holmes," John Barrymore's latest screen production, which Goldwyn is releasing is a Cornell university man who was started on his stage career by the star's brother, Lionel Barrymore. He appeared with Lionel in "The Claw" and last year made a big hit as the stoker in the Provincetown Players production of "The Hairy Ape," by Eugene O'Neill. He is now touring in that play.

Whereupon Lewis decided, upon looking into the mirror, that his head did resemble an egg, in shape, due to the fact that his hair was nearly all shaved off except a little top-knot which came up to a point, giving an egg effect. But, although he looked villainous in his begrimed stoker costume, he took exception to the phrase "hard boiled."

CANARY OPERA TO BE HEADLINER AT LYRIC

Keith's Lyric enters upon the second week of its fall season Monday with some truly exellent offerings, chief among which is the Canary Opera, a bird act that departs as far from the usual animal and feathery tribe presentation as an ancient was supposed to have gone when he arrived at Dan from Beersheba.

Besides the too-domesticated parrot and probably a lame hen here and there, trained birds are rarities. The process is difficult, but usually well A well trained chorus, then, composed of voices a sweet and clear as canaries' voices—because they are canaries' voices—can be nothing but enjoyable.

Backing up this interesting headliner, to insure a good bill for the first half of the week, are other acts, worth watching when accomplished, themselves entitled to the place of honor. Bond and Wilson and company, for instance, with a one-act farce known as "Superstitions," which has to do with an undertaker and a job-hunting Ethiopian. It couldn't be anything else but good. And when you have heard the two paces of comedy that Jim and Betty Pape have to offer, you can forgive the pun.

Patrice and Sullivan are on the same bill with an offering of music, classical enough to please the most exacting and popular enough to please those not so elevated in their musical tastes. Volume of Harmony," an extemporneous musical offering in which much humor is internolated, rounds off the excellent first-half offering.

During Thursday, Friday and Saturday the patrons of this popular house will not suffer, for a bill just as good is headlined by "The Quixy Four." Taking "quixy" apart, we get "wuick-see," which suggests the pep the act possesses. Other acts on this bill are Hazel Moran with her lariat, Rialto and Lamont, the talkless boys, Lee and Mann, educating the educator, and a musical combination of Count Perrone and Miss Trix Oliver which promises rich melody from splendid baritone and soprano voices.

"Bella Donna."

"Bella Donna," Robert Hichen's famous story, has been chosen as the first picture Pola Negri will make in this country. Announcement to this effect has just been made by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice-president in charge of production of the Famous Lasky-Players corporation. At the same time he stated that production work would be carried on in California, rather than in the east as at first had been anticipated.

The famous Polish screen star is scheduled to leave for this country on the Majestic on September 6, arriving in New York about a week later and spending enough time there to see the principal sights of the city. She will then start for California and will begin production work, it is expected, about September 23.

Like the equally famous "Garden of Allah," by Mr. Hichens, the story of "Bella Donna" is located in Egypt. George Fitzmaurice, who recently completed the production of "To Have and to Hold" and who did "Peter Ibbetson" for Paramount, will direct Miss Negri.

As a play, "Bella Donna" created a sensation when first produced in this county about ten years ago by Charles Frohman with Alla Nazimova in the title role. The type is believed to be well suited to Miss Negri.

A cable just received from R. A. Walsh, directing "Passions of the Sea," in Tahiti, for Goldwyn, says that remarkable battle scenes in which hordes of natives took part have been made as the climax to the picture.

"NICE PEOPLE" COMES TO HOWARD THEATER

A revue of American fashions from the days of the Pilgrims to the present! This is one of the distinctive pictorial features of William de Mille's Paramount production of "Nice People," which will be seen at the Howard theater next week.

William de Mille has struck the keynote of today most happily in "Nice People," which comes to the Howard this week. The modern jazz spirit which pervades our times as well as the possible remedy therefor, are clearly and most entertainingly depicted.

Without preaching in the least the picture demonstrates that the boys and girls of today have too much leisure for indulgence in what may be easily developed into harmful social relationships. The theme of it stands out clearly throughout without intruding itself to the detriment of the story.

Wallace Reid's role presents him in the light of a good samaritan, his mental outlook cleansed of its possible previous acceptance of such things as the public accepts, as a result of the great war. Bebe Daniels expresses the product of the jazz age flawlessly and her experience proves that those who accept freedom up to a given point will turn upon anyone who oversteps that point.

Conrad Nagel is a man of the same type who, once befuddled with liquor, becomes a menace to the woman in his company. It is an almost perfect portrayal.

An important sequence of scenes in which Wallace Reid, Bebe Daniels, Conrad Nagel, Julia Faye, Eve Sothern, William Boyd and Bertram Johns were the principals was played against the background of these guests. The stage setting used presented a Japanese garden.

"Nice People" was adapted for the screen by Clara Beranger, scenarist of "Miss Lulu Bett" and "Bought and Paid For," from the stage play by Rachel Crothers.

The prologue, a Leide production for the coming week of "Nice People," will be featured by Reily Akin, soprano, in the grand opera selection, "Poor Butterfly," accompanied by the "Howard Ladies." The overture, "Nice Music," is a combination of popular selections especially arranged by Enrico Leide with Howard Orchestra, Enrico Leide and Lloyd Bemus, conducting.

'ORPHANS OF STORM' COMES TO ALAMO 2

Can any woman really love more than one man?

It is commonly claimed, particularly in the past, that man's weakness is his leaning toward more than one woman—but the saving of the world has been that women are differant.

A famous nobleman of France emulated the deplorable example set by Marc Antony and the other powerful men of history in their weakness.

This nobleman lived in luxury. A palace, perfumed fountain of wine, in which bathed beautiful girls. He was always in love with love.

Going to Paris one afternoon he saw a girl. A wistful blonde. He learned her name, it was Henriette Girard, a little country girl going with her sister to Paris. He ordered his servants to follow her. In the dark streets of Paris they stole her. They brought her to his palace amid the pagan, sensuous splender of a midnight orgy.

As the little innocent flower was about to be torn in the maelstrom from which she could never return, she was saved by a well known young-aristocrat-about town. Whose heart was touched by her plight. One of the sweetest love stories in history began between these two—the poor but beautiful girl and the great noble in the greatest kingdom—France.

Marie Prevost, who is said to be very popular with Mexican film fans, recently entertained General Serrano, the secretary of war of Mexico, and General Jose Juan Mendez, upon the occasion of their visit to the Warner Brothers studios in Los Angeles. The Mexican officials have decided that the motion picture business should be given a foothold in their country, so they sent the generals to the Hollywood colony to find out all about picture production.

BIG LAUGH PICTURE ON RIALTO SCREEN

"In the spring," says the poet, "a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love." But the trouble seems to be that every spring the young man's thoughts turn to love all right, but each time it is a different girl. Such a condition is the basis for "Love Is an Awful Thing," a riotous farce comedy, starring Owen Moore, and which has been selected as the shining attraction at the Rialto theater for Better Films "Go to the Movies" week.

"Love Is an Awful Thing" is described as one of the cleverest screen farces of the year, and those who saw it at a special screening this past week were highly enthusiastic. The story concerns a very righteous young man who is about to be married and on the eve of his matrimonial plunge is confronted by a very determined sweetheart who he believed had long since passed out of his life. With the aid of an "I'll fix it for you" friend, he poses as a married man with a family. Of course this pose is assumed only for the benefit of his former sweetheart, but when his fiance accidentally catches him in his new guise the fun begins in earnest.

The outcome is a decided surprise, but it is not reached until every character in the picture has contributed to the merriment. Owen Moore far exceeds his portrayal in "Reported Missing" in this new farce and is ably supported by a consistently good cast, including Marjorie Daw, Kathryn Perry (Mrs. Moore), Alice Howell, Snitz Edwards, Arthur Hoyt and Douglas Carter, a clever colored comedian of the Bert Williams type.

A second feature of this program will be one of the most unusual short subjects yet screened. It is entitled "How to Grow Thin," and while actually showing how anyone can reduce 8 pounds a month for five months, it accomplishes its purpose by means of a clever little story, entertaining and humorous. The latest International News will also be shown.

Charles Gesser, conductor of the Rialto orchestra, will contribute a violin solo in "O Sole Mio," played in its original form and also in its new popular waltz version. The Rialto Melody Artists provide a light and popular musical setting for the feature.

Buffalo Bill has been the idol of boys for a generation. To them he presonifies strength, heroism, bravery, manliness and the rugged spirit of the west.

Because this beloved character was such an ideal type of American manhood, Universal has filmed an epic in history embodying the most active and romantic days of his life. "In the Days of Buffalo Bill" is the name of this educational entertainment which will have its first showing at the Alpha theater.

During the unfolding of the drama the steady progress of the building of the Union Pacific is shown graphically. The golden spike at Promontory Point, Utah, is driven to commemorate the completion of the first transcontinental railroad uniting eastern and western United States with bonds of steel.

Buffola Bill with his bravery and knowledge of frontier life proves himself a hero to many families who find themselves unexpectedly in the toils of their blood-thirsty Indian neighbors.

Art Acord, popular cowboy star, heads the serial and in the role of Art Taylor, son of the plains and crack rider of the Pony Express, does some of the finest work of his career. He is supported by Dorothy Wood, an attractive blonde ingenue, Duke Lee, William Moran, Joseph Hazelton, Burt Frank, Chief Lightfoot, Pat Harmon Burton C. Law, Otto Nelson, Jim Corey and others.

"'Roasted' would be a better word," he explained, as he displayed a coat of sunburn on his shaved head due to having worked for two days bareheaded on the deck of a schooner.

"BROKEN BLOSSOMS" AT CRITERION ALL WEEK

"Broken Blossoms" is one of the most tragic and most beautiful pictures that has ever reached the screen. It is a drama of wistfulness, of ungracious satire, of love and of furious reality. It is reversing the old order which showed the yellow man in a heathen state of revulsion and the white man filled in contrast with brotherly love.

"Broken Blossoms" is tremendous in its cruelty, yet through it all runs a thread of beauty which binds the yellow man into the fabric of he plot.

He comes from a land filled with a mystic race who worship their gods in a mystic way. But whatever the fruits of their religion its principle is goodness. And the yellow man comes to the home of his white brother with youth's enthusiasm to spread that goodness. The author selected the Limehouse Lights district of London in which to have him loose his illusions.

There cruelty stalked rampant and was epitomized in the person of Battling Burrows, a prize fighter. Wistfulness, pity, horror and agony are woven into a marvelous pattern by Lillian Gish as a waif-child, daughter of Battling Burrows.

The kindergarten does not mean mere technical training for the years between the nursery and the school, for it has a deeper insight into life's most essential needs. It is to begin at the very beginning of the child's ability to do his part well, however small it may be.

It works effectually toward the attainment of the skill which makes a man master at his work, whether it be shoe cobbling or composing a symphony. The strongest of all appeals which kindergarten handwork makes is to the creative instinct of the child. He is constantly given opportunities to transform or to create in his own childish fashion and thus to come slowly but surely into the realization of his own creative power. This is the greatest and richest gift that man possesses!

The National Kindergarten association, 8 West Fortieth street, New York city, is working to secure kindergartes for te four million children being deprived of this educational advantage. If you are interested in the establishment of a kindergarten in your community, write for full information, literature and advice.

"I AM THE LAW" IS STRAND ATTRACTION

Blue-Blooded Story of the Northwest Presented With Strong Cast.

"I Am the Law," a blue-blooded story of virile and scintillating action, laid in that god-forsaken land of barren whiteness and the snow drifts of the northwest, where the derelicts of humanity drift to make their last gold strike, where race or creed is forgotten in the mad rush for the precious yellow metal—there in that country is laid the setting of a powerful photo-drama that comes to the Strand theater this week, heralded as greater in story and cast that any other production that has come to this city in a decade.

Brimful of action, sparkling with scenes of wondrous splendor, and enacted by an all-star cast that bids fair to rank with the greatest aggregations of movie stars ever assembled, "I Am the Law" tells the story of the northland—the country north of 54 degrees latitude, where it's fifty odd below, where the wastelands of civilization harbor a law of their own—there in that region of blasted hopes and blighted morality is placed the setting of a gripping story that will hold you enthralled as it has held thousands of others.

Hobart Bosworth has stopped work temporarily on his own productions in order to play the lead in Marshall Neilan's first picture in association with Goldwyn, "The Strangers Banquet," a screen adaptation of the story by Don Byrne.

Kate Lester, who is "Mom" in "Remembrance," a photodramatic study of American family life by Rupert Hughes, long has been known as the "grande dame" of the stage and screen. She has appeared in many Goldwyn pictures.

"PRISONER OF ZENDA" AT THE METROPOLITAN

The Rex Ingram production, "The Prisoner of Zenda," based on Sir Anthony Hope's famous novel, is the offering at the Metropolitan this week. The feature was secured as a special attraction for better films week and received the most flattering endorsement from the Atlanta better films committee after that body enjoyed a private advance showing of the picture.

The entire program for the week is in keeping with this offering. With a novelty overture showing the source of inspiration found by many composers of present-day hits, with the renditions, both classical and popular, played by different soloists and groups in the orchestra, Buel B. Risinger opens his second week with the Metropolitan Symphony orchestra.

From fringes of New England whiskers to a monocle and pirate's boots is the latest transition of Theodore Roberts, the Paramount favorite. After finishing work in "The Old Homestead" he began playing the role of "Captain Morgan Pring," a semi-piratical trader in the South seas in Thomas Meighan's latest Paramount picture, "The Man Who Saw Tomorrow."

Wesley Barry, who recently completed "Little Heroes of the Street," the second picture made by Harry Rapf for the Warner Brothers, will shortly start on another personal appearance tour throughout the country.

Someone called Mitchell Lewis, playing the heavy in Irvin V. Willat's production for Paramount, "On the High Seas," a "hard boiled egg."

Apparently some people think a careful driver is one who toots his horn to let the train knew he is approaching the crossing.

After all these years of effort the porcupine is the only creature nature has developed with proper equipment for a pedestrian.

"If I Were Queen."

The mythical kingdom of Kosnia, a tiny principality in the mountain fastnesses of the Balkans, is the scene of Ethel Clayton's first picture for release through the film booking offices. The production, which was adapted from the magazine story, "The Three Cornered Kingdom," by DeVernet Rabell, will be released under the title of "If I Were Queen."

"If I Were Queen" was directed by Wesley Ruggles and gives Miss Clayton a supporting cast with which includes Warner Baxter, Victory Bateman, Murdock MacQuarrie, Genevieve Blinn and Andree Lejon.

Miss Clayton has never had the opportunity to appear to such picturesque advantage as in "If I Were Queen." She plays the part of an American girl whose friendship for the princess of Kosnia, formed during their schooldav period in Paris, brings her again to the little kingdom, a relic of the days of heraldry and medievel chilvalry, where she becomes involved in the most romantic and adventuresome circumstances that ever befell an American girl in foreign lands.

Charleston, S. C., has one of the safest and most commodious harbors in the United States.

Loew's Grand To Show Alice Lake In Comedy Film

"Kisses" tells the story of a young college girl who proves equal to a debt brought on by an unwise business policy of her father.

Her business venture is not entirely a path of roses. Disillusionment of the bitterest kind comes to her when her lover, to whom she has become engaged, breaks off their troth when he learns that the death of Betty's father has left her almost penniless. But, instead of the fortune-hunting lover, Betty finds the real thing in the man who has stood by her.

Harry Myers lends strong support to Miss Lake in the role of Bill Bailey, a typical American go-getter, who aids Bett; in the realization of her ambition. Other important members of the cast are Edward Connelly, Mignon Anderson, Dana Todd, Edward Johnson, John MacKinnon and Eugene Pouyet.

"Kisses" is a Metro release, written by June Mathis from a story by May Tully. It is a Maxwell Karger production. The art and technical direction was Joseph Candler's, and the photography was by Allan Siegler.

Louise Fazenda, the former Mack Sennett comedy star, and Jimmy Morrison, who was featured in Vitagraph pictures for six years, have been engaged to appear in the Warner Brothers film version of F. Scott Fitzgerald's novel, "The Beautiful and Damned."

Production of the Charles G. Norris novel, "Brass," has been started by Harry Rapf at the Warner Brothers coast studios, with Marie Prevost in the leading role and Sidney Franklin as director.

Smallpox is on the increase in the United States.

William de Mille has broken the custom which has almost become fixed with him—that of doing all his photographing in the studio. Recently he went on location twice in one week while doing scenes in "Clarence," Booth Tarkington's story which Clara Beranger adapted and which Mr. de Mille is doing for Paramount. Wallace Reid, Agnes Ayres, May McAvoy, Kathlyn Williams and others are in the cast.

That fancier who says the dog is now a recognized inmate of our best families probably means the hot dog.

His Story is History

BECAUSE this man lived, the destiny of the world was changed.

Thrones have fallen. Maps have been re-drawn. Men have followed strange new beliefs.

It all happened in our own generation. We have seen new history made .... because of a man named Wilhelm Hohenzollern.

And now this man has written the chapters of this new history.

From his place of exile in Holland, the man who was once an emperor, with a dream of world-power, has given his story to the world.

A prejudiced account it is, ... of course, ... written from the point of view of German imperialism. It is bitter at times. It reveals fantastic ideas. .... Here and there it echoes a note of regret over the "times that have been."

Throughout the course of this 80,000-word narrative you will observe the fallen monarch—the world-figure who failed in his ambition.

Few have read the Ex-Kaiser's manuscript, but those who have pronounce it a most absorbing narrative of German history, politics and war operations.

You will be one of the first to read The Ex-Kaiser's Memoirs. You will find it easy to read—in installment form. It is history—very interesting history. You cannot afford to miss reading it.

How to be Graceful

The most graceful body on earth is the little girl. She is perfectly natural. Up to date she has acquired no mannerisms. She is not yet self-conscious.

To be graceful one must be perfectly natural. The most natural walk is that of the woman whose body is not tilted out of balance by high heels, but whose shoes are so comfortable and so properly shaped that she walks with no thought of her shoes or her feet.

A beauty specialist wrote as follows:

"Grace in walking and dancing bespeaks perfect foot comfort. You simply cannot be lithe and supple in your movements, light-footed, sure-footed, when your feet hurt you! Instinctively you try to save the painful member and the effect makes rigidity and awkwardness of the whole body. The only perfectly comfortable foot is the foot that can be absolutely forgotten, once it is dressed, ready to carry you where you want to go."—Buffalo Courier.

which are good looking. Following the natural lines of the foot, with good heels rightly placed, room for the toes, a flexible arch which harmonizes with the flexibility of the human foot, these shoes are so well adapted to the needs of woman's foot that we class them as a substantial aid to the acquirement of grace and happiness.

Friday afternoon, September 15, was the first regular fall meeting of the Atlanta Chapter D. A. R. Constitution day falling on Sunday the seventeenth. Celebration of this day was included in the mid-monthly meeting. Mrs. Charles Davis, regent, presided.

Splendid reports were made by the regent and following officers and chairmen: Mrs. Whiteford Russell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. George Hope, treasurer; Mrs. James Logan, librarian; Mrs. George Breitenbucher, house chairman; Mrs. Charles Love, press chairman, and Mrs. Robert Andoe, chairman of the old roads and trails committee.

Mrs. Ando said in part, that authentic testimony has been secured to establish a part of the Hightower trail, which has hitherto been in doubt.

This is one of the most important Cherokee paths. Its entire route can now be established on the map.

Mrs. Andoe attended the Forestry convention in Macon in June and after a brief presentation of the value to the state of preserving the route of the federal road and Jackson trail, secured the passage of resolutions endorsing and pledging co-operation in this movement.

A rising vote of thanks was given Mrs. Andoe by the chapter for the splendid and painstaking work she has done.

Regrets were expressed at the absence of Mrs. Edwin Stewart, recording secretary; Mrs. Charles Rice, chairman of the board, and Mrs. J. M. High, vice chairman, who were unable to be present because of illness.

Among the many fine achievements of the chapter reported by the regent were the thorough overhauling of Craigie House and the purchase of two bronze tablets to be hung on walls, these will be unveiled in October.

After making her splendid report the regent presented to the chapter flags of the original thirteen states. These flags are beautifully arranged in wheel-like form around the chandelier in center of room. The chapter arose in a body in appreciation of the valuable and appropriate gift.

The members of the chapter were asked to give $1 for the manual and for furnishing Georgia room in Washington.

Resolutions on the deaths of Mrs. W. P. McCollough, Mrs. L. C. Mathews and Mrs. Edward Charbonniet, were read by Mrs. B. F. Ulmer and Mrs. Howard McCall.

Mrs. Eli Thomas, state chairman for marking historic spots, asked that the chapter take some action for marker on Dixie highways.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, Mrs. Frances Whiteside gave a brilliant address on the Constitution. Concluding with the following words: "We may well style our Constitution the most remarkable document, or bill of right the world has ever known. A Constitution under which our country has grown in one hundred and thirty-three years from a population of three millions to one hundred billions. Kingdoms have fallen, dynasties have changed but we have held our own and are today second to no world power."

Brenau College Will Open This Week

The plans for the opening of Brenau college on the 19th of September are rapidly being completed. The opening this fall finds many new improvements, and a splendid student body is expected to arrive on September 18. The students for this year are representatives of practically every state in the union, and the prospects for a banner year is in view.

The opening exercises will be marked by an address to the student body and faculty by Dr. H. J. Pearce, president of the college. The calendar for the first week contains many recitals and social affairs for the entertainment of the students. An organ recital by Professor Almon W. Vincent will be the first of the series and will be given on Wednesday evening in the Auditorium. On Thursday evening Professor Otto W. G. Pfefferkorn will give a delightful program.

Perhaps the greatest interest is centered in the annual reception which is given to the new students by the members of the Y. W. C. A. This is in the nature of a "Get Acquainted" party and always proves to be a happy occasion.

Many new improvements have been made during the summer. The first is the erection of the Y. W. C. A. This building which is an addition to the Simmons Memorial building will be one of the most beautiful and artistic of the lovely group of buildings which beautify the campus. White Georgia marble and white brick made it unsually attractive. The first floor will be an addition to the library, giving much needed space for that department. The second and third floors will be given over to a chapel primarily for the use of the Young Women's Christian association.

Another improvement of more than usual interest is the remodeling of the lake at the Brenau park. The lake is designed after the artistic lakes of Japan. Lovely islands have been made and are connected with small, circular bridges. On the large island in the center of the lake is a real Japanese pergoda and a Torii gate. At the north end of the lake is a boathouse, and quaint canoes are in readiness for those who enjoy the sport.

Miss Clayton Is Hostess at Bridge.

Y. W. C. A. Gym Offers Varied Opportunities

When the gymnasium of the Young Women's Christian association, Peachtree Arcade, opens October 2, Atlanta's feminine element will find there classes for school girls, business women, matrons, children's classes in aethetic dancing, reducing classes, basketball and organized recreation for all. Again Miss Lucy Marvin Adams will be health director and Dr. Lydia Hauck, consulting physician. Miss Adams will teach all classes straight Swedish gymnastics.

Registration for membership in the gymnasium opens at Y. W. C. A. headquarters, Peachtree Arcade, September 18, and continues until the opening day, October 2. The plan of registration is easily followed: the applicant goes to the "Y" office, talks over with the office secretary the schedule and prices of gymnasium classes. She pays her fee according to the class that she wishes to join She is told that she must have the usual athletic costume for the gymnasium, middy blouses, bloomers, tennis shoes or slippers.

If she wishes to talk over her physical condition before deciding upon which class she should join, she must see Miss Adams, health director. All members of the gymnasium are required to have a regular medical examination, free of charge, by the gymnasium's consulting physician, Dr. Lydia Hauck. Dr. Hauck will meet applicants at the Y. W. C. A. or in her private office, by appointment.

The schedule and fees of classes follow: The first term is from October 2, to January 20. The second term is from January 22 to April 28. The year is from the opening in October to April 28.

Schedule of Classes.

Monday and Thursday:
3 to 4—School Girls' gymnasium class.
5:30 to 6:30—Business women's gymnasium class.
6:30 to 7—Basketball.
7 to 8—Business women's gymnasium class.

Tuesday and Friday:
9:30 to 10:30—Matrons' gymnasium class.
11 to 12—Reducing class.
5:30 to 7—Basketball.
7 to 8—Recreation open to all Y. W. C. A. club members.

Wednesday—No classes.

Saturday:

Basketball is free to members of gymnasium classes and clubs. Non-members, 50 cents. Basketball will be taught in all gymnasium classes. Health examinations and talks on hygiene will be given to all classes.

Lockers are $1 each. 50 cents is for the locker fee and 50 cents is for the key. The 50 cents for the key is refunded when the key is returned.

Class Details.

On Monday afternoon, October 2, promptly at 3 o'clock, Miss Adams will blow the whistle for the first meeting of the school girls' gymnasium class. This is the first regular class for school girls that has never been included in the gymnasium schedule and has been organized for this year at the request of a large group of Atlanta's mothers. The work for the young girls will be mostly corrective, with stress placed upon correct posture and breathing; foot exercises will be given to correct the weaknesses that school girls are developing by wearing shoes that do not fit their feet. Much educational foot and health instruction will be given by Miss Adams to the growing girls.

Business Women's Classes: For this year, two classes will be held for business women. The first class will be out of the gymnasium before it is time for the second class to assemble. In this way crowded conditions in dressing rooms will be avoided.

Matrons' Class: Matrons will have morning classes at an hour that will not interfere with their home duties. Both business women's classes and matrons have recreation along with their regular gymnastic work.

Reducing Class: Any woman who desires to join the reducing class will be given, by telephoning Miss Adams at the Y. W. C. A., the names of former members of such classes, in order to get definite information of what the reducing course has done for them. Miss Adams guarantees to reduce each member 20 pounds in three months, provided her directions of exercising and dieting are followed. It is asserted by Miss Adam that the course is not strenuous, and is recommended by many of Atlanta's leading physicians.

Basketball: The Y. W. C. A. basketball team, playing boy's rules, holds the city championship for 1922. This year they will be strong defenders for their title. Girls who are interested in the game, are invited to call at the Y. W. C. A. office for registration. All basketball members are required to stand a physical examination before entrance for which a fee of 50 cents is charged.

Aesthetic dancing: No regular dancing classes for young women will be taught this year in the gymnasium. The dancing classes have been sacrificed in order to have more time in the gymnasium for recreation for all girls. Girls who desire to take aesthetic dancing are requested to communicate with Miss Adams.

Children's Classes.

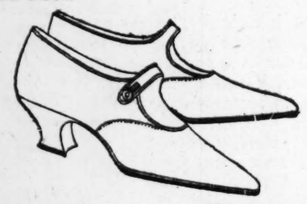

Children's classes in aesthetic dancing will be taught following last year's schedule. The older little girls in the class from 11 to 12 o'clock will be given gymnastic work, also aesthetic dancing, and again they will have their basketball team to be coached by Miss Adams.

Brilliance Will Mark Sulgrave Reception

The visit of the Sulgrave party in Atlanta this week will give the social calendar for a brief time a brilliance which will have to look for precedent to world war times, when world leaders in war, diplomacy, letters, came on war-time missions; or farther back when Atlanta has entertained presidents, and men of affairs like Andrew Carnegie, or celebrities in letters like John Burroughs or James Whitcomb Riley.

Fetes, municipal and purely social, or, as in Washington, diplomatic, have marked the tour of the Sulgrave mission in this country, while they on their part are leaving a trail of friendly gifts—the busts of Edmund Burke, of William Pitt, of James Bryce and words of international kindliness.

Here in Atlanta formal and informal entertaining is planned to provide the visitors a contact which will be appropriately impressive from an official standpoint, and then through a bit of hospitality in Atlanta homes, show the delegates from England, Australia and Canada the home side of American life.

In the group of visitors will be Sir Charles Wakefield, Bart., former lord mayor of London, donor of statutes of Pitt, Burke and Bryce to the American people, and Lady Wakefield, Sir Arthur Adlington Haworth, Bart., M. P., president Manchester Chamber of Commerce, M. C. Mansfield college, Oxford, junior lord of the treasury, etc., and Lady Haworth; Harold Spender, editor, author, etc.; Sir William Letts, Bart.; Harris S. Perris, Esq., publicist and director British Sulgrave, secretary Watson chair American history foundation; Hon. Lucien Turcette Pecaud, governor leader, Canadian house of commons, and Madame Pecaud; Lieutenant-Governor and Madame MacCallum Grant, of Nova Scotia, representing the Dominion of Canada, and the Hon. D. B. Edwards, acting high commissioner for the commonwealth of Australia to the United States.

There will be from 20 to 22 in the party; Andrew B. Humphrey, secretary of Sulgrave, will accompany the party throughout its itinerary, and Miss Ethel Ames, chairman of the executive committee of the women's committee, will be a member of the delegation as far as Atlanta.

Two official entertainments will give the formal welcome. A luncheon at Druid Hills club will include only the visitors and the local reception committee, since the luncheon will interrupt an automobile tour of the interesting points in and around the city. A reception and banquet at Piedmont Driving club at night, when covers will be laid for several hundred diners, will give civic, social, and business Atlanta an opportunity to welcome the visitors and reciprocate their message of good feeling.

Arriving on Monday night, too late for more than a greeting from the reception committee, they will be taken to the Georgian Terrace, their headquarters until their departure Wednesday morning. Breakfast at the Terrace Tuesday will be followed by a formal call on Mayor Key at the city hall and on Governor Hardwick at the capitol, and then an automobile trip to points of interest including Stone mountain.

In the afternoon a brief visit at Joseph Habersham Memorial hall will be followed by stops at the beautiful homes of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Maddox and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Grant for a glimpse of southern homes and for a cup of tea.

The banquet will be the brilliant climax.

Elizabeth Mather Social News.

The Elizabeth Mather entered upon it ninth session on Tuesday, September 12. A goodly number of new students greeted the old members of the student body and several new teachers. The two largest departments this year are the kindergarten training and art classes. Miss Hanna has large classes in French and in mathematics. The psycholoogy class under Dr. Loveridge remains the largest in numbers as it has for the last three years.

Dean Hatfield has reorganized the work into three term groups, each term to last approximately twelve weeks. She feels that the factulty is the strongest one that she has directed during her regime at the Elizabeth Mather.

Two of the most interesting members of the student body are Mrs. Douglass Lyle, of College Park, and Mrs. Eudora, of Fitzgerald, both of whom are in the kindergarten training courses.

Miss Morel's girls in water color work have a good start on their pictures and anticipate good work through the fall. This is the first time a class in water color has begun its work at the opening of the term.

Mrs. McVey's girls in domestic science are taking preparatory scientific work before their laboratory practice begins.

Mrs. Satterlee will be here to greet the kindergarten children on Tuesday morning, September 19, at 9 o'clock.

Chinese Woman Visits Atlanta.

An unusually interesting visitor in Atlanta recently was Miss Wan Chuck, a talented and brilliant Chinese woman who has her D. S. degree from Columbia university and is returning at an early date to China to conduct a government school.

She was a guest during her brief stay in Atlanta at the boarding home of the Y. W. C. A., but her entertainment was altogether in the hands of the Chinese colony of Atlanta. Her mission here was in the interest of a hospital, the funds for which are being raised by another Chinese woman and student of Columbia university, Miss Shew, the hospital to be built in connection with the government school with which Miss Chuck will be associated. Miss Chuck went from Atlanta to Augusta, where she had speaking dates.

"The Barefoot Boy"—A New Song.

J. Colton Lynes is the composer of the music and Miss Lucy B. Daniell of the verses of a charming new song, "The Barefoot Boy," now on sale in Atlanta from a Philadelphia publishing house.

The picture of Col. Lynes' grandson, Carlos Lynes, Jr., with barefeet and fishing tackle is an appropriate detail of the cover design of the "human interest" song and the wild flowers and the butterflies which figure in its out door atmosphere are likewise reflected.

General Shanks Presents Flag To Joseph Habersham, D.A.R.

The presentation of the national United States army, to the Joseph Habersham chapter, D. A. R., was a most impressive ceremony, and took place Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock on the terrace of Habersham memorial hall on East Fifteenth street. Dr. J. Sprole Lyons, chaplain of the chapter, made the prayer of invocation.

The interesting program was arranged by Mrs. H. Clay Moore, chairman of programs, who introduced General Shanks, and in a brief and appropriate talk told of the honor and pleasure she felt in presenting the distinguished donor of the flag to the chapter members.

Mrs. Clarke, Regent.

Mrs. Christine Clarke, regent of the chapter, received the colors from General Shanks, and she said "It is a great pleasure to have the privilege of receiving this beautiful and hallowed emblem, the flag of our free country. Our hearts swell with joy as it floats on high. To us, it speaks at once of aspirations and achievements. It stands to us for memory and hope. It heralds the valor and sacrifices of our revolutionary flag by General David C. Shanks, fathers, as well as the heroism and devotion of our sons, who have so recently gone forth under its folds to victory. We promise to love and to reverence it, for honor is woven in every thread. Planted here at Habersham Hall, a memorial to the heroes of seven wars, it will ever express a glorious history. In the name of the Joseph Habersham chapter, D. A. R., we thank you General Shanks, and assure you that this banner which you have given us, shall be displayed, and that each day, as it floats to the breeze, many kindly thoughts will be wafted from Habersham hall to you, our friend."

It seemed most fitting that to Mrs. William Lawson Peel, founder of the chapter, was bestowed the honor of raising the flag on the pole which stood on the sidewalk in front of the hall. She was escorted to her post by General Shanks, and during the ceremony attending the 22nd Infantry band, from Fort McPherson, played "The Star Spangled Banner."

Captain Broyles Talks.

Captain Richard J. Broyles, who served in the world war in the seventh division, and was overseas for eleven months, and wounded in action, was the orator of the occasion. His address was as follows: "By reason of its all inclusive and supremely idealistic significance, a nations flag should be its dearest symbol. There is no honorable and proper phase of the national life, but finds in its flag, a symbol of protection. There is no ideal of civic righteousness, or political defense, but catches its gleam of hope for its nurture and fulfillment, in the suggestive power of the flag.

"The influence of the Stars and Stripes, while the flag is being raised, inspires hope and teaches us what it means to be United States citizens. Yet, why so cherish a bit of highly-colored cloth, attached to a pole, and swung aloft in the breeze. It is the symbol of the nations life and glory. In its color imagery, we find a story of our peoples sorrows and our peoples joys, our victory in war, our achievements in peace. We behold there a symbol of the nations purposes and the nations dreams, with the wholesome ideals that underlie these. It was a fitting circumstance that a representative of the army should give to a group of the nations most loyal and patriotic women, the nations dearest symbol. In the gift, the womanhood of the country, and the army meet and understand. No worthier group of our people could receive this our flag, from so distinguished a soldier! Wars in the past were unnecessary. Let the leaders of the future make the flag stand for one of peace and love."

Mrs. Bruce Carr Jones Points Faults in School System

Mrs. Bruce Carr Jones, president of the Georgia branch, National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations, has given in the following forceful and interesting article her answer to The Constitution's query, "What is the matter with our schools, and the pupils they turn out?"

Mrs. Jones has discussed three concrete points, the wrongs to be found in the present system of education, and concludes with the function of the Parent-Teacher associations. .

Three Points.

Her answer follows:

"Scientists estimate it has taken 500,000 years to build our civilization. Realizing this, we should vow to do something definite in our lives to increase and strengthen this, our civilization. But we find that only about 5 per cent of our people can be counted upon for service. Training in the duties of citizenship and parenthood is what is needed, if we are to pay the debt we owe to civilization.

"The goal of child life should be happiness. This does not mean simply amusement and pleasure, but happiness through useful living. Children must be taught that service to fellow man is the basis for true happiness, and that money can bring happiness only as it is received as an equivalent for service. Let us teach our children that work is not an affliction, but a blessing.

"Secondly: We are too cowardly to confront the problem of the multiplication of the feeble-minded. School laws are a waste of time unless, by means of intelligence tests, the students are found capable of grasping the benefits of these laws. We are trying, in our schools, to make silk purses out of sows' ears. Out of 100,000,000 population it has been found that one-tenth never go beyond the 10-year age, while over half never acquire an intelligence over 14 years. Why try to force upon so many an education which they cannot grasp? Let us give them something they can do and be happy in doing. The trouble with education is that it lays too much stress upon 'the three R's,' to the utter neglect of teaching any kind of morality which will stand students in good stead in after life. Training of parenthood should begin in the schools.

"Third: It is said that the general standard of the American intellect has deteriorated. We are accused of having a 'vaudeville mind.' In vaudeville each act is a separate amusement. There is no continuity between any of them, and we quit thinking when we go in. The modern American mind is like that. It is easily mastered by prejudice, tradition, propoganda and sensationalism. People seem to have no mental discrimination, and the politicians can count on us for forgetting our critical faculties most any time. Our educational systems feature and emphasize to the liberal mind—to look in all things for the other man's point of view.

Parent-Teacher Clubs.

"The Parent-Teacher association has become one of the most powerful factors in school development,first, by bringing about an intelligent co-operation between teacher and parent, resulting in educational teamwork; second, by spreading broadcast a knowledge of the aims and methods of our schools, thus creating a greater public interest in education; third, by awakening the public, even those citizens not personally interested in schools, to a realization of what towns and cities must do for our children, how many and what kind of buildings, what salaries are necessary to secure efficient teachers, and what money must be appropriated for playgrounds to obtain the necessary playtime for our boys and girls, resulting in community betterment.

"The problem today is not so much the boy and girl problem as it is the failure of the parent to understand the boy and girl. The Parent-Teacher association fully realizes that we must adapt our homes, our schools, our churches to the activity of the young people of today and enter more into those activities with them. Better trained parenthood is the crying need of this day."

Our School System; What It Lacks

When Mrs. Bruce Carr Jones, president of the state parent-teacher associations, was asked for her answer to the universally mooted question, What is the matter with our schools? she answered as few analysts do—constructively. She pointed out the trouble, and she proposed a remedy.

The editor of the parent-teacher page takes pleasure, in today's resumption of this department with the opening of the schools, in presenting Mrs. Jones' excellent treatment of a question that must be as vital to parents and teachers as to heads of educational systems and pedagogical theorists.

The special attention of the readers of the page is directed to Mrs. Jones' definition of happiness. Contrary to the prevalent views of the day, it does not lie in mere pleasure or amusement. Its avenue is service.

Equally valuable is her second point. A man in his maturity of years is the product of his youth. So also is a woman.

And finally, the mind that has earned its right to live, is not self-centered. It has attained vision.

Happiness in service; the deepening of the soul along with the training of the mind; the resourcefulness of the brain that has a universal point of view—what big thoughts and what fine thoughts are these for the beginning of a new year!

Sure Way To Get Rid Of Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.—(adv.)

Mrs. J. E. Andrews, of the board of lady visitors for the second ward, made in interesting talk on school conditions and the expenditure of the board money.

The prize for attendance was won by first grade B, Miss Marguerite Henderson, teacher.

Mrs. Paden Will Conduct Classes At Girls' High

The millinery classes to be conducted during the last two weeks of September by Mrs. John E. Paden under the direction of the alumnae association of the Girls' High school, will be most interesting. Registrations for the first class, September 18 to 22, are closed while the second class to be held September 25 to 29 is rapidly filling. Women from all sections of the city are taking advantage of the opportunity offered for expert instruction in making fashionable hats.

Fashion is said to wear out more apparel than the woman. This is particularly true with regard to women's hats. Women's minds change with the seasons, demanding in the fall and winter hats indicative of the dying year, while for spring and summer, her head covering must suggest freshness and gladness. In terms of hats women may be classified as those who want something "servicable," those who want something "pretty," and those who insist upon getting something "becoming."

To the women who want service in hats, shapes and colors usually amount to nothing; to those who must have something pretty, youthfulness, grace of line, delicacy of color and fabric are desirable whether appropriate to their age or not; and to those who insist upon becomingness, for their hats must be an expression of their individuality. This is the psychology which causes women of militant types to choose helmet-shaped hats often adorned with glittering silver and gold. What the force is which impels women with sallow, muddy complexions to choose dull tans and grays has never been revealed. Perhaps in the former case the impulse to choose helmet-shaped hats is a throw-back to the female ancestors, who in the time of Louis 16th wore headdresses indicative of their husband's or their own professions. Thus the wife of a soldier in those times wore a fort, a sword and a cross of St. Louis upon her hear, while a loving faithful mother loaded her head with five dolls to represent her five children.

A historian of head coverings is authority for the statement that the hat is a symbol of worldly and religious power, rather than an article of practical use. He further says that the hat is intimately associated with the evolution of government, religion and the whole social fabric. If this is true, no wonder then that hats and hat-making should occupy so much of women's time and thought.

The shapes of hats to be worn this fall and winter are evolved from those worn centuries ago. The turban is of East Indian influence; the pagoda, of ancient Chinese origin; the modified "Napoleon" dates back to soldier hats of great antiquity; while the large picture hats owe their popularity to the genius of rival English artists, Gainesborough and Reynolds. A portrait of Henry the VIII, when a young man shows him wearing a small, roll brim hat, whose descendant is the sport hat of today. Women's hats of white and black beaver, faced with colored silks and trimmed with gold and silver lace were advertised in London in 1719, while ladies of fashion of that time wore with their riding habits, smartly cocked beaver hats, rendered more sprightly with ostrich plumes.

The request that "ladies will please remove their hats" is not of 20th century origin as might be supposed, but was heard as long ago as 1700, when ladies attending the royal opera at Milan wore head dresses 72-inches in height. These "hats" must have been quite difficult to dispose of when removed.

While our winter hats hark back to those worn in the dim past, let us be thankful that the milliners have chosen the beautiful shapes to copy and not the freaks of those old times.

Does this little story of millinery make you wish to try your hand at hat-making? To see a beautiful hat emerge from a flat piece of buckram, a small roll of wire and a handful of silk or velvet is most absorbing. Register for the second millinery class of the Girls' High school alumnae, September 25 to 29, Mrs. S. W. McCallie, chairman, telephone IVy 0215.

Decatur P.-T. Council Holds Fall Meeting

The Parent-Teacher council of Decatur, Ga., held the first fall meeting Thursday afternoon, September 14, in the high school auditorium, with Mrs. John De Saussure, the newly elected president, in the chair.

The most important plan adopted by the circle was to appoint the Decatur Girl Scouts in charge of the small children who are brought by their mothers to the monthly P.-T. meetings. Games will be played and stories told and read to the group during the hour of the meeting.

It was voted to use the mothers' creed in every P.-T. organization in Decatur. Various methods of serving school lunches were discussed by the council.

A decision was made to hold two Parent-Teacher council meetings a year, one in September and one in the early spring.

Short sleeves. Navy, brown, bisque, muffin, bobolink, barberry, fog and black. $5.75 to $25.

MODES of the Moment

"WHAT'S new?" is the question in every woman's mind. She wants to know what "they" are going to wear this Autumn and Winter. New materials and new style influences are vital, interesting pieces of news. Weeks ago all eyes were turned toward Paris. What would be the decisions of the most reputable French designers? And what changes would the American style experts make? Here is the answer—the most beautiful assemblage of fashionable apparel we have ever given to the women of Atlanta and the South.

SUITS

THE modes and manners of suits—how many and charming! Strictly tailored effects, costume tailleurs, Russian bloused models and piquantly boxed styles are infinitely varied in sleeves and trimmings. Embroideries glint with metal, braidings are unique and the use of furs is Russian inspired. The severe, smart long lines of the strictly tailored suit is accentuated by use of twills and tricotine. The more dressy models are developed of beautiful, lustrous pile fabrics. In Zanzibar, marten, fallow, Sorrento, navy and black.

$25 to $247.50

COATS

—The straight line silhouette predominates, even in coats. Some of the outstanding points of interest are the striking girdles, Russian side closings, Mandarin sleeves, low bloused effects and fur trimmings. There are immense collars and cuffs of wolf, squirrel, fox, caracul, beaver, dyed mole and raccoon. Materials are soft and velvety—Gerona, marvella, juina, marcova, veldyne and camel's hair. Old colors with new names, or shades decidedly this Autumn's—marten, fallow, Malay, Zanzibar, Sorrento, camel, etc.

$24.75 to $367.50

SILK AND WOOL DRESSES

—Dresses are the most versatile of all the new things for Autumn. Their styles are legion. The old world influence is shown in almost every detail. There are styles Russian, Persian, Egyptian, Greek and Roman. Waistlines run the gamut from the very low one to the prim, tight-fitting basque. Draped hips, circular skirts, swinging panels, dipping hem-lines and clinging folds are more graceful of matelasse, Canton, Roshanara crepe and other soft silks. The most fashionable in wool dresses is the coat effect, caught at one side. Prices range from $19.75 to $267.50.

MRS. D. B. SMALL, VALDOSTA, STATE EDITOR.

U. D. C. CONVENTION CALL

To the United Daughters of the Confederacy, Georgia division:

The twenty-eighth annual convention, U. D. C., of Georgia, will be held in Decatur, October 24, 1922, Agnes Lee Chapter, Mrs. P. H. Jeter, president, being our hostess chapter. The opening exercises will be held on Tuesday evening, October 24, at 8:30, at the First Methodist church. Meeting of the executive board will be held on Tuesday afternoon, at 3 o'clock at First Methodist church.

Come to convention ready to inspire and enthuse others that we may take counsel together as to how we can further the work of our beloved organization, remembering that "'Tis patient toil insures success."

The convention promises to be one of the most successful in the history of our organization.

Delegates.

Elect delegates to represent your chapter and as soon as they decide positively to attend the convention, send names to Mrs. William Alden, Decatur, chairman of homes. All communications and invitations sent by home committee.

In filling out the state credential slips, it is important that only the names of such delegates be given who expect to attend, because Decatur will make preparation to entertain each delegate whose name is sent. Be sure to inform chairman of home committee if you find that you cannot attend convention after your name has been sent in. This is due the hostess chapter and will be appreciated by the committee.

State Credentials.

One credential slip is to be presented to the credential committee, Mrs. W. C. Vereen, Moultrie, chairman, at First Methodist church in Decatur, Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The other credential slip is to be mailed to your state president.

Taxes.

Please see that your dues are paid and be sure to send a representative delegation from your chapter. State and general taxes are rated under one item, making assessment 40 cents per member, to be sent to our treasurer, Mrs. G. P. Folks, Waycross, Ga.

Treasurer's Books Close October 3.

According to our state constitution, the state treasurer must close her books three weeks before the Decatur convention, so be sure to send taxes at once.

Chapter Representation.

Section 2, article v., Georgia division U. D. C.: "Each chapter shall be entitled in all conventions to one representative for every 25 members or fraction thereof, not less than seven. Chapter representation shall be based upon per capita tax paid."

The president of a chapter may be one of the delegates of that chapter, but no chapter may send its president in addition to the rightful number of delegates.

Unless state taxes are paid, do not send a delegate to Decatur for the credential committee and your delegate would be greatly embarrassed. Instruct your delegate not to appear at her first session without necessary credentials. Impress these important points that each may be entitled to a voice in the proceedings.

All money collected by state chairman must be paid to state treasurer, Mrs. G. P. Folks, Waycross, Ga.

Reports.

If it is impossible for you to send a delegate to Decatur, do not fail to send your report to Mrs. Oscar McKenzie, Montezuma, Ga., the recording secretary, at or before convention.

Chairmen of state committees must hand to the secretary typewritten reports of the actual business transacted through their departments before adjournment, else such reports will be excluded from minutes. Let your reports be as brief as possible on account of the expense of printing the minutes.

General U. D. C. Convention.

General convention meets in Birmingham, Ala., the third Tuesday in November, 1922. Georgia must have a representative delegation there.

Prizes.

The Raines banner for chapter sending in the greatest number of new members is creating a friendly rivalry in the chapters over the state. The award will be made in accordance with the reports of the state registrar, Mrs. J. T. Dixon, Thomasville.

Valdosta chapter has offered a prize of $10.00 to the chapter ordering the greatest number of U. D. C. badges. Write to Mrs. L. G. Youmans, Valdosta, for futher information.

If you have not sent in world war records, send to Mrs. Lee Trammel, Madison, for blanks and see that your chapter wins the "Alice Mitchell Walker" loving cup for sending in the greatest number of records. These records will be bound in book form and placed in a fire-proof vault for future reference. See that the names of the boys in your country are enrolled.

The "Alice Baxter" trophy for the chapter sending in the greatest number of new members between the ages of 18 and 25 is also creating much interest.

Encourage the school children to try for the historic essay medal for best essay under rules given out by Mrs. Lucius Lamar, Dawson, chairman.

The Selden Banner will be awarded to chapter sending in most essays in historical essay contest.

Obligations.

Let us remember our pledges, and make an effort to contribute to each enterprise of our organization.

Let us pay our quota to the Jefferson Davis monument fund. This work is being pushed to ultimate completion and all confederates—veterans, sons and daughters, are requested to forward contributions to Mrs. H. M. Franklin, Tennille, chairman, so as to finish the monument speedily.

Stone Mountain Confederate Memorial.

Work has begun on this wonderful memorial to the confederacy which will be the greatest monument on earth, Gutzan Borglum, the famous sculptor, will chisel upon Stone mountain confederate soldiers only with Davis, Lee and Jackson as central figures. Let us strive to interest our people that all may have a part in the collection of funds for this wonder of the world which will make Georgia the mecca for all tourists.

Georgia Room at Richmond.

Have we done our duty in regard to our room in the white house of the confederacy? If each chapter will contribute a small amount, the necessary amount will be in hand and chapters will no longer be requested to contribute yearly, as the interest on the fund will take care of the room, where are stored our priceless relics.

Lee Memorial Chapel.

Members of Georgia division have pledged to do their part in raising money for fire proofing and enlarging the famous Lee memorial chapel at Washington and Lee university. Send contributions to Mrs. George Felker, Jr., Monroe, Ga.

"Women of the South in War Times."

We are urged to sell more copies of this book. The General Chairman begs that each chapter in Georgia purchase at least seven copies. Come to convention prepared to discuss this subject.

Helen Plane Educational Fund.

Mrs. Trox Bankston, chairman of the Helen Plane Educational Fund, writes that the demand for loans has been so urgent that she has made loans to six girls to attend Normal school this fall—two at Athens, two at Milledgeville and two at South Georgia Normal school, at Valdosta. Make your contributions as liberal as possible in order that we may supply the necessary wants of these girls. She asks that funds be sent before Decatur convention, if possible.

She has already secured the Georgia pin flags for celebration of Georgia Day and will have them at Decatur. She urges that all delegates be instructed to secure a supply there. They will be 20 cents per dozen or $2.25 per gross. If each chapter will take one gross, the committee will be able to meet the additional expense incurred.

Remember, too, the world war educational fund, the hero fund and the other educational funds that we may emphasize more and more the educational features of our organization.

Have you done your part in making this one of the best years in the history of the Georgia Division, U. D. C.?

You have shown that you possess to the fullest extent, the power and spirit of co-operation. From the Daughters of the Confederacy over the state, I have drawn inspiration and strength. I think you for the privilege of leadership, and I extend to you a hand ever ready for service.

With congratulations for your past achievements and hoping to see you at the convention, I am,

Sincerely yours,

MRS. FRANK HARROLD,
President Georgia Division U. D. C.
Americus, Ga.

C., to announce that the next general convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy will be held in Birmingham, Ala., November 15-18. All who desire to attend should note the correct date for the convention.

Highland School P.-T. A. to Meet.

The executive board of the Highland School Parent-Teacher association will hold its regular monthly meeting Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. E. C. Kamper, on St. Charles place.

GIRLS! LEMONS WHITEN SKIN AND BLEACH FRECKLES

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day, then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach because it doesn't irritate.—(adv.)

Stylish in Design

AT one time eyeglasses were incongruous with style. Women who had to wear glasses did so with great reluctance because the old fashioned glasses made them appear at a disadvantage. Not so our modern glasses of distinguished design!

CLEVER dressing is not such a matter of passing fashions as of personality and becomingness—of careful selection and attention to every detail.

It is quality which matters and not quantity. It is so much better if one's means are limited to have only a few things and have them irreproachable, especially for there's really nothing, you know, that gives you such an aura of personality and charm as a lovely fur wrap, scarf or choker.

Dr. Gaines Speaks At Agnes Scott Opening Exercises

The opening exercises at Agnes Scott college were held Tuesday morning, September 13, at 10 o'clock

Besides the students several members of the board of trustees and other friends of the college were present. The scripture was read by Rev. R. G. Clinton of the Ponce de Leon Methodist church. This was followed by a prayer by Dr. McGeachy of the DeCatur Presbyterian church. J. K. Orr, in behalf of the board of trustees, welcomed the new students, and Dr. Gaines, president of Agnes Scott, outlined the growth of the college in the following speech:

Dr. Gaines' Speech.

"Thirty-three years ago this month, the first session of this institution opened. It began in a rented building and its only asset was a subscription list aggregating $5,000. Today it owns over twenty acres of land and twenty-one buildings. Beginning as an elementary and grammar school, it is a college of highest grade. It began with four teachers, while today it has 54 officers and teachers. The first session it enrolled 63 elementary and grammar school students. Last session it enrolled 435 college students.

"In 1917 the college had 43 officers and teachers. The college enrolled 365 in 1917 while last session 435 were registered and for several years has turned away scores of applicants for lack of room. In 1917 the college had two endowed scholarships aggregating $11,250, and today the college has thirteen endowed scholarships, aggregating $40,250. The total endowment in 1917 of the college was $180,[illegible]8, and now it is $644,561. Compared with eastern colleges for women our endowment is small. The total assets in 1917 of the college were $702,655, and now they are $1,586,344.

"For the growth in endowment the college is indebted to the general education board, to the Carnegie corporation, and to 5,500 subscribers in Georgia and other states.

"By the will of Miss Jane Walker Inman, recently probated, the college will receive next August the sum of $100,000.00. This splendid bequest is for endowment to be a memorial of her brother, S. M. Inman—a splendid monument more lasting than marble or bronze, unselfishly and lovingly erected by a noble woman to her great brother, former chairman of our board, and himself a munificent benefactor of our college

"We are in immediate need of a new and modern gymnasiaum; new and adequate recitation building; a music and art building; and a new and modern domitory. All these would render necessary a new and larger power house and laundry. We need to double or triple the appropriation to our library; we need modern equipment for our class-rooms; additional equipment for our laboratories; new equipment for our domitories; and to improve our campus.

Teacher Makes College.

"It is the teacher who makes the college. All the physical improvements I have mentioned would be useless unless they contribute to our work in education. The very center and heart of the college is education. The responsibility must rest upon the officers and teachers to make a greater Agnes Scott in education. But education in college is not confined to the class-room. Every true teacher means as much to his students outside the class-room as in it. Moreover the student-body makes a large contribution to college education by its spirit, by its attitude towards the college, and towards the teachers. Let teachers, officers and students cooperate in making a greater Agnes Scott educationally.

"There is no greater question before America and the world today than Christian education. Unless education is dominated by a sound Christianity, it is menace to the world rather than a blessing.

"This college was founded by Christian men in prayer and faith for the glory of God. This is the very center of its ideal. We desire to have its religious development keep pace with its physical and educational development. We desire to have it grow in Spiritual power, grow in strength as a defender of the faith once for all delivered to the saints, grow in Christian influence, grow in efficiency, in preparing for Christian unsefulness.

"In order that Agnes Scott may grow religiously we must have the hearty sympathy and co-operation of all the officers and teachers and also of the student-body. In this connection let me commend the college Young Woman's Christian association. The influence and work of this association in the college has been most important and valuable. We confidently look to this association to make a large contribution to a greater Agnes Scott religiously.

"I am pleased to announce Dr. G. Campbell Morgan has been engaged to deliver lectures in this chapel early in December, daily for a week, on the fundamentals of Christianity Such is an outline of the program for a greater Agnes Scott. I am not ambitious for large numbers. I am ambitious for the best and most spiritual college in America."

Woman's Club Activities Offer Varied Program

Mrs. Newton C. Wing, chairman of the home economics department of the Atlanta Woman's club, announces that her department has in preparation, millinery, cooking, secretarial, and basketry classes, a new edition of the club's famous cook book, compiled by the home ecoonmics department, a booth at the Southeastern fair, and a big alfresco benefit bridge party on September 26.

"We hope," said Mrs. Wing in addressing the opening meeting of the department on September 13, "to show 100 per cent efficient in our report to the May council and to present a record of accomplishments that will provide inspiration for other club departments of home economics. The field for home economics seems almost to touch everything in the universe, just as the home is the center of everything good.

"The recommendations of the division of home economics of the general federation will be followed as closely as our particular needs permit during the coming year. The program has been outlined by Mrs. Maggie W. Barry of the Agricultural and Mechanical college at Bryan, Texas, chairman of the home economics division.

"We have worked from the beginning with the county worker of the State Agricultural college, and we are preparing to conduct our usual Smith-Hughes classes with the addition of basketry work. Should sufficient interest develop in the department, we would be glad to add home gardening. Mrs. William Rawling will be secretary of the home economics department this year, and Mrs. O. H. Matthews and Mrs. T. G. Delph are the divisional chairmen.

Vocational Classes.

Mrs. O. H. Matthews, chairman of the division of vocational classes, announces that the classes in cooking will be conducted at the Girls' High school, because of the splendid equipment available there, and the sewing classes will receive instruction at Fulton High. The other classes will be conducted at the club house.

Mrs. Matthews earnestly requests everyone interested to remember that no reservation will be accepted over the phone.

Mrs. Delph, divisional chairman of the Woman's club cook book, announces that a few copies of the first edition of the book are still on hand and a new edition will be ready in ample time to enable each club woman to plan to include in her list of Christmas purchases at least one book for gift purposes. The proceeds of the sale go to the auditorium fund, toward which the home economics department contributed last year $7,000. The cook books will be on sale at the Southeastern fair in the booth conducted in the interest of the Woman's club by the home economics department.

Questionnaires issued by the home economics department may be obtained by any club member interested in the work and classes of the department from the club house or from Mrs. Newton C. Wing. These questionnaires are designed to assist the routine work of the department by listing the tastes and preferences of club members.

Benefit Bridge.

A benefit bridge on the lawn of the Atlanta Woman's club will be the opening feature of a busy year in the home economics department. The bridge party will take place on the afternoon of Tuesday, September 26, at 3 o'clock. Should the weather be inclement, the tables will be placed inside the club house. Accommodations will be provided for 75 tables, and tickets will be $2 per table, 50 cents apiece. Prizes will be "Made in Georgia," and will include silk hose, Atlanta made candy, flour, flowers, hats, fancy articles and other novelties.

Mrs. A. J. Carlisle is charman of the benefit bridge, and will be assisted by Mrs. Newton C. Wing, Mrs. O. H. Matthews, Mrs. Howard C. McCutcheon, Mrs. W. E. Foster, Mrs. P. G. Delph, Mrs. Ernest Covington, Mrs. Harold W. Roberts, Mrs. J. H. Zachery. Reservations for the bridge party may be made by phoning Mrs. Carlisle or any member of her committees.

Hospital Work.

Mrs. William X. Fisch urges members of the Woman's club to volunteer for work in the hospital department, and calls for contributions of candy, jollies, fruit, magazines and cigarettes for hospital No. 48, where the need for friendly cheer and home dainties is as great as it ever has been. Auto rides are much wanted and anyone willing to render her help is requested to phone Mrs. R. C. Jessup, chairman of the visiting committee for hospital No. 48. Contributions for the hospital should be delivered to the club house, or sent to Mrs. T. B. Akridge, chairman of contributions to hospital No. 48. Assistance in entertaining the soldiers should be offered to Mrs. Keller F. Melton, chairman of the committee of entertainment at hospital No. 48.

The hospital department will give special attention during the coming year to the humanitarian work of the Community Home for girls and this work has been made a division of the department and placed under the leadership of Mrs. Alice Taylor.

Mrs. Taylor says that the Community Home needs chairs, a bookcase, books, magazines, washrags, combs, new tooth brushes, almost everything else that goes to make a home. For the girls shoes are needed, hoisery, underwear and decent clothes.

Club Works for Better Films.

The personnel of the Atlanta Woman's club is actively engaged in promoting "Better Films Week." Mrs. B. M. Boykin, president of the Woman's club, is also chairman of the better films committee. Mrs. Ward was the recipient of a star-shaped box of candy, tied with ribbons of the emblematic colors, while Mrs. Dorsey received a box of exquisite hand-embroidered handkerchiefs.

Rex chapter's inspection took place on the evening of Wednesday, August 30. The officers did their work in an impressive manner and received words of praise therefor from the grand matron.

On this date 6 o'clock dinner was served at Mrs. Walter Estes' in honor of Mrs. Ward. The other guests included Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Dorsey, Mrs. J. A. Hightower and Mrs. Jesse Blalock.

Thursday, August 31, proved to be a red letter day.

During the afternoon Mrs. Ward inspected the work of this chapter and as a loving reminder of her visit was the recipient of a cut-glass boudoir set.

Dinner was served at the home of Mrs. W. G. Travis, at Riverdale, after which the chapter at that place was inspected. This proved to be the banner chapter, Mrs. Ward stating she had never seen more perfect work.

During the social hour punch and cake were served.

On Friday, September 1, Liberty chapter No. 147, at Griffin, was hostess to the grand matron. Here, also, good work was done.

While the week was somewhat "crowded" with inspections, Mrs. Ward expressed herself as thoroughly enjoying her stay in the Jonesboro district, while the members of the O. E. S. there were loathe to let her leave.

Augusta Chapters.

On Thursday evening, August 31, the three Eastern Star chapters of Augusta entertained in a most delightful manner in celebration of Rob Morriss' birthday. The parlors of the masonic temple presented a beautiful appearance with their decorations of garden flowers arranged in baskets, the handles tied with huge tulle bows carrying the emblematic colors of the order. Palms and ferns were banked around the rooms and over each doorway and window were draped garlands of graceful southern smilax. In one end of the spacious dining hall, an improvised platform, banked with palms and ferns, had been prepared by the decorating committee, and here a short, but delightful program of enlightenment and pleasure was rendered. Past Grand Patron Brother J. Harry Johnson, presided as master of ceremonies, and in his own inimitable manner announced the numbers of the program. Brother T. D. Jones, worthy patron of Elizabeth chapter, in his speech, explained the purpose of the celebration which was to honor the birthday of the founder of our order, and then gave an interesting and instructive talk on the life and works of Rob Morriss. Brother Jones was followed by Brother R. E. Elliott, worthy patron of Victory chapter, who entertained the audience with a short talk which was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. The remainder of the program consisted of a black face "skit" by Brother Lester Elliott, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Elliott. A humorous reading by Miss McCarter, of Golden Glow chapter, North Augusta, S. C., and a charming recitation by little Miss Zailee Mobley, who had to respond to an encore. After the rendition of this program every one repaired to the roof garden where punch was served from a beautifully appointed table. The Eagles' band furnished music throughout the evening and the Eastern Star chapters of Augusta feel deeply indebted to Band Master Pritchard and the members of his band, who so kindly gave of their services, which contributed so largely toward making our celebration a success. Delicious refreshments were served during the evening by a committee of young ladies from the three chapters. There were several visitors from sister chapters, and all present were enthusiastic over the pleasures of the evening.

Mrs. Ward has been spending some time now in the Rome district. She was accompanied on this trip by Mrs. Mary L. Askew, past grand matron.

On Tuesday, September 12, W. Frank Coley, husband of Mrs. Mary E. Coley, passed away at his home on Cascade avenue. Many high tributes have been paid Mr. Coley by his associates and friends. He, as well as Mrs. Coley, has been an active member of the order for several years. The hearts of the O. E. S. of Georgia go out in sympathy to the family at this sad hour.

"No matter how heavy our loss is,
No matter how great our despair,
Doesn't heaven seem nearer and dearer,
To know that our loved ones are there?"

Plea for Georgia Room.

An earnest plea for a Georgia room in Continental hall by Mrs. Will Knox, of Social Circle, chairman of Georgia room in Continental hall, has been made in a letter written to every regent in Georgia, urging their help in securing the $1,500 which the state convention at Valdosta indorsed for this purpose. It has been deemed advisable to ask for a 50 cents per capita from each chapter. Mrs. George Thacher Guernsey, chairman of the administration building, has announced that the money must be in Washington by January 1, 1923 Mrs. Knox asks all chapters to have this money forwarded to our state treasurer, Mrs. J. T. Wood, at Valdosta. As each chapter makes the contribution, have a notice sent Mrs. Knox, so that she can keep her records of funds in good shape.

A flagpole and flag were presented the school by the D. A. R. Three hundred dollars has been raised for our her fund toward a memorial to our world war heroes and $33 was sent Mrs. Howard McCall for the Georgia University endowment fund.

Historical programs are rendered at each monthly meeting and all patriotic days are celebrated. The subject of study for the year was "The builders of our nation and those who have helped to make it great." Education has been stressed. The medal for excellence in American history was awarded Kendrick Pinks.

Under the splendid leadership of our regent, Mrs. E. W. Butler, our chapter has completed a year of which we may feel justly proud. At the home of our regent, at the June meeting, our chapter unanimously pledged support to the nomination of Mrs. Talmage, of Athens, for state regent in 1924.

People and Things of Interest to Women

BY LOUISE DOOLY

Recent Experiences of Women Voters

There was a lull in the rush of voters to the polls in one of Atlanta's precincts last Wednesday. A woman who looked exceedingly business-like plowed her way through the tickets which littered the sidewalk and as she approached the smelly garage in which the men and women of her ward were to exercise the highest privilege and meet the greatest responsibility of their citizenship, she was bombarded on both sides by the friends or more frequently the paid workers of candidates and besought to vote for the candidates whose names appeared on the tickets they thrust upon her.

She stopped and waved them back. "Do you think I waited until I got to the polls to decide whom I was going to vote for?" she demanded indignantly. And then more quietly, "thank you, gentlemen, but I don't need your tickets. I have made my decisions."

This little incident is cited merely to bring out the fact that the women are taking their new duty seriously. It is also intended to point the fact that while women have been voting in city elections two years and it has been known for two years that they were going to vote in the state elections last Wednesday, Georgia chivalry did very little about providing clean surroundings and giving protection from interference to the women of Georgia in their first vote, the right to which has been given them by a large majority of the male voters of the United States.

But there was a more important circumstance of the September elections. When the time for balloting in the city, county and state elections rolled round this September a great many women and nearly as many men realized that they had deprived themselves of the most powrful instrument of democratic government—the ballot—and had failed in their most important civic duty. They had not registered and therefore they could not vote.

It is an unfortunate condition of the present day that most people must have their feelings harrowed, their community, their state must face the direst political menace before they realize that voting is not the mere privileg of the professional politician but that it is the first duty of citizenship.

Of those who did vote last Wednesday, and the Wednesday before, it was a serious circumstance, too, that they had waited until the last minute to post themselves concerning the issues involved in all but the leading races, consequently their balloting had to be a hit or miss proposition in some cases although it is generally known that political conditions in Georgia are such that an unworthy office holder even in an inconspicuous office can do a great deal of harm.

It is too late now to cry over spilled milk but now is the acceptable time for that great new class of citizens, the women voters, to make their returns and register for the elections of next year.

Miss Van de Vraede Defines Need for New Club

The distinction between the club of business and professional women, and other women's clubs, and its special function which makes it a necessary and promising newcomer in the world of women's organizations, was put in crystallized form by Miss Jane Van de Vraede, president of the Atlanta Club of Business and Professional Women, at the club's first regular meeting Wednesday night at supper at the chamber of commerce.

"The distinction of the business and professional woman's organization lies in its objective," said Miss Van de Vraede. "This is the educational and professional advancement of the members, for the business and professional women cannot make any great contribution to their environment or to community service without increasing the standardization of their business and professional work and advancing the opportunities of business and professional wamen, and thus simultaneously the type of service they can offer.

"In this, the business and professional women's organization is distinctive; not that they do not desire to contribute to civic and welfare work, but their first duty is to themselves—the raising of their own business and professional standards in order to raise the standard of their type of service.

"The National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs makes the educational standard of the women who would go into a business or a profession a high school education. In my own profession, trained nursing, think what a contribution it will be to community service when the training of every nurse registered as capable of caring for the sick is founded on a high school education; how much surer and more intelligent will be the service of the nursing sorority to the health of the community? Until business and professional women have established standards, their civic contribution must be sporadic.

Following up Miss Van de Vrade's suggestion, the business of the meeting centered in the necessity of an immediate membership campaign, in order to make the club numerically as representative as it is in original personnel.

Fifty-four members were reported by Miss Mabel Robson, treasurer, this number brought together almost spontaneously through their feeling of the need for organization.

Miss Van deVraede appointed the board of directors as the committee in charge of a membership campaign, which will be started immediately with the whole membership of the club expected to co-operate.

Clubrooms will be an early objective in order to provide material background for organization, and a method was agreed upon for raising funds for this purpose and also the entertainment of the state federation, which meets in Atlanta in March.

Mrs. Hamilton Douglas and Miss Katherine Lovette were appointed a committee to revise the constitution in conformity with the state and national constitutions.

Miss Horense Marvin was appointed chairman of personal research, and Mrs. M. P. Tagg, legislation. The chairman of education will be announced later. Miss Myra Scott was made chairman of exhibits.

All chairmen were requested to present outlines of their plans at the October meeting. Informal luncheon meetings will be planned later.

Miss May Doyle, state treasurer, a member of the Atlanta Catholic Club of Business and Professional Women, had been invited to make a report on the recent state rally in Savannah, which she did in brief and interesting style, and then extended to the hostess club the full co-operation of the Catholic club in the entertainment of the state convention in March. This offer was accepted and the Catholic club was invited through Miss Doyle to be the guest of the hostess club at its October supper meeting. Miss Doyle accepted with the provision that the supper should be "dutch."

Miss Lena Westbrook, delegate from the Atlanta club to the Savannah rally, made a complete and snappy report.

She is editor of the state bulletin, "Georgiana," which will be financed by the state for its next issue. A committee was appointed in Savannah at the suggestion of Miss Westbrook to prepare a plan for making the paper self-supporting through advertising and subscriptions.

MOTHER!

Your Child's Bowels Need "California Fig Syrup"

Hurry mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—(adv.)

Miss Bowman Tells Of Library Work.

The people of St. George, on Staten sland, form one community which is willing to give the children the best room in their public library instead of stowing them away in the basement.

The story of what is being done to teach the children of Staten Island the use of a library is told with many other interesting things about the new development in library extension by Miss Virginia Bowman who has just returned from six months special work in an advisory capacity with the children's department of the New York public library system in which she was formerly assistant to the head of the children's department, Miss Annie Carroll Moore.

The people of Staten Island must have realized always the potentiality in their children because in the facsimile of the original deed to the island which is now in the Staten Island museum. Some of the signators are children, American and Indian. The Indian children made their mark. It is assumed that the children were called upon to sign the deed because the citizens realized that the children would be the ones who would live to see that the original ideas of the signators were carried out.

"I was sent out from New York, said Miss Bowman, "to re-establish the children's room at St. George, which had been moved from cramped quarters below to a large, airy room covering the entire second floor of the library with windows looking out over the harbor. This had formerly been the adult reading room and had in no way been readapted for the use of children. In this work I used original paintings by N. C. Wyeth illustrating 'The Last of the Mohicans" for the mural decorations, and from the Sailor's Snug Harbor—the old sailors' home on the island—I borrowed fascinating model ships to exhibit with books on the sea and old pirate tales.

The story of the establishment of the library in a orphans' home was another rare experience in Volholm, N. Y., was another rare experience of Miss Bowman's. This library was established not through the public library system, but through private funds and she did the work of organization in her leisure time.

For two months before the new library was opened the children had been entirely deprived of the use of the small collection which private generosity had put there. And they were so excited over getting back their treasures that even the games played were of secondary interest to them. The opening program included an introduction of the children to the famous characters in children's books. These books placed on end out on the lawn while a beautiful French doll explained to the youthful audience what delightful people they would meet in the new volumes.

No less interesting was the experience of arranging in connection with the artist an exhibit of mural decorations, the work of Miss Violet Oakley, of Philadelphia, for the state capital, these depicting the great events in the lives of Washington and Lincoln. And simultaneously an exhibit of illustrations from Miss Oakley's story of William Penn called "The Holy Experiment," which reveals the fact that the first ideal of world unity was put forth by this great American of the early days. This book is hand-lettered like a medieval manuscript and will be presented this fall in a limited edition.

The bringing together of library posters from Philadelphia, Rye, Larchmont and the various branches of the N. Y. P. L. formed a colorful exhibit in the department of the work with schools. This exhibit was shown for a month and was used as illustrating material for lectures given by Miss Bowman to the summer classes of Columbia university, to groups of teachers and librarians of the New York systems.

Value of European Travel Discussed by Miss Gregg

Was the butterfly type of American girl very conspicious in Europe this past summer and what do you think she got out of her travel? The question was put to Miss Emma Gregg, of the history and English departments of the Girls' High school, who has just returned from three months' abroad.

"Oh, yes, she was conspicious," was Miss Gregg's reply, "it was very plain on the way home that she got what she went after. She had on the extremest clothes to be bought in Paris and the most expensive accessories and she had a grand time but she found it difficult to tell you her impressions. She knew how to spend father's money and I suppose maybe father will be satisfied with what she got out of it.

"There was a college girl in our party who exclaimed one wonderful day: 'I am so glad I finished college before I came. It has lighted up my whole trip' and I thought that her remark was significant. Travel in Europe is like other good things. We get out of it what we take to it. And all of us found—I mean our party of 15—that the things we knew best we liked best. Florence, for instance, looked plain but when we stopped to think, what a world of interest there was opened up to us there through our knowledge of the romance in Italy's history, its medieval glories and the Renaissance.

Profitable Trip.

"The most profitable trip I know of was that enjoyed by a few Atlanta girls who went to Europe for six months with a very delightful teacher. They made their way leisurely conducted by the teacher with the aid of a foreign travel service, and each night the teacher gave them informative lectures about what they would see next day.

"I thought I had a good imagination but the actual seeing of things meant so tremendously much more. I knew that the Bodleian library, for instance, was famous for its valuable old manuscripts, but I had no conception of what this great treasure house was until I went there."

Value to Teachers.

"What do you think of the value to American teachers of university courses abroad?"

"If they are studying the languages—French, for instance—a summer course in Paris at the Sorbonne will, if they have a good foundation, be of inestimable benefit. But otherwise our own American universities offer better courses for the summer than can be secured anywhere in Europe. Oxford and Cambridge do not try to keep women out, you know, and while they must now tolerate women as students, in some lines, as yet they give no degrees and a concentrated short course such as our American colleges offer during the vacation months is possible to secure only in America.

"The airplane trip from Paris to London has grown to be such a common thing as to be no longer remarkable. The airplane corporation calls for its pasengers at their hotels in Paris, takes them by limousine to the starting point and the actual time of flying is only three hours. The trip costs about twice as much as the trip by rail. Accidents are few, and only seem more frequent than rail accidents because they are played up. The passengers, in a glass enclosed car, experience no discomfort from the changes of altiture and temperature."

The Passion Play.

The high light of Miss Gregg's whole trip she counted as her visit to Oberammergau and the Passion play.

"We had reasonable accommodations, were treated most courteously, paid only one dollar for the best seats and found no spirit of commercialism."

So deeply was she impressed with the spiritual strength of the play and the players that she realized no discomfort, said Miss Gregg, in sitting from 8 in the morning till 6 o'clock in the evening with only two hours of relaxation at midday. A chorus describes the scenes which follow up its narration, the prophesies of the Old Testament are shown in tableaux and then the New Testament drama which fulfills these old prophecies is acted. An orchestra of 90 pieces provides the musical background.

Anton Lang, as the Christ, is marvelous in his portrayal and even looks the part although he has now taken this role for three decades and is nearly 60. Others in the cast are as remarkable and it is a known fact that the whole village thinks and works towards little else than the Passion play and their part in it. The ambition to be worthy in daily living of a choice for the great spiritual roles has a marvelous effect, it is said on the lives of the youth of the village."

Other outstanding events of Miss Gregg's trip she cited as a coaching party through the Bavarian Alps and automobile tours of the Amalfi drive in Italy and the Corniche drive in northern Italy and southern France.

Mothers' Union Holds Meeting.

The Mothers' Department union held a meeting at the Druid Hills Methodist Church on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The church was attractively decorated in cut flowers and ferns.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Floyd Field, and the song "More Love to Thee" was sung by the congregation. Dr. Elizabeth Broach, of the Druid Hills Methodist church, had charge of the devotional, which was very inspiring.

Reports from all officers and class presidents were then read.

Mrs. W. F. Clark, chairman of the organizing committee, reported that the Inman Park Baptist and the Oakland City Baptist had become members of the union, also that Westminster Presbyterian had organized a mother's class in their Sunday school.

The banners were awarded to Jackson Hill Baptist for the largest percentage, and to the Druid Hills Methodist, for the largest attendance.

A delightful feature of the program was the solos rendered by Mrs. Swaggerty and Mrs. M. E. Zuillian.

The Mothers' Department union extends to all mother classes of the city a most cordial invitation to meet with them at the next meeting to be held in January, the date and place to be announced later.

Concert Orchestra Opens Better Films Week.

Atlanta is to have its own symphony orchestra. This group of fifty artists who have been selected, trained and directed, by Enrico Leide, director of music for the Howard theater, will make its first formal bow in full magnitude Sunday afternoon at the Howard theater in a sacred concert, which will also be the first presentation of "Better Films week."

The entire public is invited to the concert, which promises to be a great artistic event and adds another laurel to Atlanta's achievement in musical accomplishment. It will be a fitting send-off to a week devoted to the study and review of motion pictures in their highest form.

An additional treat will be the appearance of Mrs. Riely Eakin, soprano, acclaimed by critics to posses a voice of remarkable power, quality and range.

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, chairman of extension work for the better film committee, and Thomas C. Law, president of the inter-civic council, co-operating with the better films committee, will speak on the program for the week as it relates to the theater and the civic clubs.

News From Washington Seminary.

The forty-fifth annual session of the Washington Seminary commenced on Thursday, September 14. Many new faces were found among the very large number of old ones. Many graduates of former years were to be seen here and there in the halls and in the class rooms.

The simple chapel exercises were closed by practical and inspiring talk from Mr. Scott. He stressed the importance of this week when the doors of opportunity were opening to thousands of children throughout the land. He advised them to try to find out any special talent God had given them and cultivate it, to do thoroughly anything they undertook. One of the best and most telling points was that they "dress their part"—that of school girls. He urged that they put heart, interest and enthusiasm into their work. Especially that they cultivate promptness and self conrtol.

Te closed his talk with a heart-felt and beautiful tribute to Miss Beall Martin, a faithful and beloved instructor who died during the summer, whose going was a common loss.

The remaining hours of the morning were taken up with registration and classification.

Of special interest to the old pupils were the improvements in the school building. The enlarged art room, the new French and English rooms elicited loud praise.

Humane Society To Hold Meeting.

The Atlanta Humane society will met at 12:30 o'clock Tuesday at the Chamber of Commerce building to elect officers for the coming year.

Other important business will be transacted.

Simple Application That Dissolves Blackheads

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blemishes, blackheads. There is one simple, safe and sure way to get them out and that is to dissolve them. Get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub briskly over the blackheads for a few seconds—wash the parts and every blackhead will be gone.

Pinching and squeezing out blackheads maks large pores and you cannot get all of the blackheads out this way—while this simple application of calonite powder and water dissolves every particle of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition.—(adv.

What Science Says

About One of the Ingredients of

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

SIX CENTURIES OF USE

The principal medicinal plant ingredient, to which much of the therapeutic value of CARDUI is due, was first introduced into medicinal use by Arnoldus Villanovanus, about 1350 A. D., or nearly 600 years ago. Since then, many medical text books have mentioned its use, among others, the following:

Dr. P. A. Matthiolus, of Frankfort, in 1586, wrote: "The plant is greatly esteemed among all nations."

Dr. John Hill, of London, in 1751, wrote: "The great demand for it, on account of its medicinal virtues, occasions its being propagated in all the Gardens about London, where medicinal herbs are raised."

Dr. Johann Schroeder, of Nuremberg, in 1693, wrote: "The herb, when boiled in water or wine and taken, overcomes dizziness, is useful in severe debility, promotes appetite and brings on . . ."

Dr. Lobach, Member of the Physico-Medical Society, Wuerzburg, in a report to his society, in 1858, wrote about "the wonderful results which have made this remedy famous."

Dr. John M. Scudder, of Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1898, wrote: "It will be found valuable in cases of sudden suppression, due to colds . . . It promotes the appetite and gives energy to the digestive organs.

First introduced into common use in this country as a proprietary medicine nearly half a century ago, CARDUI has attained the position of a leading remedy in female ailments and is indicated in many cases of female trouble and for such symptoms as pains, cramps, spasms and other signs of derangement in cases of this kind, when not due to constitutional deformity or that do not require surgical treatment.

Its general action on the system is that of a mild tonic and it is, therefore, also indicated for a run-down condition in general, to assist in promoting appetite, stimulating digestion and toning up the system.

Most druggists carry Cardui in stock, in $1.00 bottles, with full directions for use printed on the label; and every woman who suffers from female ailments, or requires the aid of a good, general, systemic tonic, should try this well-known remedy.

Write for Book or Circular

A Book, in simple language, giving full particulars of the uses of Cardui, with instructions on diet, baths, and other health hints, will be sent to any woman on request.

A Special Circular, for physicians only, giving the formula and describing its ingredients, therapeutic effects and clinical results, will be sent to any physician writing us on his printed letterhead or prescription blank.

Georgia Clubs Go After Support for Tallulah School

No more significant event in the full life of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs has come to pass in fifteen years than the launching of the campaign Thursday at the meeting of the executive board of the $50,000 campaign for a "Greater Tallulah."

Fifteen years is taken as the limit in which the campaign is the outstanding event, since it was just about fifteen years ago that the Federation's school for mountain children was established in Mrs. Mary Anne Lipscomb's summer cottage. It has grown, and its influence has developed far beyond the physical possibilities of the school plant.

The school is the proudest boast of the Georgia Federation and at the 1922 biennial, when its meaning was presented most appealingly, while while at the same time most practically, by its principal, Miss Nannie Davis, club women all over the country wondered why Georgia should so long have stood alone in this splendid work—for while club women in other states contribute to the maintenance of mountain schools, the Georgia Federation alone owns and maintains one. Why have we not followed suit, they said.

Of late the Georgia Federation has lagged a bit in its support of the school, although the need, instead of being less, is growing. The club women have not only neglected to build up the endowment fund, which would finally take care of maintenance, and have failed to add to the scope and efficiency of the plant and its equipment to keep up with the increasing service it renders, but they have actually failed to supply the month to month pay for the teachers, than whom they know there are no more ideal leaders of the mountain children, not only into book knowledge, but the art of living. Their attention has been lured away by the crowding interests of the day, and for the time being they lost their sense of values.

When Mrs. S. B. C. Morgan told the story at the board meeting the other day of the mountain woman living not far from the school who calls out to every passer-by—and they are not numerous—and then beseeches them: "Oh, I was so afraid you wouldn't hear me and stop, and I want you to read me just this one chapter in my Bible. I can't read it myself, because I have never been teached," the sentiment of the women was appealed to and their practical good sense, as well.

"Shall we let our Georgia girls continue to grow up in such tragic ignorance?" was Mrs. Morgan's plea, and she sounded still more loudly the practical appeal when she added, "An ignorant citizen, man or woman, is no asset to a state. In the more frequent cases, he is a liability."

Mrs. Hays then turned over the meeting for a few minutes to Mrs. Ottley, and although the hour was late and the greater number of the members of the executive board had gone to catch trains or meet late engagements, the twenty-five who were there rose to the occasion magnificntly, and entered fervently into the "give-or-get" campaign. Ten thousand dollars was pledged in a few minutes, although representatives of the larger part of the state had been obliged to leave before the campaign was broached. Very complete preparatory work had been done, however, by Mrs. Ottley, acting director for the school, with Mrs. Morgan, as leaders for the trustees, and assurance has come from every district president that the message will be carried to the clubs with all the force these leaders can command.

"The Georgia Federation has worked and co-operated with everything and everybody in Georgia for more than twenty-five years," said Mrs. Ottley. "Let us go out and ask for some co-operation in return. There are lots of people in the acquaintance of all of us who are seeking ways to do good. Let us find them. Tallulah provides the opportunity."

The enthusiasm of the opening of the campaign affords fair promise that the needed $50,000 will be fairly on the way to completion when the Federation meets in Athens, October 10th to 13th.

A "human interest afternoon at the Athens convention, when the children from Tallulah school and their teachers will provide the interest, will form the climax feature of the give-or-get campaign.

Healthmobile To Be Present At Convention

An importatn event of the convention in Athens of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs will be the simultaneous visit there of the healthmobile which the state board of health is sending through the state with doctors and nurses to look after the health of Georgia's mothers and babies who are in need of examination or instruction.

The work of the healthmobile will be demonstrated for the convention as the big feature of the federation's health program. Mrs. William Fleming, of Augusta, is chairman of this departmetn.

As the clubwomen of Georgia know the work of the healthmobile is being supported by the federal appropriation under the Shephard-Towner act which, according to the act was given all the states for the first year, regardless of whether or not their legislatures matched the federal funds with adequate state appropriations.

Georgia's legislature of 1922 failed to provide the appropriation but a great deal of educational work has been done by the federal and state boards of health which will not be lost. The demonstration in Athens, October 10 to 13, which will be presented before several hundred clubwomen will make every one of these clubwomen active promoters of the new appropriations bill when it is presented before the legislation of 1923.

New Board Member A Clubwoman.

Mrs. Kate Green Hess of Kirkwood, newly elected member of the board of education of Atlanta, Kirkwood being now a part of the municipality, is a pioneer club woman, and a pioneer in women's organized work for civic betterment. The Civic League of Kirkwood, of which she is a forceful member, is responsible for some of the most advanced work for civic improvement in that community.

In her report as chairman of legislation at the meeting of the league the past week she said: "It is my opinion that woman's political influnce will do much toward drawing the mind of man from the abyss of materialism to its higher and rightful position of mental, physical and social protector of country, state and home."

Mrs. Hess is herself eminently the type of political thought, and the club women of Atlant express their belief that she will in all respects be representative on the board of the kind of woman the organized women want to see in office, and the kind of citizen they would have handle their political affairs.

Mrs. Hess reviewed the bills in which the women were especially interested in the recent legislature, and expressed her belief that the department of international relations which was created by the General Federation of Women's Clubs for the Chautauqua convention will be a powerful influence to promote friendly relations among the nations. She told of finding clubs for women in several of the large cities of the Orient, and said that child welfare was of interest to the women there and in the Philippine islands, as well as at Honolulu, and that international peace is the universal prayer of the whole world.

Warren Co. Clubs Meet in Warrenton.

The Warren county Federation of Womens culbs held its semi-annual meeting at Warrenton on Friday, September 1 with a large delegation. The culbs over the county were represented and quite a number of the representative men of the county attended. The sessions were held in the Warrenton public library, which is splendidly adapted to such occasions.

The Warrenton Woman's club was hostess, and promptly at 11 a. m., Mrs. Charles H. Evans, president of this club, called the meeting to order and gave a beautiful welcome address. This was followed by addresses of welcome by Mayor W. W. DeBeaugrine, Jr.; Chairman of the Board of Education J. W. Whitley; County School Superintendent M. J. Bruce, and Rev. H. L. Hendricks. These were responded to in a very gracious manner by Mrs. T. E. Massengale, president of the Norwood Woman's club.

The president of the federation, Mrs. Hugh Cason, of Jewell, took charge of the meeting and introduced Mrs. E. R. Hines, of Milledgeville, president of the tenth district, who held her audience spell-bound as she told, in a most interesting manner, of her trip to Chautauqua, N. Y., in attendance on the biennial convention of the National Federation of Women's Clubs.

The Warrenton Music club, under the direction of Mrs. J. C. Evans, had charge of the music and during the morning session Miss Carwee Davis delighted the audience with a vocal solo. A quartet composed of Misses Davis, McGregor, Anderson and Todd also sang most pleasingly.

At 1 o'clock a delicious luncheon was served, at the conclusion of which a number or toasts were given. At 2 o'clock the meeting was called to order and two quartets were sung, the music and words of one having been composed by Mrs. Hugh Cason. Miss Sara Rhodes, of the Jewell Music club, gave a beautiful piano solo, and Mrs. Hugh Cason gave the "Dance of the Witches." A short business session followed in which Mrs. Hines outlined plans for the next club year.

One of the most important resolutions passed at this session was: Resolved, that during the coming year every club woman in Warren county pledge that upon entering a store and making a purchase she will ask the question, "Is it Georgia made?" The meeting adjourned at 4 o'clock. Coming as it did just on the eve of the resumption of club activities it will doubtless cause greater interest in the work.

Hancock County Plans for Year.

At the semi-annual meeting of the Hancock County federation at Jewell September 7, 1922, the following plans were stressed as club work for the coming year:

1. To put on intensive drive through all the clubs for Tallulah Falls.
2. Hancock county school rally.
3. Co-operation of the clubs with our county fair—club booths and exhibits.
4. Georgia products dinner by Hancock federation.
5. Illiteracy campaign—one woman, Miss Johnnie Gaissert, of this county , taught 100 illiterates last year.
6. Compile history of Hancock county.
7. Plant trees—especially crepe myrtle.
8. Sponsor every school in county and help by systematic visiting.
9. Observe Bird and Arbor day and Georgia day.
10. We are going to get the gavel with community clubs.

The meeting of the Hancock County federation at Jewell, Ga., was a decided success from every standpoint. Never in the history of the federation was the occasion graced by any more cordial welcome and genuine southern hospitality than was expressed by its host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Crews.

The morning session was held in the school building with a record attendance of club women from Hancock, Warren and Baldwin counties. After the song service and invocation we were introduced to Mrs. J. B. Cody, one of Hancock's real musicions, who played a piece of her own composition and was accompanied by Miss Mildred Lewis, who sang a very attractive song of welcome composed by Mrs. Cody.

Mrs. Crews welcomed us to Jewell and to her home, "Idyl Wyld." To this welcome address Mrs. Burnett Moore, of Sparta, responded.

Mrs. Longino, accompanied by our own Mrs. Hines, sang beautifully two songs.

Then Mrs. Hines in her own enthusiastic and interesting way told us of her wonderful trip to the biennial convention at Chautauqua, N. Y. How, with 48 splendid Georgia women, they accomplished a three-fold purpose with a whirlwind campaign of advertising Georgia—first, to elect our own state president, Mrs. Hayes, to the office of recording secretary of the national federation; second, to bring the national council to Atlanta next spring, and third, to put Georgia on the map.

Mrs. Hines' talk was very interesting as well as instructive and she thanked the club members graciously for having sent her as our tenth district president.

We are all delighted with the fact that Mrs. Hines was responsible for the very catchy and attractive songs written and sung by the Georgia delegation at the biennial.

After the singing of "Battle Hymn of the Tenth District" the meeting adjourned to meet for lunch at "Idyl Wyld," the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Crews.

On the lawn were beautifully appointed tables carrying out the color scheme of yellow and white, where the guests, about 200 in number, were served an elaborate luncheon.

After lunch Mrs. Hines and others sang a number of the biennial songs. Toasts were made to Mrs. Hines, Mr. and Mrs. Crews and others.

The afternoon session was held on the lawn of "Idyl Wyld." Reports were heard from officers and committees.

Then Mrs. Hines put before us plans for our work through the coming year.

The federation was most cordially invited to meet in Sparta next spring. 'Blest Be the Tie That Binds" was sung just before adjournment.

Mrs. Meyer to Show Labor-Saving Devices.

Mrs. Joe Meyer, of Albany, has purchased a wonderful collection of labor-saving kitchen devices which she has tried out and will lend for a display at the Athens convention of federated clubs. Mrs. Meyer will also give a demonstration of these devices for the Woman's club of Albany at an early date as a feature of the home economics program.

Woman Commissioner For Child Code.

The executive board of the Georgia federation at its meeting Thursday received a request from the state board of public welfare to name a club woman as candidate for a place on the newly created children's code commission. The board gladly accepted the offer and Mrs. Hays was empowered to make the appointment.

Mrs. Lyons Visits New Headquarters In Washington

That she was perfectly carried away with the headquarters of the General Federation of Women's club at Washington is the message brought home by the treasurer of the Georgia Federation, Mrs. J. Sprole Lyons.

"I was struck," reports Mrs. Lyons "not only with the beauty of the interior, but with its splendid adaptability to the purpose for which it is intended. Not only does it appeal in every way to the eye but it has the qualities of usefulness. The hangings are rich and beautiful and it contains rare works of art. The directors' meetings will be held in a huge room on the third floor, wihch was formerly the owner's den and living room, and this has connecting executive offices. An elevator is being installed which will provide the last detail in comfort.

"There are bedrooms available for visiting club women, and even a casual call makes one enthusiastic.

"The garage is now being converted into a tearoom which will suggest in its general style the Tally-Ho tearoom in New York, with tea tables in the stalls providing a bit of privacy. The broad driveway leading to it is being graveled and the iron gateway will be thrown open during afternoon tea hours. A formal garden with beautiful trees and shrubbery borders the drive. The headquarters house is situated, too, in a most attractive section of Washington, 1734 N. street, N. W., while some of the most important studios of artists and sculptors are in the immediate neighborhood."

Mrs. Lyons is also highly enthusiastic over the management of headquarters by Miss Lida Hafford, headquarters director, whose work as an executive. Mrs. Lyons found in every way to justify the recent action of the general federation in making Miss Hafford a director of the general federation.

Mrs. Lyons' description will be particularly interesting to the clubs in Georgia, all of which are now affiliated with the general federation and also in view of Georgia's substantial pledge to the purchase fund of general headquarters, which is Georgia's as well as the nation's.

Mrs. Albert T. Akers, president of the Fifth District federation, makes the following important anouncement to the club women of the district through the club presidents:

I want to call your attention to the regular fall meeting of the Fifth District to be held on the 26th, of this month at Conyers, Ga. We are to be guests of the Conyers Civic Improvement club. I am anxious that each club in this district shall go by motor, leaving from the Georgian Terrace at nine o'clock sharp, but should any go by train it leaves from the union station via. Georgia railroad at 6:15. Please let me know how many from your club will go and how many cars we can count on from your club. The Conyers club is preparing a royal day for us, including a barbecue dinner, and I must let them know how many to expect; it is their desire also to meet any who may go by train. Please get this information at once and write or phone me, 516 N. Boulevard, apartment 2, phone Ivy 7396-J. or phone Mrs. C. B. McNeely, Ivy 7289-W.

I must remind you that the Fifth District is woefully behind in its maintenance fund for Tallulah Falls school. Please send in to our treasurer your money for this immediately as I must have a completed fund to report at the convention in Athens in October.

Also must I stress the payment of both federation and district dues. Our convention coming so much earlier this year necessitates our hastening in these matters.

I am expecting a goodly repesentation from your club at our Conyers meeting and urge an early reply concerning the trip.

Judges at Work On Song Contest.

A telegram from Miss Ella Polk, of Americus, state chairman of music, who is handling the state song contest for the federation, says:

"Contest closed September 1. Manuscript has been sent judges. Decision announced October 1."

Changes in Constitution To Clarify Membership.

Changes in the constitution of the Georgia Federation, as reported by Mrs. John T. Guerry, of Montezuma, chairman, and approved by the executive board at its meeting Thursday, are as follows:

Article 3—Membership.

Section 2. Omit present section and substitute therefor:

Application for membership shall be made to vice president at large and said application shall be accompanied by a copy of constitution and by-laws, also complete list of officers. The membership committee, which shall consist of first vice president, recording secretary, treasurer and general federation director, shall act upon all applications and classify clubs into one of three groups. These groups shall consist of (1) per capita paying clubs, such as all clubs doing civic and general club work; (2) affiliated organizations, such as teachers' clubs; (3) charitable organizations, such as Sheltering Arms, Travelers' Aid, etc. When the vote of this committee is not unanimous, application shall be referred to the executive board.

Sec. 3—Omit present section and substitute therefor: Any club may be a per capita paying club if it so desires and so state in its application, provided such club requires no sectarian or poiltical test for membership and is not a secret organization.

Sec. 4—Any city or county federation may become a member of the general federation if it so desires.

Article 7—Representation.

Section 1—After first word "each" insert "per capita paying clubs—group 1." Omit federation thereof. Omit "clubs paying minimum dues shall have minimum representation" and add a new section to read as follows:

Sec. 2—Clubs classified as group 2 (affiliated organizations) or group 3 (charitable organizations) paying dues of only $3, also city and county federations, shall be represented only by its president of appointee.

Article 11—Dues.

Sec. 2—Omit present section and substitute therefor: Clubs classified as group 2 (affiliated organizations) or group 3 (charitable organizations), also city and county federations who so desire, shall pay the anual dues of $3. The classification of all clubs will be decided by the membership committee, but any club may have the privilege of being a per capita paying club if it so desires, provided such club requires no sectarian or political test for membership and is not a secret organization.

Sec. 3—Insert the following and let present section become section 4: All city and county federations desiring to belong to the general federation may do so by paying an annual dues of $3 to the state federation and by complying with constitution of general federation, which reads as follows: "The dues for city or county federations shall be $5 for twenty clubs or fewer, or with a membership of more than twenty clubs at the rate of 25 cents per club."

Mountain Children Await Georgia Women's Action

An avalanche of approval of the "Greater Tallulah" project, which would raise $50,000 through a whirlwind campaign by club women of Georgia to make three federation school adequate at once for fifty resident pupils, and place it on a permanent basis, is coming down on the trustees and the directors of the school and on the state editor, who thus pass it on to all the club women of Georgia.

Concerning this campaign, plans for which were crystallized at the state board meeting Thursday, Mrs. A. O. Granger, director for life, and former state president, writes:

When the Fifth District Federation held its meeting at Tallulah Falls in the spring, those who had never before visited the school were attracted by many things, but especially by the noble work done in such cramped quarters.

To the writer, the flowers on the mountainside made a beautiful emblem. Sweet William and foxglove bloomed in spots which were aside from the path, just crannies in the rocks where good seed had been placed, but there flowers were even more exquisite than those in many stately borders. They brightened the whole space before, between and above the little buildings.

That is what Tullulah Falls school is, and must increasingly be—bright flowers of our race found and taught how to grow in the wisest way. When mountain homes feel the uplift of the training given by Miss Nannie Davis and her staff of teachers, each home becomes brighter and each family happier.

Mountain boys and girls do not take their training as a matter of course. They become intensely interested, and carry the training home. We need, as Mrs. Ottley showed so well, better equipment for the work, and room for the proper housing and training of at least fifty resident pupils. These pupils will be an immense gain to the citizenship of our state.

The work of Education week must go on. Who will lead in a fine offering for putting our school on a permanent basis? What Atlantan who seeks the mountain heights in summer will donate a building or a wing or a stretch of good road to the new-house-to-be on the summit? We are waiting and the mountain children are wondering, too.

Mrs. Morgan Offers Unusual Motion.

A unique resolution offered by Mrs. S. B. C. Morgan, of Savannah, and adopted by the executive board, Georgia federation, on Thursday was as follows

"Whereas, a man or woman is now denominated great and good by reason of the service he or she renders humanity; and,

"Whereas, Henry Ford has contributed largely to the happiness, prosperity and education of an innumerable number of the people of these United States who, before he put his machine on the market at reasonable rates, found few doors of opportunity open to them; and,

"Whereas, a large majority of the women in insane asylums were the wives of small farmers who had gone mad from hard toil and the smothering silence of their isolated homes; and,

"Whereas the number was greatly decreased because the family of the poor man can now own a Ford car which takes all his family to church and places of friendly intercourse; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That this body of representative Georgia women, banded together to promote the usefulness through education of their fellow citizens who need their help, should, and hereby do, acknowledge the public's indebtedness to Henry Ford and believe that he is an extraordinary business man to the point of genius and that he uses his prosperity to add to the happiness of the people of the nation."

98 Out of Every 100 Women Benefited

An Absolutely Reliable Statement Important to Every Woman

Remarkable Results Shown by a Nation Wide Canvass of Women Purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

50,000 Women Answer

For some time a circular has been enclosed with each bottle of our medicine bearing this question: "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

Replies, to date, have been received from over 50,000 women answering that question.

98 per cent of which say YES. That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take the medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This is a most remarkable record of efficiency. We doubt if any other medicine in the world equals it.

Think of it—only two women out of 100 received no benefit—98 successes out of a possible 100.

Did you ever hear of anything like it? We must admit that we, ourselves, are astonished.

Of course we know that our medicine does benefit the large majority of women who take it. But that only two out of 100 received no benefit is most astonishing.

It only goes to prove, however, that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments—not a cure all—one that is made by the most scientific process; not from drugs, but from a combination of nature's roots and herbs, can and does do more good than hastily prepared prescriptions.

You see, we have been making, improving and refining this medicine for over 50 years until it is so perfect and so well adapted to women's needs that it actually has the virtue to benefit 98 out of every 100 women who take it.

CONFERENCES HELD FOR COLORED WOMEN

The efforts of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Southern Presbyterian church, under the aggressive and capable leadership of Mrs. W. C. Winsborough, superintendent, to better the physical, moral and spiritual condition of the colored people, are meeting with splendid results through a series of conferences for colored women. Six years ago the first conference was held in Tuscaloosa, Ala., and nine conferences in all have been held since that time. In attendance there have been approximately 500 women and these were chosen as delegates because of elements of leadership they possess.

The general plan for this year calls for three conferences to be held as follows: Christianburg, Va., September 2-9; Tuscaloosa, Ala., September 9-16, and Atlanta, Ga., September 16-23. The program for the Atlanta conference will consist of Bible study (the programs are always founded upon the Bible), community problems, nursing, sewing, basketry and hammock-making, playground work, and night inspirational addresses. These various subjects that are so vital to the welfare of the colored race are to be handled by recognized leaders in these respective departments.

Keep all your pictures until the end of the Pastime. We can't guarantee the return of any pictures submitted before the end of the game.

Our Official Title Catalogue Will Help You Win

For a real short-cut in picking titles for our pictures we recommend our Familiar Quotations Catalogue. It will give you any number of suggestions, and lead you directly to a good answer for each of our sixty illustrations. Nearly 2,000 quotations are arranged alphabetically in this booklet. Besides, the catalogue contains valuable coupons redeemable for the first 30 Pastime Pictures. Price, 40 cents.

Follow These Rules Closely

1. The Familiar Quotations Pastime is open to any man, woman, boy or girl who is a resident of Georgia or adjoining states, except employees or relatives of employees of The Constitution. No entrance fees are required.

2. The Familiar Quotations Pastime consists of sixty pictures, one appearing in The Constitution each day. Each contestant may submit three title answers for each picture each on a separate answer form. Selection of titles will be found in the Official Familiar Quotations Pastime Catalogue.

3. The Catalogue of Quotations may be consulted at the office of The Constitution, or at any public library in the prescribed territory of this Pastime. Participants may also purchase copies of this Catalogue at the office of The Constitution at 40 cents per copy.

4. Each person may participate only as one contestant, and only in his or her own name. However, each participant may submit as many as six complete sets of title answers. Each set of answers will be judged on its own merits. A duplicate list of the selections submitted should be retained by the contestant for self-checking purposes. Full instructions regarding this duplicate list will appear in The Constitution at the close of the Pastime.

5. Three methods may be followed in preparing answers: (1) Each picture published during the 60 days of the Pastime will be accompanied by an official Answer Form, with blank ruled lines for the inscription of your choice of title. (2) Participants may submit handdrawn (not traced) facsimiles of each picture and answer form on sheets of white paper 5x8 inches. (3) Quotations may be submitted in the convenient Familiar Quotations Answer Book.

6. Selections of quotations must not be sent in until the close of the Pastime. Then each participant is to mail or deliver his own set of selections according to instructions appearing in The Constitution. Quotations may be written with pen or pencil, or typewritten. After the publication of the sixtieth picture, sufficient time will be given contestants to prepare their sets of selections before submitting them.

7. The winners of the Familiar Quotations Pastime will be selected by three judges having no connection with The Constitution. These judges will be persons of the highest integrity and good judgment. It is understood that participants entering the Familiar Quotations Pastime accept their decisions as final and conclusive.

8. The fifteen awards in the Pastime will be made to the fifteen highest ranking answers on the basis of having achieved the most appropriate or "best" selections of quotations. If there is an equality between two or more answers a decision will be made by the judges between the tying answers according to superiority in the following requirements: (a) The least number of incorrect selections (the titles which are not "best"); (b) The relative position of the contestant's "best" answer —whether first, second or third choice. In the event of an ultimate tie, each tying contestant will receive an equal prize.

9. Use exactly the same form and spelling of quotations in your selections as you find listed in the Familiar Quotations Pastime Catalogue.

10. Any contestant may have his friends assist him in selecting titles for the pictures. However, only one prize will be awarded to any one household; nor will prizes be awarded to more than one of any group outside the family, who have worked together. The judges reserve the right to discard any set of quotations not complying with the rules and where unfairness is obvious.

500 LETTERS HELP TO ADVERTISE CITY

Following up the campaign of the local chamber of commerce to attract northern and eastern concerns to establish factories in Atlanta and Georgia, B. S. Barker, secretary of the local chamber, announced Saturday that 500 personal letters have been mailed to as many big firms of New England and other eastern and northern sections, giving the attractions of this section for placing branch factories here.

With the letters went a folder which sets forth the advantage of raw materials, labor, fuel, power, transportation and other items of interest to the manufacturer. One of the feature attractions of the section is given in that Atlanta is a center of a super-power zone, there being ample hydro-electric power to meet all demands. The point is made that the present plants of the various power companies are being practically doubled in view of taking care of a growth of business here that is sure to come.

The local chamber has had many letters of inquiry from New England manufacturing firms, particularly those who manufacture shoes. These concerns have been attracted toward this section because of the settled labor conditions here. An effort is also being made to get the large cotton concerns to make their expansion in the south where their raw material will be right at hand. The healthful climate is also mentioned; Atlanta's high altitude which means plentiful ozone in the air. Attention is called to the 54 institutions of higher learning here, together with the 69 public schools and business colleges.

RETAIL MERCHANTS OF CITY WILL MEET ON SEPTEMBER 28TH

At a recent meeting of the monthly meetings committee and educational committee of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association, the first fall membership is divided into departments day, September 28, at 6:15 p. m., at a supper at the chamber of commerce. The keynote of the meeting will be the development of greater service on the part of the association towards the members individually and collectively. The association's membership is divided into departments representing various trade lines headed by a special chairman. Each one of these chairmen will be expected to present to the meeting some suggestion whereby the association can render greater service to the members.

At a recent session of the board of directors an intense membership campaign was outlined for the latter part of October or the early part of November, under the leadership of L. S. Gilbert, of the Retail Credit company, chairman of the membership committee.

Twenty new members were favorably passed upon and added to the membership roster by the board of directors at the meeting just referred to.

Miss Marie Tiffany Will Open Series of Fine Arts Club Here

Miss Marie Tiffany, artist of the first concert to be presented by the new Fine Arts club, is pictured here in distinguished company. Christian Sinding, the great Norwegian composer, stands at her right, and Mrs. Sinding, a woman of unusual brilliance, is at her left. Miss Nan Stephens, of Atlanta, president of the South Atlantic District Federation of Music Clubs, is at the left of the picture. It was taken in New York, just before Mr. and Mrs. Sinding sailed for home recently, after a visit at Rochester, when Mr. Sinding was the guest of George Eastman, famous kodak man, who is the founder of the Rochester conservatory.

A large reception at Piedmont Driving club will follow the opening concert of the Fine Arts club series, when charming Marie Tiffany will be the artist.

Miss Tiffany, Metropolitan Opera company soprano, will sing for the members and their guests Tuesday afternoon, October 17, in the ballroom of the Piedmont Driving club.

Miss Tiffany has appeared with the Metropolitan Opera company in the annual season in Atlanta. Her first recitals in this city were sung last September, when she opened the concert season for both the Atlanta Music club and the Atlanta Junior Music club, both recitals bringing her a notable success. Another recital was given for the Lucy Cobb Institute in Athens. A return engagement was also requested there.

Few singers enjoy the wide popularity of Miss Tiffany as a recital artist. Her sound musicianship, scholarly interpretation, and beautiful voice combined with a gracious personality and lovely appearance, serve to put her in the front rank of concert singers. So many demands have been made for concert tours that her managers have had to shorten her term of contract with the Metropolitan Opera company in order to fill her concert engagements. Miss Tiffany is now in Europe where she is preparing her programs for the season. Musicians and music lovers who heard her last season are rejoicing over the prospect of again hearing this charming artist.

Miss Tiffany's recital for the Fine Arts club will be in the nature of a gala event. A large reception will follow the recital and will serve a double purpose, in formally opening the club and in welcoming Miss Tiffany again to Atlanta, where she has many friends.

EMPLOYERS SENDING MEN TO TECH SCHOOL

Civic and Business Clubs Interested in Opening of Evening Classes.

The civic and business clubs of the cit, are expressing great interest in the opening of the new term of the Tech School of Commerce evening classes, which begin fall work on September 27. Dean J. M. Watters has appeared before a number of organizations during the past week to present the work which is being done in this department of Tech, which is designed primarily to give those already in business a higher technical education in accounting, commercial law, business and industrial management, advertising, finance and kindred subjects.

In addition to this, the Rotary club, Kiwanis, Civitans, Lions, the Retail Merchants' association, the Atlanta Automobile association, and several other organizations have brought the work of the evening classes to the attention of their membership by sending out letters explaining the work which is being done and the opportunities offered for training business executives.

The co-operation received by the dean has extended to banks and department stores, which have enclosed statements of the purposes of the school in their monthly statements.

"We are presenting our work to employers, as well as to employees, who are really the ones interested in taking our courses, because of the fact that an increasing number of employers are realizing the advantages of our courses in helping to train promising material in their organizations," states Dean Watters. "A growing proportion of our students are being sent to the evening classes by their employers, who desire them to get a full rounded grasp of business essentials and of executive principles.

"We are able to give those who are already employed intensive training along their special lines and to enable them to advance much more rapidly by combining the actual experience which they receive on the job during the day with the class work given in the school."

Applications for admission to the school are being received now, and all those who intend to take up the courses are urged to communicate with Dean Watters at once at Georgia Tech. Students may take a single subject, or they can enroll for the full course which leads to a regular degree in Tech.

Other speakers of the convention will be Jerome C. Ard, of Savannah, and E. C. Harrison, vice-president of Draughan's school of salesmanship. Methodist Bishops Make Ringing Appeal For Clean-Up Drive

The "clean-up" campaign now in progress among the educational forces of Georgia Methodism is commanding state-wide interest. Drs. Elam F. Dempsey, of the North Georgia conference and J. A. Harmon, of the South Georgia conference have named the last week in September, from the 24th to October 1, as "clean-up week" and "clean-up Sunday." Bishops, presiding elders, pastors, and local church officials of the movement are all backing the effort and are zealously at work.

In a strong appeal, Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, who presides over the South Georgia conference says: "Let us make a clean sweep! The last week in September is the time set to do it and there is every reason why we should complete the job at the appointed time. We must redeem our pledges to the last dime. Unpaid promises will—open no new doors to the southern youths who are struggling for a better chance.

"The cause deepl, needs the last dollar of this money without delay. There is nothing our church ought to do which it cannot do. We ought meet these pledges now. Let us make a clean sweep of it!"

Bishop W. B. Murrah, who presides over the North Georgia conference and who formerly was president of Millsaps college, says, "We should emphasize just now with the utmost force the imperative demands of our educational work. If we fail here, we shall not accomplish anything worth while and enduring anywhere. It is of the very first importance that all subscriptions made under the direction of our educational movements shall be paid in full and with the utmost promptness."

This effort is directed to the "clean-up" collection of the first year payments on pledges given by about 31,000 of the 200,000 Methodists of Georgia to the Christian education movement. About $150,000 is hoped to be secured.

WOOD THANKS HIS SUPPORTERS FOR HONOR OF LEADING

Attorney J. O. Wood, editor of The Searchlight, who received the highest vote for the legislature of the 12 making the race from Fulton county, issued a statement Saturday thanking the people for their support. Mr. Wood made his race without any specific platform, and was the only candidate who publicly admitted that he was a member of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

"I desire to extend my thanks and appreciation to the people of Fulton county who made possible my election to the house of representatives. The vote cast for me was highly complimentary, and I am exceedingly gratified at having had the honor of leading the ticket.

"My campaign was based on the assumption that honesty in politics would pay just as it does in business. I announced no particular platform, but predicated my race upon the principles of representative government, and it shall be my aim and purpose to always represent the will of the majority of the people, giving due consideration to the wishes of the minority.

"I am fully cognizant of the duties and responsibilities entrusted to me by the people of Fulton county, and I shall endeavor to the utmost of my ability to measure up to the great confidence they have imposed in me."

The letter was signed by T. Brooke Arnold, operative in charge of the Atlanta branch of the secret service division of the United States treasury department.

SHOE RETAILERS FORECAST STYLES AT FALL MEETING

Plans are being made for the fall meeting of the styles committee of the Southeastern Shoe Retailers' association to be held the latter part of September either in Atlanta, or Macon, Georgia.

The Southeastern Shoe Retailers' association is made up of nearly 300 leading retail shoe dealers scattered throughout Georgia, Florida, South Carolina and Alabama. In its membership is comprised the majority of the leading retail shoe dealers of Atlanta. The headquarters of the association are at 412 Gould building in charge of C. V. Hohenstein, executive secretary; Mose Strous connected with the retail shoe department of Eisman's is treasurer, while J. W. Cisby, of Macon, Ga., is president.

Twice yearly the officers and board of directors constituting the styles committee of the association meet and forecast the shoe styles expected to prevail for the following three or four months. The findings of these experts are compiled and mailed out to the members to serve as a guide in making their purchases. This information is supplemented by information along similar lines secured from the National Association of Retail Shoe Dealers of which the Southeastern Shoe Retailers' association is a member. In this way a very practical and valuable service is rendered the shoe buying public and much of the uncertainty and dissatisfaction that would ordinarily exist in the purchase of shoes is eliminated.

The next annual convention of the association is set for June 1923 at Birmingham, Ala.

150 Gallons Is Yield Of Two Cars Captured By County Policemen

William Thompson and Charlie Kent were jailed Saturday morning by County Policemen Butler, Cates, Stovall and Head on charges of violating the prohibition law, following their arrest in the Cheshire road and the seizure of approximately 150 gallons of whisky, officers say.

The whisky was carried in two automobiles, which appeared at the same point in Cheshire road within a few minutes of each other, the police claim. Both prisoners deny any knowledge that the other was bringing whisky and their closeness of arrival was termed by them as an accident.

Kent's machine is said to have contained 99 gallons, while 51 is reported to have been found in Thompson's car.

Will Aid Students Who Want to Earn Expenses at Tech

All effort is being made by the Tech Y. M. C. A. authorities to provide part time jobs for students who will require income from this source to enable them to attend school during the term now starting. K. P. Zerfoss, secretary of the Tech Y, announced Saturday that he would keep a list of students and also a list of employers on file in his office, and that those wishing to employ students could have their wants supplied through a phone call to him.

"Many students," says Mr. Zerfoss, "will be unable to attend this term unless they succeed in getting something to do during spare time. All these men want is some honorable way of making money, and anyone who needs help of any kind can find the right man for the job by calling the employment bureau of the Tech Y. M. C. A."

What Is a Home Without a Good Roof?

Of course, you'll insist upon having a breakfast room, a bathroom with tiled floor and a built-in tub, a furnace, hardwood floors, concrete basement and a drive, and a garage.

But will you give as much thought to having a good roof, a feature of perhaps vastly more importance? Will you know how long the roof will keep out the rain, or will you not even bother yourself to learn who made the shingles?

How soon will the shingles begin to curl? When will the roof leak? How much damage will be done by leaks to the walls, woodwork and furniture? What will the necessary repairs cost? Are the shingles approved by the Fire Underwriters? Will the roof entitle the building and contents to the lowest insurance rates?

A lot of questions, but there are good reasons for them. Safeguard yourself against all such worries, by insisting upon having Carey Asfaltslate Shingles. They're spark-proof. They provide low insurance. They never fade. They never need painting. Thy never crack, warp or curl.

Besides, they're astonishingly inexpensive. Ask for full-size samples.

Interesting Letter From Dr. Armor

BY MRS. AUGUST BURGHARD, Macon, Director of Publicity, Georgia W. C. T. U.

A cablegram received some days ago announced the safe arrival of Dr. Mary Harris Armor, state field secretary for Georgia and national W. C. T. U. lecturer in New Zealand, after a pleasant voyage.

The following letter has just been received, which will interest her hosts of friends throughout the state.

Dr. Armor sailed from San Francisco August 8 at the solicitation of the New Zealand Woman's Christian Temperance union, of which Mrs. Rachel Don, of Ravensbourne, Dunedin, is president, to help with her marvelous eloquence and convincing facts, indisputable truths in the prohibition campaign.

The letter was written as friend to friend. By publishing in this space her friends in all parts of the state will share it with the writer. She says:

"On August 4 we sailed out of the Golden Gate and turned our faces to the southwest on our great adventure. Sometimes I wondered if I was crazy to undertake this long, long journey; but at the last I just dropped all my cares and found a perfect rest in faith that God would take care of everything and everybody, and resolved to get all the good possible for mind and body and soul out of the trip, so that I might be able to give more when I reach the end.

"You know Bula (her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Holcomb Armor, of Birmingham, Ala.) is with me, and already the trip has proved of the most wonderful benefit to her. We had no time to indulge in any sad sentiments with regard to leaving the dear old U. S. A. behind us. So much excitement at the wharf, so much that is novel and interesting on board, and so many letters, telegrams and interesting packages—flowers, fruit, candy, books, magazines, etc., in our stateroom.

"The deck steward said when he brought my mail to me: 'You have such a quantity; more than the whole boat!' I did appreciate your telegram and will try to write you often and send you New Zealand papers.

"There is quite a mixed company on board, and as the passenger list is small, compared with the big Atlantic liners, everybody is sociable.

"Mrs. Annie Sample McPherson, said to be the greatest woman evangelist in the world—a very remarkable woman—with her mother and two children, is on board. She is on her way to Australia to hold evangelistic meetings.

No Drinking Among Ship's Officers.

"We also have a movie star, an ex-actress, who by the way, is very sweet, lovable woman, and wears the most beautiful gowns. Her husband is very wealthy, it seems, and I think they are very devoted. A professional dancer, two women doctors, one of these, Dr. Hill, is going out to Australia to teach bacteriology in one of the universities.

"There are only a few Americans, the rest are Australians and New Zealanders. The most interesting person on board, perhaps, is Captain G. Hobbs. He is a British captain, who was blinded in the world war when leading a desperate charge. He sits by me at the table and I find him quite genial and companionable. He is really wonderful—walks all over the ship without assistance and acts less like a blind man than any one I have ever seen. He has written a most thrilling book about his experiences in the war. It is called, "On the Right of the British Firing Line." He uses his typewriter with perfect ease. He is chairman of the entertainment committee, and is going to preside tonight at the ship's concert. He wears the most elegant clothes and is as neat as a pin.

"It seems very queer to be at the table with men and women who order beer, or wine, or whisky and soda, as casually as I would a glass of milk. But I notice that the captain of the boat, who sits at the next table to mine, never drinks; and neither does the third officer, who sits at the head of our table.

"I asked one of the best-informed and most religious men on the boat if any of the ship's officers drank. He replied in surprise, and very emphatically, 'O, no! A man who takes one drink on duty would be counted drunk,' so you see on this side of the true nature of alcohol.

"I told Bula not to whisper it that the world they are not ignorant of I was a lecturer and we agreed to keep strict silence at first as to our mission, because we wanted to hear people of different views speak frankly.

"It is remarkable; I have not heard a word of ridicule of our prohibition law spoken on this boat.

A Gratifying Contrast.

"A gentleman from New Zealand, without knowing me or my mission, though of course he knew I was an American, told me he had been to the United States to investigate for himself as to prohibition. He is not a speaker or writer. Said he went to the U. S. A. perfectly free from bias in either direction, and that he visited San Francisco, Chicago, New York, Dayton, Ohio, Pittsburg, and other places and talked with men in hotels, smokers, etc.; saw only nine drunk men the whole time he was there. He said he lived in a city of 30,000, Wellington, N. Z., and with scores of public houses, as they call bar-rooms, and he could see that many drunk men in every one of those public houses every day in the week at closing time. He said men in big business told him prohibition was the best thing possible for business. He finished by saying, 'After careful observation I would say that prohibition in the United States is 95 per cent effective.'

"I had a very interesting talk with a gentleman from the United States the other day. He has a large business and employs a great many men. He takes a drink, he says, and did not want prohibition. Said he was never a prohibitionist, but that he had to admit that it had helped his business, that before prohibition there were a great many accidents in his plant. A man would get his finger cut off or a leg or an arm smashed, and that was going on continually, but since prohibition accidents have been very greatly reduced; besides the men are better off every way, and so is the business.

"He said, 'But the best thing about prohibition is that if we hold it ten years, we will raise up a generation who do not know what drink or drunkenness is.'

"Some very nice people from New Zealand are on this boat. One of them told me that a bitter fight was on in New Zealand. Some say, 'O, we, the prohibitionists, will win this time,' and I believe we will.'

"Yours for victory.

(Signed) "MARY HARRIS ARMOR."

It is urged that Methodist women in Georgia, and there are more than 50,000, show love and loyalty for this great benevolence in southern Methodism by canning all kinds of vegetables, fruits, preserves, pickles, jellies, jams, fruit juices, soup mixtures, etc., that our sick patients may lack for nothing that would contribute to their comfort and cheer while in the hospital.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—(adv.)
